WHOLE NATION MOURNS COOLIDGE; BODY TO LIE IN STATE TOMORROW

Today

A Good President.
A Fourth Perplexity.
Efficient Japan.
The Brontosaurus Teaches.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

CALVIN COOLIDGE is dead in the prime of life. Every American deeply regrets his loss, and sympathizes sincerely with his widow and his son.

They will find comfort in the record Mr. Coolidge leaves behind him, a record of public service that has put every American in his debt.

CALVIN COOLIDGE was distinctly an American President. His views on Europe's debts were expressed, according to his custom, in few words:

"They hired the money, didn't they?"

He was interested, as President, in the welfare of America, and in nothing else, allowing foreign countries to worry about their own troubles.

He knew that the voters had not elected him to look after any country or any people outside the boundaries of the United States.

MR. COOLIDGE'S sudden death has deprived the American people of what might and should have been long years of useful work.

Fortunately, his death of heart trouble, aggravated undoubtedly by the tragic loss of his son, cannot wipe out the memory of his past services. They are part of the good record of United States government.

GLENN FRANK, learned president of the University of Wisconsin, tells Gov. Roosevelt that "three major perplexities" will confront him on March 4, namely, "the thinly veiled breakdown of the world's financial system, the revolutionary changes that science and technology have effected in the world's industrial system, and the strange revival since the war of a stubborn and swashbuckling nationalism."

There is another "major perplexity," more "major" than the three mentioned, namely, the problem of putting 12,000,000 Americans back to work. That is the REAL perplexity.

NEWS FROM China indicates greater efficiency among Japanese bombing planes than was at first reported. Three thousand civilians at Shanhaikwan are reported dead, 100,000 natives driven out of the city.

War from the air is no joke, and this country may realize that to its sorrow some day, if it does not prepare thoroughly.

The only THOROUGH preparation would be the sort that would enable the United States to say to other nations:

"Please send your experts here, and learn for yourselves that this country is prepared and able to destroy any nation foolish enough to attack us."

MORE THAN a million Frenchmen, in Paris, have never seen the inside of Notre Dame, to say nothing of the Sainte Chapelle.

Many millions in New York have never seen the inside of the Natural History Museum. If that magnificent institution were appreciated as it should be, police would be needed at every hour to regulate the crowds.

HEADS OF great industrial organizations might spend pensive hours in the dinosaur room. Dr. William Floyd Smith, who has hunted strange animals in strange places, gazing on the giant brontosaurus dinosaur, remarked:

"Animals grow too big, and then they die. They don't grow small again. This beast, and others like him, died out because they could not get enough to eat, enough to supply their gigantic sizes."

THE BRONTOSAURUS needed gigantic quantities of plant food. Big financial and industrial concerns need quantities of orders, and dividend food.

You might spend a thousand thoughtful, concentrated hours in that museum, and at the end of each hour you would have increased your knowledge and real education.

NEW YORK'S public school children are still taught that alcohol in any shape is a curse, although New York has voted against prohibition. Perhaps it is just as well. We still keep to the story of the cherry tree and the hatchet, although there wasn't any cherry tree, or any hatchet.

But it might be as well, even in public schools, to give both sides of the story, for explaining to school children that George Washington made alcoholic drinks, drank them, and was never a drunkard. Thomas Jefferson, who wrote the Declaration of Independence, imported his red wines from France, drank them, and wrote to the Legislature of Virginia that only the free use of light wines and beer could overcome the curse of whisky.

ALSO, SCHOOL children might be told:

"Children, sad to relate, and doubtless because of the mysterious workings of Providence, among 1,000 greatest men in the history of the world there were not 10 total abstainers, and those 10 do not amount to much. What is more remarkable, the nations of the world that are total abstainers amount to little also."

SAN FRANCISCO will build a bridge across the Golden Gate, where the Pacific flows in, bringing ships from all the world.

On breaking ground, Navy and Army planes will lay "streamers of smoke across the Golden Gate, to show where the bridge will be and how it will look." On the ground-breaking occasion this will be an appro-

SLAIN BAND MAN'S WIFE IN HIDING

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Prostrated by publicity given her illicit love affairs, Mrs. Frances Schildhauer, wanted for questioning in the strange murder of her husband, was in hiding today. She was expected to submit to further questioning by police late this afternoon, however.

Because of the widow's absence, the inquest into Edwin O. Schildhauer's death, set for today, may be postponed. The delay may result in the freeing of Carl Bradberry, an important witness. Chief Justice John Prystalsky ruled he should be either charged with a crime or released by 9:30 tonight.

Attorneys for Mrs. Schildhauer, an expectant mother, said she is at the home of friends and under a physician's care. She was reported deeply affected by Bradberry's admissions of his relations with her.

It was reported that she had been advised not to appear at the inquest today in the county morgue. Police officials had hoped to uncover more details in connection with the "ride" murder of the young high school bandmaster.

Highlights of Bradberry's admissions included participation in a pajama party in the Schildhauer home which was interrupted by the husband and a trip with Mrs. Schildhauer to Memphis, where they registered at a hotel as man and wife.

Police are prepared to present three lines of evidence at the inquest, Capt. Stege said: First, that Schildhauer had threatened to get a divorce, naming Bradberry as co-respondent (Bradberry is married and the father of two children); second, that Mrs. Schildhauer was to receive death benefits of $38,000 from her husband's life insurance, and third, evidence that Bradberry had admitted intimacies with Mrs. Schildhauer shortly before the murder.

Appeal of Darrow Fails to Save 'Iggy'

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—James (Iggy) Varecha, 17-year-old slayer and attacker of women, must die in the electric chair despite the dramatic plea of Clarence Darrow, veteran criminal lawyer.

Markets to Close In Coolidge Tribute

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—The New York Stock Exchange, the New York Curb Exchange and the New York Cotton Exchange today announced they would close tomorrow as a tribute ta former President Calvin Coolidge, who died suddenly yesterday.

The closings will coincide with the funeral tomorrow. Other principal exchanges are expected to take similar action.

Bound, Robbed

BETTY COMPSON

BETTY COMPSON BOUND, ROBBED

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—A robber dressed as a messenger boy entered the home of Betty Compson, threatened her life, bound and gagged her and escaped with jewelry the film actress said she valued at $41,500.

The actress, reporting last night's robbery to the police, said the man also bound and gagged E. D. Leshin, her former production manager, who was visiting at the home. She said the jewelry was insured.

Miss Compson, former wife of James Cruze, film director, said she and Leshin were playing cards when the robber knocked on the door of her residence and asked:

"Miss Compson?"

The actress replied in the affirmative and opened the door.

Without hesitating, the robber pushed open the door and forced Miss Compson into the room with Leshin. He made them walk up the stairs to a bedroom where he bound and gagged Leshin.

PROBSTZELLA, Germany, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Former Czar Ferdinand, of Bulgaria, who will be 72 next month, left today for a visit to Africa.

INCOME TAX RAISE PLAN OPPOSED

Democratic Program Faces Fight in Congress

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The Democratic program to increase income taxes ran into stiff opposition on Capitol Hill today, drawing a declaration from Speaker John N. Garner, of the House, that the plan would be droped if congressional leaders opposed it.

The plan, according to Senator Pittman (Dem.), of Nevada, on his return here from the conference with President-elect Roosevelt in New York last night, will be used only as a last resort in efforts to balance the budget. He declared no final decision was reached at New York on the question of raising income taxes.

STRICT ECONOMY

Pittman declared the conferees decided to balance the budget, to enforce strict economy on governmental appropriations and to retain the present emergency gasoline tax. If these measures fail to balance the budget, he added, the Democrats will meet again to decide whether to increase income taxes, reduce exemptions or adopt both.

A storm of opposition was aroused by New York reports that the Democrats would balance the budget by increasing taxes on small incomes. Even Democrats objected to this form of balancing the budget unless comparative increases were imposed on the higher brackets of incomes.

Republican leaders demanded adoption of the general or a limited excise tax as a substitute for any form of income tax increase.

Representative Rainey, Democratic leader of the House, joined with Pittman in denying the Democrats had finally agreed to raise income taxes. Rainey said there was considerable opposition to this plan among Democrats at the conference.

Garner said:

"The Ways and Means Committee will make a survey and, if these taxes do not appeal,

Calvin Coolidge's Last Message

CALVIN COOLIDGE
NORTHAMPTON
MASSACHUSETTS

December 28, 1932.

Mr. Bradley Kelly,
American Radio News Corporation,
114 East 58th Street,
New York City.

Dear Sir:-

For the year 1933 it seems to me that we need cooperation and charity. The resources of our country are sufficient to meet our requirements if we use them to help each other. We should cooperate to promote all kinds of business activity. We should do what we can in the way of charity. If all that is implied in these two words could be put into operation not only would our economic condition begin steadily to improve but our destitute would secure ample relief. I can think of no better resolution for the New Year than to work in these directions.

With kindest regards, I am,

Very truly yours,

Calvin Coolidge

CALVIN COOLIDGE'S LAST MESSAGE TO THE AMERICAN PUBLIC . . . HE PEERED INTO 1933

MISSING GIRL FOUND SLAIN

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—Rose McCloskey, 19, who disappeared when her escort was mysteriously attacked last night, was found beaten to death today.

The crushed and broken body of the girl was found by a guard in a clump of bushes in Fairmount Park. Her head has been bashed in with a heavy instrument. The body bore numerous cuts, inflicted by a razor, police believe.

Dennis Boyle, the girl's escort last night when she left for a delicatessen store, was in a critical condition in the Presbyterian Hospital, suffering from a probable fractured skull.

Guard Dollar Home In Fear of Kidnapers

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The Chronicle today said the home of the late Capt. Robert Dollar is being guarded night and day because the shipping magnate's widow has received "blackmailing or kidnaping" threats.

The paper said "sources close to the family" revealed the widow already had paid more than $6,000 to the persons allegedly making the threats against Mrs. Dollar's four grandchildren, but that members of the family denied receipt of the letters or that the home was guarded.

County to Receive $202,000 for Jobless

Allegheny County will receive $202,388 for "maintenance of the idle" from the State Emergency Relief Board, which today announced the January allocations, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg. This represents Allegheny County's share of the federal grants of $5,035,257.

Father Goes To Workhouse For Blackmail

Fred S. Day, 40, of Frankstown road, Wilkinsburg, father of a 10-year-old daughter and husband of a woman who has been ill for two years, was sentenced to the workhouse for one and a half to three years today when he pleaded guilty to attempted blackmail.

Day was arrested by state police after he had threatened the life of A. A. Adams and his family, of Frankstown road, Penn Township. He walked into a trap laid for him on the Bob-o-link driving range, Aspinwall, last December 20, according to Sergt. John Tomak, of the state police.

Clean-cut and of a reliable character in the past, according to witnesses, Day told Judge Frank P. Patterson in Criminal Court today that he was out of work and desperate because he wanted money with which to send his wife to Arizona to get well. The court said:

"If everybody in distress because of the depressed conditions should do as this man did, a condition of chaos would result throughout the country."

Fireswept Liner Towed Toward Port

CHERBOURG, France, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Four salvage tugs today were still slowly towing the burned liner Atlantique toward Havre. It was expected that they would reach there late tonight.

Violent Earthquake Causes Athens Panic

LONDON, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—a violent earthquake threw the population of Athens, Greece, into panic today, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch.

LAST MESSAGE URGED CHARITY

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(Universal.)—Calvin Coolidge's last message to the people of America was a plea for "co-operation and charity."

It was contained in a letter to Bradley Kelly, head of the American Radio News Corporation and director of Hearst station WINS, as part of a special New Years Day broadcast, which Kelly arranged.

Read over the adio last Sunday by Claude Bowers, political commentator of the New York Journal, the former president's message said:

"For the year 1933 it seems to me that we need co-operation and charity. The resources of our country are sufficient to meet our requirements if we can use them to help each other. We should do what we can in the way of charity. If all that is implied in these two words could be put into operation not only would our economic condition begin steadily to improve but our destitute would secure ample relief. I can think of no better resolution for the new year than to work in these directions."

Three Boys Drown In Rescue of Girl

ADISON, Vt., Jan. 6.—(INS.)—Three boys today had sacrificed their lives to save the life of a girl playmate, who was plunged into the water of Dead Creek when the ice on which they were skating gave way.

Robert Dickerson, 13; Donald Lattrell, 15, and Samuel Jacobs, 19, succeeded in getting Ruby Dickerson, 10, on firm ice, but before they could save themselves, a strong current under the ice dragged them down.

SIMPLICITY TO MARK FUNERAL

Former President to Be Buried Near Old Home in Vermont

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 6.—The everlasting silence of death today closed around Calvin Coolidge, the quiet one, while the nation mourned his loss.

The former President will be buried tomorrow in the homeland soil of Plymouth, Vt., hallowed by his Puritan ancestors.

Even as he lived, simplicity will mark the funeral services to be held here tomorrow at the Congregational Church where he worshipped each Sunday.

The body will lie in state tomorrow in the little church in which he was married.

The public will be permitted to view the body from 8:30 to 9:30 a. m. The services will start at 10:30 and last only one-half hour.

Then the funeral cortege will wind over 100 miles of New England hills to the Coolidge graveyard, where the nation's former chief will be laid to rest beside his father, mother and young son.

Townsmen, statesmen, friends from near and afar, today filed past the unpretentious bier of the man who worked much, said little and served his country long and well.

MRS. COOLIDGE CALM

Within the Coolidge house of mourning, with the peaceful Berkshire hills for a back drop, Mrs. Grace Goodhue Coolidge, the widow, controlled her sorrow. She had suffered a nervous prostration shortly after her famous husband had been fatally stricken from a sudden heart attack. But she was reported recovered and bearing up bravely.

John Coolidge, only living son of the ex-President, and his wife, the former Florence Trumbull, kept close to Mrs. Coolidge.

The only other surviving relative of the late President is an aunt, Sarah Pollard, of Proctorsville, Vt. She is almost 100 years old and was not expected to attend the funeral services here.

The services will be held at 10:30 a. m., tomorrow at the Edwards Congregational Church, founded by the noted colonial minister, Jonathan Edwards.

Former Child Prodigy Gets Third Divorce

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Coincident with the revelation she had obtained a divorce from her third husband, Winifred Sackville Stoner Harrison, one-time child prodigy, formerly of Pittsburgh, announced today she was considering a fourth marriage. She declined to name the man.

Mrs. Harrison, who at the age of 12 had written several books and masteres several languages, said she was divorced in Las Vegas, Nev., last July 26, from Earl Winston Harrison. They were married in Yuma, Ariz., in August, 1931, and separated last summer. Cruelty was the grounds on which the divorce was granted, she said.

The young woman's first marriage was to Count Philippe Clinton de Bruche. It was annulled in 1929. Louis Hyman, New York broker, was her second husband. Divorce terminated this union.

pastor of the church, will officiate.

SE FAMILY BIBLE

The Coolidge family bible, which he late President read nightly, vill be used in the services.

The favorite Coolidge psalm, "The Lord is My Shepherd," will be included in the funeral ceremony.

Six Northampton policemen, who called Mr. Coolidge by his first name, will act as pallbearers at the Northampton part of the funeral ceremony.

The United States Marshal and some of his deputies, in Plymouth, will serve as pallbearers when the body reaches Vermont.

Honorary pallbearers were named as follows:

F. W. Stearns, of Boston, friend and political adviser to the ex-President; William Whiting, of Holyoke, Mass., former Secretary of Commerce in the Coolidge administration; Judge Thomas J. Hammond, of the State Superior Court, and son of the late John C. Hammond, first law partner of Coolidge; R. B. Hills, president of the Haydenville Manufacturing Company, of Haydenville, Mass.; R. W. Hemenway, Coolidge's law partner; William M. Butler, former United States Senator from Massachusetts; Mayor Homer C. Bliss, of Northampton; John H. Trumbull, former Governor of Connecticut and father-in-law of John Coolidge; Charles E. Andrews, a classmate with Coolidge at Amherst College and treasurer of the institution, and Walter L. Stevens, a local attorney.

TELLS OF FATAL DAY

Details of the sudden death of Mr. Coolidge were divulged today by Harry Ross, his confidential secretary, one of the last to see him alive. Ross told International News Service:

"Mr. Coolidge had breakfast yesterday with Mrs. Coolidge. She said she planned to do some shopping in town. He asked her: 'Don't you want to take the car, dear?'

"She replied: 'No, it's too nice a day. I'm going to walk.'

"Mr. Coolidge was driven by his chauffeur, John Bukoski, to his law office at 8:30 a. m. He gave some dictation to Mrs. Ruth Hanner and seemed in the best of spirits. He completed his work without complaining of ill-health. I rode back with him to his home at 10 a. m. and chatted in the library until 10:30 with him.

TALKS OF HUNTING

"We talked about Plymouth and his home there. We reminisced about the hunting trip we took last October up in Vermont when we went on a partridge shoot.

"He was a pretty good shot.

"And Mr. Coolidge talked of his future plans.

"He said: 'In the future, I'm going to spend as much time as I can in Plymouth.'"

Coolidge never forgot the modest Vermont farmhouse where he learned of the good earth and the virtue of early rising and retiring.

He attended Amherst and hung his lawyers' shingle in this town eight miles away. He courted and married the vivacious Grace Goodhue, teaching at a deaf and dumb institution nearby. They were married in the old Edwards Congregational Church. He served in local, state and national office, to become known as the iron man of Massachusetts politics.

LOYAL TO PLYMOUTH

But he never neglected his visits to Plymouth.

It was in the dimly-lighted farm house parlor there that he chose to be sworn as President when the late President Harding passed away.

Setting out for Washington in 1923 as the new Chief Magistrate of the nation, Coolidge did not forget to consecrate himself in prayer at the grave of his mother.

There were two more sorrowful pilgrimages to the rural cemetery in the Vermont highlands—when his aged father died and when his young son, Calvin, Jr., passed away.

"We chatted about common things. We just talked as good friends talk. We were always perfectly at ease with one another. Mr. Coolidge left the room five or six times, I guess.

"He puttered about as a man who loves his home will do in his own house.

"He went upstairs after a while and I busied myself about the library waiting for a further summons. It was about 11:30 a. m., as nearly as I can figure it.

FINDS COOLIDGE DEAD

"Mrs. Coolidge returned at approximately 12:25 p. m., and she went upstairs to speak to Mr. Coolidge without even removing her coat.

"She found Mr. Coolidge dead. She called to me. I don't remember exactly what she said. I went upstairs. He was lying on the floor on his back in his dressing room. He looked mighty peaceful. His face showed no sign of pain.

"He had been preparing to shave. His coat and vest were off. I called Dr. Edward W. Brown (the Coolidge family physician and the Northampton medical examiner).

"At 12:45 p. m., I telephoned John Coolidge in New Haven that his father had gone away."

Ross said although he did not complain of feeling ill during the morning, Mr. Coolidge had made frequent references to indigestion pains during the last week. Ross attributed these pains to heart trouble.

Dr. Brown gave the cause of death as coratory thrombosis (bursting of an artery at the point where it enters the heart).

An official death certificate will be issued later today.

There will be no autopsy, the medical examiner said.

WAS SELDOM ILL

Coolidge underwent a physical examination from Dr. Brown a month ago and he was found to be "organically perfect."

Through his 60 years the former President seldom suffered from ill health, aside from periodic attacks in the summer of "pollen poison," a New Englandism for common hay fever.

The former President had expressed his wish before death to be buried in Plymouth following simple funeral services in his own Northampton church, International News Service learned.

In complying with his wish, Mrs. Coolidge declined the suggestion of Gov. Joseph B. Ely, of Massachusetts, that the body of the ex-President be laid in state in the hall of flags at the Capitol.

The suggestion of other friends that Mr. Coolidge be buried in the national cemetery at Arlington was also declined.

Mrs. R. B. Hills, of Haydenville, Mass., intimate friend of Mrs. Coolidge, stayed at the Coolidge home to aid her in her grief.

The master of "The Beeches" was also mourned by the servants of the household. Said Lillian Nelligan, the maid:

And Bessie Bryson, the cook, added:

"The way he treated you, nobody would ever think he was a President."

Slemp Mourns Loss Of His Former Chief

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—C. Bascom Slemp, former secretary to Calvin Coolidge, said today the former President's death caused him inexpressible sorrow. He declared:

"Besides the great personal loss to me, the country cannot replace his clear judgment, his common sense, his solid Americanism and his clear understanding of the refinements of public service."

The original sky decorations, consisting of sun, moon, comets, stars, milky way and meteorites, with the rainbow in the daytime and occasional streaks of lightning with thunder, are sufficient decorations. AN AIRPLANE, carrying mail between Albany and Montreal, was attacked by a bald eagle yesterday as it flew over Bald Mountain, near Whitehall, N. Y.

The eagle, of unusual size, attacked, swooping down from above, as hawks swoop down on gentle birds, and repeated the attack until it was caught and cut to pieces in the propeller blades, as the pilot sought to avoid it.

SIMILARLY, BULLS, head down, have attacked on-coming locomotives. You regret the bad judgment of such fighters, but admire their courage. There is something particularly pleasing about the idea of a bald eagle, emblem of the United States, refusing to let any other flying thing share his mastery of the air.

Coolidge's Cobbler Friend Weeps

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—James Lucey, 70-year-old cobbler-philosopher to whom Calvin Coolidge wrote from the White House: "If it were not for you, I should not be here," wept unashamed today.

When informed of the death of his friend yesterday he was overcome. He had known the former President since he was a second year student at Amherst. He repaired Mr. Coolidge's shoes and, at the same time, dispensed the homely philosophy which Mr. Coolidge liked and which made them, through life, fast friends. Lucey said:

"He truly was a friend of mine, and I had the satisfaction of knowing that I was a friend of his."

Since the days at Amherst they had not forgotten each other. When the former student rose to the highest office in the nation, James Lucey was remembered. The letter Coolidge wrote him from Washington was framed and still stands as one of Lucey's prized possessions.

"He had no equal as a boy or man."

Thus did Lucey sum up his opinion of Coolidge as he recalled his visit to Washington where he had dinner at the White House as the guest of the President and had a White House car at his disposal.

The old cobbler, as he recalled their many happy talks together, could say no more. He shook his head and held back a tear. His best friend was dead.

COUNTY SALARY CUTS URGED

The Taxpayers' Co-operative League of Tarentum Borough at a meeting last night passed resolutions demanding cuts in county officials salaries, asked delay in the foreclosure of mortgages and the halting of evictions.

Asserting the salaries of county officials affected should be from $200 up to $1,250 a month, and the range of cuts should be from 10 to 33 per cent, copies were sent County Commissioners, the Legislature and Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

EXTEND SEARCH FOR LOST BRIDE

Police broadened their search today for pretty 18-year-old Annabell Brickner, bride of a month, who vanished from her home, 126 Knox avenue, Knoxville, when her husband told her the wedding was just a joke to him, her father, Charles Brickner, was quoted as telling police.

Her secret marriage to a childhood sweetheart, Howard Harms, of Knoxville, December 6, in Wellsburg, W. Va., was disclosed when her mother found the marriage license, police said. The girl became despondent when Harms told her he was making plans to have the ceremony annulled.

When Annabell left home December 28, she told her family she had a job as a maid with a family in Perrysville avenue. Mrs. Brickner, investigating, learned that the family had never seen her daughter.

Annabell, blue-eyed, had brown hair and was 5 feet, 2 inches tall.

ROOSEVELT TO MEET STIMSON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—Secretary of State Stimson may confer with President-elect Roosevelt on American foreign affairs in New York on his way back from Calvin Coolidge's funeral in Plymouth, Vt.

The Secretary is leaving tonight to attend the funeral with President Hoover. If Mr. Roosevelt expresses a desire to hold the conference when Stimson stops off in New York on his return, the latter will be glad to comply.

In any event, Stimson expects the conference will take place within the next week or two.

How Pet Dog Interrupted Coolidge Meal Told

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Tuffy, the black Scotch terrier that Calvin Coolidge often had patted, roamed about the room today while Harry S. New and Mrs. New talked about the man who had been their friend.

New, former Indianan, was Postmaster General under Harding. Coolidge retained him in the post and the regard that led to that retention grew through years of association. Mrs. New recalled today:

"Tuffy once interrupted a dinner that we were giving for Mr. Coolidge. I had locked the dog in a room and about midway through the courses, Tuffy began an uproar that carried to the dining room. The President stopped and asked: 'What's that?' 'A pup, Mr. President,' I said, and then explained. I've never seen him laugh more heartily. 'Bring him in,' he said, 'bring him in.'

"Later, when Tuffy was ill, Mr. Coolidge wanted to send him to Walter Reed Hospital."

Looked Upon as Man To Lead Party in 1936 Campaign

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Underneath the genuine regret that Washington felt over the passing of Calvin Coolidge, there swung today a lively undercurrent of speculation as to what his death may portend in national politics — particularly Republican politics.

That the former President, whose very name and administration are synonomous with the magic word prosperity, would have been a prominent, perhaps a commanding personality, in the presidential year of 1936 is conceded on all sides. He was only 60 when he died.

Ever since the Republican debacle of last November, when the Republican party, under the leadership of Herbert Hoover, went down to the most smashing defeat in its history, the party survivors have been talking of the former President as the Messiah of four years hence.

LEADERS ASK 'WHO?'

And while the flags of Washington swung at half-mast in his honor today, the Republican Big-Wigs, those that are left, were asking themselves, "Who now?" and the echo answered, "Who?"

Had Mr. Coolidge lived there is scant doubt that he would have provided the rallying post for Republican sentiment and policy during the next few years.

PREMONITION CITED

It was considered of more than passing significance that Mr. Coolidge seemed to have a premonition of his death.

In one of the last letters he wrote to E. T. Clarke, his faithful personal secretary for many years, he said:

"I know my work is done."

This was only a few days prior to his death. In this same letter he referred to the terrific trial ahead of the incoming President, Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York.

Maybe it was premonition. Maybe it was canny political foresight. But whichever it was, the national capital, high and low, was genuinely sorrowful today that the gentle, taciturn little man, with the dry wit and the genial chuckle, has gone to join the valhalla of the nation's immortals.

Penna G. O. P. Looked To Coolidge for '36

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Jan. 6.—The sudden death of former President Coolidge completely upsets the theories some Pennsylvania Republicans had as to how the next presidential campaign should be conducted.

He was considered as ideally fitted to be the party standard-bearer, especially if the incoming Democratic administration should encounter storms in its efforts to reorganize the government and satisfy the people of the country. It was pointed out that Mr. Coolidge had been President during the days of feverish prosperity.

This attitude was adopted in full knowledge that President Hoover cherishes the hope that the party will turn to him in 1936, despite his defeat, just as the Democrats turned to Cleveland in 1892 despite his defeat in 1888. The dream of the President is not finding much favor among the Republican leaders of this state, who have been clashing with him more frequently than the general public has realized.

Nor are they so much attached to the plan within the Hoover circle to set up Ogden Mills, Secretary of the Treasury, as a presidential candidate in the event Mr. Hoover discovers that another chance is not to be his. Personally they like Mills; they believe him capable.

Right now the Republican leaders in the state have in the back of their minds Hanford MacNider, of Iowa, as a potential presidential candidate. MacNider was national commander of the American Legion, an assistant secretary of war, and our first minister to Canada.

Mr. Coolidge was the one to whom these leaders looked for hope. Now they are turning in Pennsylvania to MacNider. It will not be surprising to find MacNider from now on speaking here and there throughout the country to acquaint the people with his personality.

TAX INCREASE OPPOSED

some other levy will be sought." I've got in mind a tax equally as efficient."

Senator Connally (Dem.), of Texas, declared he would oppose the lower income taxes unless the surtax rates on big incomes is hiked.

Senator Huey Long (Dem.), of Louisiana, announced his opposition and said he would press for a confiscatory tax on incomes above $1,000,000 a year.

SALES TAX DRIVE

The Republicans in the House planned to make a drive for a manufacturers' sales tax.

Representative Snell, of New York, party leader, said a sales tax is "more fair and equitable" than the tax on low incomes. He was joined in this by Senator Hale, of Maine, and Senator Fess, of Ohio.

A fight also was in prospect in the Senate on the conference's demand for submission of outright repeal of the prohibition amendment, rather than a new amendment giving Congress power to legislate against the saloon.

ROOSEVELT SATISFIED

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt made it clear today that he was satisfied with last night's congressional parley which produced a program for balancing the budget at this session of Congress, calling for income tax increase.

It was pointed out today by Mr. Roosevelt that the proposal to raise normal rates from 4 and 8 to 6 and 12 per cent hits the big incomes as well as the low ones.

The President-elect held a separate conference today with Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, ranking Democrat on the Finance Committee. He also had a place on his program for Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the party floor leader.

Harrison said no decision had been made whether to make the proposed income tax raise applicable to incomes of 1932 to be paid this year or to the income of this year to be paid next year.

TRAILS EX-CHIEF IN DEATH

Dr. George M. Kline, 54, nationally-known expert on mental treatment, and a native of Pittsburgh, is dead of a heart attack, according to word from Boston, where he had offices as Massachusetts State Commissioner of Mental Diseases.

He followed in death yesterday by only a few hours the late President Calvin Coolidge, who, as governor of Massachusetts, had appointed Dr. Kline to office.

In his youth Dr. Kline's parents moved from Pittsburgh to Grand Rapids, Mich., where he was educated in the public schools. He received his medical degree from the University of Michigan in 1901.

Dr. Kline later served in hospitals in Michigan, Iowa and Massachusetts. His work as a psychiatrist was recognized as outstanding.

PINCHOT DENIES SENATE RUMOR

HARRISBURG, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—Without precisely saying so, Gov. Gifford Pinchot today made it rather plain that he is getting weary of denying every rumor that springs up regarding his plans, political or otherwise.

That is particularly true, according to the Governor's attitude, regarding the United States Senate seat now held by Senator James J. Davis.

Earlier in the week the Governor denied emphatically that he had any intention of resigning under an agreement with Lieut. Gov. E. C. Shannon whereby he would be named to the place, if, and when, a vacancy exists.

Today Gov. Pinchot denied he intended to appoint P. S. Stahlnecker, formerly his secretary and now a Public Service Commissioner, to a Senate seat.

Exhaustion Laid To Presidency By Coolidge

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—Twenty-four hours before his death, former President Calvin Coolidge sat in his office in Northampton, Mass., and told a caller that he was very tired, very tired.

The caller was Charles B. Hayes, field director for the American Foundation for the Blind. Today he said:

"Mr. Coolidge said he was worn out. He said the responsibilities of the presidency had exhausted him more than anyone knew.

"'I am not a well man,' he told me. I was inexpressibly shocked by his appearance. I could have stayed longer, but an inner voice told me I should go."

JAP, CHINESE ARMIES RENEW FIGHTING

Reinforcements Sent To Aid Defending Forces

SHANGHAI, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Two days of quiet on the Shanhaikwan battlefront was broken today with a renewal of hostilities between Chinese and Japanese forces.

Rifle fire broke out on the battle line extending from one mile west of Shanhaikwan to near the limits of the city of Chinwangtao, seaport several miles southwest of Shanhaikwan. The opposing armies faced each other from opposite banks of the Aashih River.

Driven from the walled city of Shanhaikwan, China's northern railway exit, the Chinese were reported bringing up reinforcements from Tientsin on the railroad, which passes through Chingwangtao. Japanese warships were gathering in Chingwangtao harbor, and today additional Japanese troops and ammunition were reported brought into Shanhaikwan from Manchuria.

Further operations on the scale of the terrific three-day bombardment and street battle for possession of Shanhaikwan early this week were believed indicated by the troop concentrations.

BLUE LAW TEST NEXT WEEK

HARRISBURG, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—It will be city against country as state legislators start to battle next week over repeal of the state prohibition enforcement act and the Sunday observance laws.

The Philadelphia, Allegheny and anthracite region delegations line up behind both proposals, with many rural legislators on the other side or undecided.

Proponents may have their measures approved in the House at an early date, but Republican Senators have indicated their belief that such matters as economy and employment relief should come first.

The Governor in his message did not reveal his attitude on Snyder-Armstrong act repeal or blue law modification.

This morning the weather map shows a well defined storm center over Northern North Dakota, lowest barometer reported, 29.28 inches, at Devils Lake, and high pressure over the lower Appalachian range, and over the plateau section. The low pressure is attended by mostly clear skies on the southern side and cloudy weather with light snowfall on the northern [illegible]. Temperatures are considerably above normal. The eastern high produced a rapid drop in temperature over the Atlantic states, but there was no freezing weather except over Western Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia.

Coolidge Liked Amherst Song, Says Saudek

Calvin Coolidge liked heart songs and oratorio music — the songs of church and home—but it took his college song, the stirring "Lord Jeffrey Amherst," to draw the presidential applause.

So Victor Saudek, conductor of the Saudek Little Symphony Orchestra, said today, as he recalled a banquet in the Carnegie Institute foyer in 1927, when President and Mrs. Coolidge were feted at the opening of the Carnegie International Art Exhibit.

Saudek was informed that he was to play at the dinner. The musician said:

"I wrote Washington to ascertain what music the President favored. I found that he liked sweet music, but that stirring marches excited him and pleased him most. My men made a special arrangement of the Amherst marching song and Mrs. Coolidge's favorite, 'Beautiful Lake Champlain.' When the party entered the foyer, a trumpet and drums in the balcony played the salute, then the orchestra played 'Hail to the Chief' and the 'Star Spangled Banner.'"

"During the course of the dinner, the orchestra played. When the Amherst song had ended the President smiled and applauded. Samuel Harden Church asked that it be repeated. This was true, also, of Mrs. Coolidge's favorite, which my orchestra repeated.

"In his own way, the President liked music. I have a comment of his, which follows:

"'Music is the art directly representative of democracy. If the best music is brought to the people there need be no fear of their ability to appreciate it.'"

SURPRISE ANNOUNCEMENTS KEPT NEWSPAPERMEN ALWAYS ON ALERT

(Editor's Note: This reminiscent account of high spots in Calvin Coolidge's administration was written by an Associated Press staff writer, who knew the thirtieth President intimately, accompanying him on many of his trips over the country, including the celebrated 1927 vacation in the Black Hills when Mr. Coolidge issued his "I do not choose to run" statement.)

By FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON

(Copyright, 1933, by Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Calvin Coolidge died with the same suddenness and surprise that put drama into so much of his comparatively uneventful five and a half years' rule in the White House.

His sense of the dramatic was exemplified strikingly in the droll manner in which he handed newspapermen a slip of paper in the summer of 1927 at his Black Hills (S. D.) home announcing "I do not chose to run for President in 1928."

A man of unusually regular habits and of known convictions on government philosophy, he got a "kick" out of life in startling announcements that kept newspapermen and politicians always on the alert.

Recognized after a few months in the White House as one of the most astute political leaders of a generation, his Black Hills announcement leaving the door open for the 1928 Republican nomination remains today a moot pronouncement, subject to spirited debate as to whether he did or did not expect another nomination then or later.

ANSWER LOST

But the characteristic that gave him the name of "Silent Cal" takes that answer to the grave. He never discussed with anyone his innermost feelings. Intimate friends will say he had no other thought than permanent retirement from the White House when another term was in his grasp. Others just as intimate will say he merely opened the door for opposition and would have accepted if drafted.

From the early morning of August 3, 1923, when he took the oath of presidency from his father, a notary public, by the lamplight of the Plymouth, Vt., home to succeed the dead Warren Harding, the unusual seemed to surround the very normal activity of sandy-haired Calvin Coolidge.

Less than a year later his life in the White House was inexpressibly saddened by the death of his 16-year-old son, Calvin, Jr. The boy, just returning from school, contracted a poison from a blister on the foot received in playing tennis.

Within a few days he died at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington. President and Mrs. Coolidge watching the vain efforts of physicians at the bedside.

COMPOSURE BROKEN

The composure and reserve of Calvin Coolidge broke then only in the intimacy of the family. And then only very briefly. With Mrs. Coolidge and their son, John, he escorted the body of Calvin to the Plymouth (Vt.) Cemetery, where he later buried his father and where he will be laid to rest.

Coolidge had a keen sense of curiousness and humor. The latter was displayed in pithy declarations rather than in story telling or in laughter at stories of others. His curiousness led him to know just what was going on around him at all times. An early riser, he frequently arrived at the executive office before the staff and he was found oftentimes looking over the mail on the desks of secretaries that otherwise would not reach his attention.

Every day about 5 o'clock Coolidge would leave the White House for a walk that invariably led down F street, one of the main business thoroughfares of Washington. He could not pass a crowd until he had discovered the reason for its collection. The store window displays stopped him frequently.

LIFE OF REGULARITY

His life was one of extreme regularity as was his politics. Almost no situation of national affairs could interfere with the nap of one or two hours he would take every afternoon after luncheon. His morning walks were a routine part of the day. Night time found him invariably at home.

Coolidge must study a decision for some time. He occasionally consulted a very few on some situations, but his announcements always came with a surprise that showed he alone had reached the decision. If an important vacancy was to be created in the government he invariably had the successor selected by the time the announcement was made and the usual rush of politicians for jobs was avoided.

The day he made known the resignation of Charles Evans Hughes as Secretary of State he announced the appointment of Frank B. Kellogg as the new Secretary of State, for example.

He played no favorites with newspapermen and he seemed to take a pleasure in upsetting some of their guesses. Before Coolidge decided on his summer vacation in 1927 there was considerable speculation where he would go. The newspapermen finally were in general agreement on guessing at Colorado Springs, Col. About the time Coolidge heard of this he announced a decision on a lodge in the Black Hills of South Dakota, 34 miles from the nearest town.

HARDING ANNIVERSARY

Then the spectacular story of his famous Black Hills announcement. It was the fourth anniversary of the death of President Harding. At the regular press conference that morning, Mr. Coolidge said in an ordinary tone of voice:

"If you will come back at noon I will have a statement that may be of some interest."

There was plenty of speculation about what this statement would be but none whatever that he would be putting aside a presidential nomination so sure to be his. Just before noon, Everett Sanders, his secretary, emerged from the presidential office in the school building at Rapid City and went to Irwin Geiser, personal stenographer of Mr. Coolidge. He returned with typewritten slips of paper to the office and newspapermen were called in. The President walked over to the end of his desk and asked the men to file by, handing each the folded slip.

DEMANDED FAIRNESS

Coolidge always insisted on fairness. He had Sanders keep the door shut until all had received the announcement and could leave together. It was a wild scramble that ensued. The speculation in political circles over the interpretation of the concise declaration was even wilder. Just before Congress met that winter, Coolidge informed a meeting of the Republican national committee that his statement meant what it said and he must be taken at his word.

It was then that Herbert Hoover, a member of the Coolidge cabinet, went actively and openly into the race. There was not the slightest indication, however, that Coolidge favored Hoover. In fact, it has always been regarded as significant that Charles Curtis, then Republican leader of the Senate and perhaps closest of those in Washington to the President, announced his candidacy for the nomination after a week-end trip with Coolidge on the Mayflower yacht.

Only the previous spring, the President had jolted everyone when he took occasion at a press conference to deny reports that Secretary Kellogg was going to resign and that Secretary Hoover would be switched from the Commerce to the State Department post by adding that if Kellogg did resign Mr. Hoover would not be given the place.

LOYAL TO HOOVER

A few weeks later when the Mississippi River went on a rampage and spread devastation along the valley, Mr. Coolidge appointed Hoover to direct the gigantic task of relief. Whatever his feelings toward Hoover, Mr. Coolidge gave him the most loyal support after his nomination in 1928 and again in 1932.

Schooled in politics from the City Council days of Northampton, Mass., up through the State Legislature and Governorship to the vice presidency and finally the White House, Coolidge was the strictest of party regulars.

Regarded lightly by the national political leaders when he went into the White House in 1923, he was given the nomination on the first ballot 10 months later without even announcing his candidacy to succeed himself in 1924. He defeated John W. Davis, the Democrat, and Senator Robert M. La Follette, the Progressive, in 1924, and made only two trips from Washington in the campaign—one to Plymouth for a vacation.

Never much of an outdoor man, Coolidge took to fishing in the closing days of his presidential life. He used the presidential yacht, the Mayflower, for week-end cruises down the Potomac River, but always had the ship anchor for the nights, oftentimes just outside the city. He used the Mayflower also during his first summer away from the White House, at Swampscott, Mass.

'Silent Man' Really Myth, Secretary Declares

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—An almost endless stream of Coolidge lore poured out upon the capital with the news of the former President's death. All who knew him unburdened themselves of little known tales of the wit and warmth of heart possessed by the man who won fame by his silence and undemonstrative exterior.

Some told their anecdotes with tears in their eyes, others with a whimsical smile as they recalled some prankish mood, or a well turned joke by the former President. But few who knew him could resist the urge to tell a story.

The whimsical stories were in the majority for almost everyone Mr. Coolidge came in contact with had some evidence of his humor while few indeed were allowed to see the depth of emotion to which the most intimate attested.

Edward T. Clark, his secretary for eight years, pronounced the Coolidge silence a myth.

"He could talk, always, with the utmost freedom to those in whom he had confidence."

Many newspapermen recalled his answer when some years back he was asked what he thought of then current attacks on the private life of George Washington. He turned from his desk, walked to a window which looked upon the tall white shaft to the south of the White House. He smiled as he turned and said:

"Well, I see the monument's still there."

Calvin Coolidge's frugality was a by-word out there were times when newspapermen found him in an expansive mood. During the Republican convention which nominated him for the vice presidency, a group of reporters waited in his apartment at a Boston hotel for the outcome.

Eventually the flash came and Coolidge called them into his private office where he and Mrs. Coolidge greeted them.

"Well, boys, I think we ought to have something on this occasion. Have a smoke on me."

The nominee opened the right-hand drawer of the desk and brought out a box of choice cigars. The cigars were pure Havanas.

The "boys" puffed on their cigars and finally Coolidge broke the silence. He said:

"Well, I think I'll have a smoke myself."

Men who served with him in the State Legislature told this one:

While Mr. Coolidge was presiding over the State Senate, a heated argument arose between two of its members and terminated with one of the legislators telling the other to "Go to ...."

Without changing his expression or composure, the former President replied:

It was at the laying of a cornerstone, Mr. Coolidge turned the customary spadeful of loam and then stood silent while the gathering waited for him to speak. When he said nothing the master of ceremonies asked him if he would favor with a few words.

Mr. Coolidge looked at the spadeful of earth he had just turned over and said:

"That's a fine fishworm."

Whereupon he turned and walked to his waiting car.

One Sabbath after Mr. Coolidge had returned from church, where he heard a sermon, Mrs. Coolidge asked him what the preacher had talked about. Said Mr. Coolidge:

"Sin."

"What did the preacher say about it?"

"He was against it."

While he was a college student he returned home for a holiday and took a girl to a party. On the return trip, made in a sleigh, he took his friend to his father's house for coffee.

His father asked him if he had enjoyed himself, whereupon the man who was to be President answered:

"I had a fine time, father—I didn't dance."

When the Coolidges were living in a rented house in Northampton a reporter asked the President if it was true that he paid only $35 rent. Mr. Coolidge replied:

"Don't print that. It's really only $32 and he might raise it on me."

Among the stories retold today was the occasion and the manner of his destroying the "White House spokesman"—mythical character created by capital newspapermen to avoid direct quotation of the President.

Ex-President Often Played Jokes on Friends

At a press conference on a dull summer's day when news was at a premium, Mr. Coolidge proceeded to denounce this ghost of the mansion. The reporters scribbled busily. A front page story!

Quite evidently aware of their enthusiasm, Mr. Coolidge waited till they turned to leave, then with a twinkle in his eye:

"Gentlemen, what I have said is for your own information, and not for publication."

There was no obituary for the "White House spokesman."

Toward the close of his last term as President a reporter asked Mr. Coolidge what he intended to do when his term expired. He answered:

"I'm going back to Vermont and whittle for a year or two."

Washington newspapermen recall with consternation and gratitude a visit which Mr. Cooledge paid, unheralded, to the White House press room a few months before his retirement from office.

The purpose of the call was an inspection of the room preparatory to drawing up estimates for enlarging it and making it more comfortable for the newspapermen.

He found one reporter, sound asleep, chair tilted against the wall. Two others were playing chess and another was bawling out his office with the language customary to such moments.

With an eye on the drowsy reporter Mr. Coolidge remarked:

"Well, it seems comfortable enough here."

His inclination to hark back to the homely things, and express himself in the language of the ordinary man, even when he himself was a conspicuous figure in events, lingered in the last remark he was heard to make in Washington on the day he left the White House.

Rain had drenched the crowds at the Hoover inauguration. It persisted as the retiring President and Mrs. Coolidge entered their train at Union Station, bound for Northampton. Looking out through the spray-streaked windows of his coach, he said to his wife:

STAY SOLVENT, COOLIDGE TIP

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Bruce Barton, the writer, recalled last night in a radio address an incident of his first interview with Calvin Coolidge, then Governor of Massachusetts. Barton said:

"I asked: 'Governor, how is it that you have been able to stay in public life all these years and hold public office when you have no money?'

"His answer was in just two words. 'I'm solvent.' He took care to keep solvent.

"As Lieut. Governor he had been living in one room in the old Adams house for which he paid $1 a day. When he was elected Governor, Frank Stearns said to him, 'Now you must rent a house and bring Mrs. Coolidge down from Northampton. The Governor must not live in a room in a hotel. He must have a home where he can entertain.'

"Coolidge said nothing, but when he was inaugurated Governor he stopped living in one room in the Adams house at $1 a day. He took two rooms in the Adams house at $2 a day."

COLLEGE LIFE RECALLED

AMHERST, Mass., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The picture of Calvin Coolidge the student was recalled today by Amherst College classmates of the former President.

As an undergraduate the man who was to become the thirtieth President of the United States was a keen student, a fine debater and close follower of sports.

The friendship of Calvin Coolidge and Dwight Morrow was recalled. The two were opposite in disposition—Coolidge silent and thoughtful and Morrow outspoken and brilliant. When the class of '95 voted on which of its members was the most likely to succeed in later life, nearly everyone voted for Morrow—but Morrow voted for Coolidge.

Capital Reporters Pay Their Tribute

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Newspapermen assigned to the White House during the administration of Calvin Coolidge today dispatched a message of sympathy to his widow, saying "the life of every correspondent among us has been better for his examples."

NATION'S LEADERS MOURN PASSING OF COOLIDGE; PAY HIGH TRIBUTE

Associated Press.

The world's great men wrote an epitaph of acclaim for Calvin Coolidge in a great outpouring of sorrowful expressions at his passing.

President Hoover, his successor-elect, Franklin D. Roosevelt, cabinet men, governors, heads of foreign nations and their ambassadors, educators, ministers, heads of great industrial and business enterprises, all attested by their words to the esteem in which the former President was held. President Hoover, proclaiming a 30-day period of national mourning, said:

"His name had become in his own lifetime a synonym for sagacity and wisdom. His temperateness in speech and his orderly deliberation in action bespoke the profound sense of responsibility which guided his conduct of the public business."

Franklin D. Roosevelt said:

"I am inexpressibly shocked at the news of Mr. Coolidge's death. The nation suffers a great loss in his sudden and untimely passing."

DAVIS TRIBUTE

John W. Davis, who opposed Coolidge for the presidency in 1924:

"Those who differed from him politically never questioned his integrity, patriotism or devotion to public duty; and friends and foes alike must regret that the country is deprived in these critical times of his cool and experienced judgment."

Alfred E. Smith:

"I had a strong admiration for him. Since he left Washington I have been pleasantly associated with him. I am deeply shocked and deeply grieved."

Charles G. Dawes, Vice President under Coolidge:

Vice President Curtis:

"The nation has lost one of its strongest men—a man who was liked and whose abilities were appreciated by the peoples of all the civilized world."

CAPITAL MOURNS

Even as this was being said, similar remarks by the hundreds were coming from all parts of the capital.

In a formal statement, Speaker Garner announced his regret and said:

"While we differed politically, I held great admiration for his tenacity of purpose and the high character he displayed as chief executive of our nation."

Loss of a "great statesman who devoted his life to the public service" was mourned by Secretary Mills, of the Treasury, and Secretary Doak, of the Labor Department, predicted "the country will miss him from the councils of those who meet to give consideration to the needs of the state and its people."

Secretary Stimson, of the State Department, described Mr. Coolidge as "a most thoughtful and considerate chief."

LAUDED BY HUGHES

Chief Justice Hughes said:

"The country has sustained an irreparable loss in the death of Calvin Coolidge. His unimpeachable integrity, the extraordinary range of his political experience, and above all his remarkable sagacity in dealing with public problems made him one of the nation's chief re serves—a national asset of estimable value."

Gen. John J. Pershing:

"He stood for all th[illegible] things in American life. His faith in America was su[illegible]e. He was a great America[illegible] and will go down in history a[illegible]e of our great Presidents."

Patrick Cardinal Hayes, Archbishop of New York:

"The nation justly mourns the passing of Calvin Coolidge. Universal sorrow gives expression to our abiding faith in the chief executive who in his day served faithfully and ably. His memory is blessed because in exalted office, he did not forget his God, loved his country and was devoted to his fellowmen."

FOREIGN TRIBUTES

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada:

"Canadians will associate themselves with the citizens of the United States in sorrow at the sudden passing of one who occupied the foremost position in the gift of the people of our neighboring republic and the beneficial influence of whose life extended far beyond the confines of his own country."

Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain:

"I am deeply shocked to hear the news and tender my heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. Coolidge and the people of the United States."

Former Premier Laval, of France:

"I bow before the memory of ex-President Coolidge and participate in the sorrow of American citizens over the death of a man who led the nation during seven years."

3 Coolidge Deaths Within 8 Years

BOSTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The death of Calvin Coolidge today at Northampton was the third in the Coolidge family in the past eight years.

Calvin, Jr., his younger son, died July 7, 1924, at Walter Reed Hospital, Washington; John C. Coolidge, father of the former President, died at the family homestead, Plymouth, Vt., March 18, 1926.

Pittsburghers Pay Tribute To Coolidge

Flags on public buildings and business houses here were placed at half staff today in memory of former President Coolidge, as officials and civic leaders paid tribute to his greatness.

Sessions in Criminal and County courts were adjourned yesterday out of respect. Speaking of the former President, Attorney E. G. Coll, in Criminal Court, referred to him as "a brother lawyer."

Judge Frank P. Patterson, presiding in the same court, said:

"The death of Calvin Coolidge is a distinct loss to the country at a time when patience and calmness, so well exemplified in his public life, are required more than at any other period in the history of the nation."

Mayor Charles H. Kline said:

"The nation has lost one of its greatest men. He was a shining example of the advantage of true Americanism."

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern said:

"His death is a great personal loss to the people of the United States because of the wise counsel he has been able to give."

Host to Mr. Coolidge during visits to Pittsburgh in 1921 and 1927, Samuel Harden Church, president of Carnegie Institute, said:

Among other expressions were: W. L. Mellon:

"A large number of American people believed more in the judgment of Calvin Coolidge than in that of any other citizen, in or out of public life."

District Attorney Andrew T. Park:

A Rex Flinn, chairman, Western Pennsylvania Branch, National Economy League:

"As the nation mourns the passing of a former national leader, members of the National Economy League see in his death the departure of one who was instrumental in creating this organization. The sane attitude toward government that motivated his public life has been engendered by him into the league. We shall strive to carry on those ideals."

"The death of Mr. Coolidge leaves a void in the public life of the nation at a time when it most needs the conservative counsel, the considered judgment and the high ideals of honest devotion to the commonwealth that marked his activities."

President Paul von Hindenburg, of Germany, in a cablegram to President Hoover:

"I beg to express to Your Excellency my deepliest felt condolence because of former President Coolidge's demise."

PRIEST PUSHES 'JOBOCRACY'

Father Cox says that "technocracy" is not the problem of the future. To his way of thinking, "jobocracy" is a more fitting expression for conditions today. Father Cox defines this new word as a "job for every man and a man for every job."

He really believes that there is more sound, practical theory in his "jobocracy" than there is in "technocracy," which he brands as a "trick" word coined by dreamers.

In the meantime Father Cox is not losing sight of his "jobocracy" idea, although, having to give all of his time and energy to the immediate care of the destitute, he finds but little time to work out the problem of jobs. He has plenty of men for the jobs but no jobs for the men. He invites the general public to use his office as a clearing house for help. He can furnish anything from an electrician to an engineer, clerk to chauffeur—in fact, he has dependable men, and women, too, for any kind of a job—part time or full time.

MRS. COOLIDGE'S COURAGE TOLD BY FRIEND

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 6.—Calvin Coolidge was weighed down by the depression of the times for many weeks before his death, although his worries apparently had not affected his health, it was revealed today.

His was not the light-hearted nature that threw off concern easily, and troublous affairs of the nation and the world caused him serious distress.

FRIEND TALKS

Mrs. Walter L. Stevens, wife of Northampton attorney, who with her husband was one of the last guests entertained by the former President and Mrs. Coolidge, told International News Service in an exclusive interview that Mr. Coolidge had seemed affected by the difficulties of the times. She said:

"Of course we all are worried, but with his better understanding of the situation Mr. Coolidge was even more affected than ordinary people. The last time I saw him he looked well, but he had aged considerably in the past year.

"I walked home from church with Mrs. Coolidge Sunday, and we all had lunch at the house. Then, while Mr. Coolidge had his nap, Mrs. Coolidge and I worked a jig-saw puzzle. There wasn't an inkling of what was to come at that time."

COMFORTED BY SON

But terrific as the shock was, Grace Coolidge stood it. Mrs. Stevens spent most of the afternoon following discovery of the tragedy with her friend, as did Mrs. Reuben Hills, Mrs. Coolidge's most intimate companion. Mrs. Stevens said Mrs. Coolidge was "wonderful." She said:

"She hasn't been crying. She seems dazed, stunned by the blow. She has not broken down, and she won't break down. She was this way when the boy died."

Mrs. Coolidge leans today on her remaining son, John Coolidge, who, with his wife, Florence, arrived late yesterday afternoon. They sat together in the wide room on the first floor of "The Beeches," the room whose windows still bear Christmas wreaths, and planned a simple funeral for an essentially simple man.

Until John's arrival Mrs. Coolidge made no decisions. He is "the man of the family" now.

OPPOSES POMP

The only wish the former President's widow expressed was that the ceremonies connected with his burial be without pomp, as he would have liked.

Yet she knew—this Northampton housewife who has reveled in her small-town role since her return from Washington—that friends and neighbors would wish to pay their respects to him who was the most distinguished man in their midst.

She was conscious of the sympathy that flowed toward her great dark house behind its stone wall. Only yesterday morning she was down town with her market-bag, laying in the day's supplies, chatting with the townsfolk. She realized the warmth of the affection in which she and her husband were held by tradespeople, policemen, Smith College professors, and other local folk. She did not try to shut them out.

GRACIOUS IN TRAGEDY

All day telephone calls, telegrams and personal visits were received by Mrs. Coolidge. She was as gracious in tragedy as she had been in White House splendor.

Not that the meaning of it all penetrated keenly. She moved as if in a dream. As Mrs. Stevens expressed it: "She will realize her loss later." The painful force of the blow has kept her from collapse by its sheer unexpectedness. It has even kept tears from her eyes while her friends' lids are red with weeping.

COOLIDGE DEATH STIRS MELLON

S. S. MAJESTIC, en route to England, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon, on his way back to his post in London, made the following comment on the death of Calvin Coolidge:

"Word of the death of Mr. Coolidge brings to me a distinct feeling of personal loss as I have learned to have a high esteem and affection for him and admiration of the sterling qualities of his character and goodness of heart.

"Coming in the vigor of his activity and influence, the country sustains indeed a grievous loss. The impress of his example and the wide and deep influence of his acts and writings will remain a valued heritage with the American people."

Coolidge Bootblack Weeps Over Death

BOSTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—A tear rolled down the face of Levi Reavis when he learned of the death of Calvin Coolidge whose shoes he used to shine.

Reavis, veteran Negro attache at the State House, shined the former President's shoes during the years he was a representative, senator and governor.

Historic Phila. Bell To Toll for Coolidge

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—Historic Independence Hall will echo the dull bong of the bell in the hall tower during funeral services for former President Calvin Coolidge tomorrow.

Special permission to toll the tower bell was granted by City Council. The famous old Liberty Bell in the hall will not be tolled.

THE LAST SUMMONS

Once in the night his father came to him,
His age-worn father, testament in hand,
And laid on him, amid the lamplight dim,
The countless burdens of a mighty land.
Out of the rugged hills of home he strode
To carry on beneath a nation's load.

And now his heavenly father comes to him
To lay a soothing hand upon his brow
And lift his spirit from the shadows grim
Into the light. There is no burden now.
His toil is done, his care and sorrow cease,
And may his rugged soul abide in peace.

GEORGE E. PHAIR.

Friendly Greeting, Coolidge's Last Word

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 6.—(INS.)—The man who spoke last to ex-President Calvin Coolidge was Robert S. Smith, gardener and caretaker of "The Beeches," the Coolidge home. Smith said:

"At 10 minutes to 12, Mr. Coolidge came into the cellar where I was fixing the furnace. He said 'hello.' That was all he said but you could feel him friendly-like when he said it. Then he walked around the cellar and went up stairs."

Commerce Chamber Eulogizes Coolidge

Tribute to Calvin Coolidge has been paid by the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce in these words:

"In the passing of Calvin Coolidge, America has lost one of its most sincere and patriotic sons—patriotic in the largest sense of the word, for he loved his country unselfishly and was devoted to all its interests. The Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce joins in the national mourning and testifies its sincere regret at this great public loss."

COOLIDGE PLEA SAVED LIFE

BOSTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Miss Mary E. Prendergast, United States deputy clerk of the Federal District Court and head of the bankruptcy division, deeply affested by the death of Calvin Coolidge, revealed today a message from Mr. Coolidge once had been the inspiration that caused her to live.

When Mr. Coolidge was Governor of Massachusetts, Miss Prendergast was so ill that famous specialists despaired of her recovering.

Gov. Coolidge called on the phone with the message:

"Tell her we all love her, that I want her to live and all her friends want her to live."

Miss Prendergast was given the message and began to rally within an hour. The warmth of the message was an inspiration, she said, and she recovered.

Friends said Miss Prendergast had been courteous and helpful to Mr. Coolidge when he was a young lawyer, and throughout his later life he never forgot her many acts of kindness.

HOOVER GOING TO FUNERAL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—A special train carrying the President and Mrs. Hoover along with outstanding leaders in government service, will leave the national capital about midnight to take them to the funeral of Calvin Coolidge at Northampton, Mass., tomorrow morning.

The list of those who will accompany the President has not yet been drawn up at the White House, but among them will be Chief Justice Hughes, and probably a majority of the members of Mr. Hoover's cabinet, some of whom were intimate with the late President during his administration.

No decision has been reached as to whether the President and Mrs. Hoover will continue to Plymouth, Vt., where burial of the late President will take place, but Mr. Hoover feels that this should be a private ceremony and he probably will return directly to Washington.

An immediate adjournment of the Senate until Monday was decided on today in order that many Senators may arrange to attend the funeral.

Speaker Garner announced that the House would not meet tomorrow, out of respect for the former President.

U. S. TRADE HIT BY JAPANESE MATCHES

Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—America's $100,000,000 match industry employing more than 25,000 men and women is facing a complete shutdown unless action is taken to curb the importation of the Japanese product.

This warning was sounded here by Ned G. Begle, of New York, representing the American match industry, as a sequel to a story published here Monday disclosing that Japanese match exports to his country increased upward of 42 per cent in the last six months of 1932. Begle said:

"The entire American match industry is 100 per cent behind the Buy American campaign. Every raw material required in the manufacture of matches is native to and common in this country, including all the 19 different kinds of chemicals, the wood and the paper, so that there is absolutely no reason why foreign matches should be imported.

CITES BIG IMPORTS

"Yet, notwithstanding this, this country is now importing 6,000,000 gross boxes of safety matches annually, which at present prices means about $5,000,000 worth of business our country is losing.

"But this is only a small portion of the real effect foreign competition has on us. By quoting such unusually low prices here, the foreign manufacturers serve to demoralize our entire domestic market. The buyer is afraid to buy. He feels that if he buys the American product, his neighbor will buy the foreign match and undersell him, so it upsets our entire marketing structure.

"Chicago is one of the principal domestic markets now in this condition.

"By importing 6,000,000 gross boxes of foreign matches, this country is already depriving approximately 4,000 men and women, many of them chemists, skilled mechanics and the like, of their employment. This is where it is felt the worst."

PRODUCT INFERIOR

The following excerpts are from the transcript of a hearing conducted last fall by F. X. A. Eble, United States Commissioner of Customs, concerning the match industry:

"Prior to June, 1932, practically all matches imported from Japan were shipped to Honolulu. In June, shortly after Ivar Kreuger's death, the Swedish match trust lost control of the exporting of matches from Japan; prior to that time, the Swedish trust had restricted the exportation of Japanese matches to the Far East so that the American market could be used for the sale of the Swedish match. Now Japanese manufacturers have been free to export anywhere and are now quoting and shipping in increasing quantities to the United States."

By actual tests, the American matches average from 10.5 to 20.5 per cent in greater resistance to breakage than the foreign product, and the match heads are more firm, permitting easier striking and providing less danger of crushing or scattering sparks when struck.

2 WOMEN, BOY HURT BY AUTOS

Mrs. Canelia Burdette, 26, and Miss Frances O'Brien, 26, both of 5644 Woodmont street, were injured when their automobile collided head-on with another machine driven by Anthony Talarito, 41, of 70 Congress street, at Fifth and Morewood avenues yesterday, according to police.

Both women were taken to Homeopathic Hospital. Talarito was arrested on a reckless driving charge.

William Graham, 13, of 503 Center street, East Pittsburgh, was in Braddock General Hospital today with injuries suffered when he was struck by a truck driven, it was reported, by John Zubal, of 1306 Bell avenue, North Braddock, in Main street, Bessemer Terrace. Zubal took the boy to the hospital.

Parole Watchman In Crossing Death

W. T. Blackford, watchman at the Dixon street crossing of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Homestead, was paroled for a year when he pleaded guilty in Criminal Court before Visiting Judge A. E. Swoyer to involuntary manslaughter. He was indicted in connection with the death of Andrew Posolka, 23, 1219 Ann street, Homestead, killed when a freight train struck his automobile on the crossing. Blackford testified it was raining and he was busy inside the watchman's shanty when an unscheduled freight train passed, and thus did not give warning of its approach.

Albert C. Horner, for many years a resident of North Strabane Township, Washington County, by his will probated here, leaves an estate of $10,000 to his six children equally.

Louise Schiffler, of McKeesport, left an estate valued at $11,000. To his sister, Lizzie Eberline, of Glassmere, he bequeaths $10,000 and leaves the remainder to three grandnieces in equal shares.

Exhibition of Famous Spang Paintings Opens

TWO BALL DRESSES IN THE SPANG EXHIBIT AT THE MUSEUM

Two of three dresses in the Spang exhibit. One is lavender brocaded, trimmed in pink and silver and in three pieces, the second striped brocade in two pieces. A Sun-Telegraph picture.

Other Art Objects Also Displayed At Institute

By PENELOPE REDD

Carnegie Institute presents an exhibition of 19 paintings and about an equal number of art objects bequeathed by the late Miss Rosalie Spang. Miss Spang was the daughter of Charles Frederick Spang, a local pre-Carnegie industrialist, who was interested in Etruscan antiquities and who contributed his archeological finds to the Carnegie Museum. Miss Rosalie Spang continued her father's interest in the local institution by the bequest now exhibited.

Miss Redd

The exhibition appeals with mute poignancy for a room appropriate to the period rather than the current uprooted presentation detached from its background. The objects suggest that the elegant drawing-room with the typical gentleman's collection of the sixties be reconstructed.

Fans, enamels, ivories and crystals were cherished in cabinets. On the walls hung canvases by the popular men of Munich who painted incidents embracing the homely, romantic and historic. Detached as aesthetic objects, the gift has but little significance at present.

Employing one of the unemployed architects to design a sympathetic ensemble with the paintings arranged in relation to other furnishments of the period, would portray a mode of living. Three costumes of brocades, illusion draperies, and real lace are even at hand.

Among the American paintings are two portraits by Sully, one of Miss Spang as a child and the other of her mother, that should be welcome historic additions to the Institute's collections. An American genre by T. Matteson, "Sugaring Off," which illustrates the maple sugar festival, has a sentimental charm. The objects will be on view through January 22.

G. O. P. SPENDS $2,670,652

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The Republican National Committee reported to Congress today that it had spent $2,670,652 from June 1, 1932, to the end of the campaign.

This compared with $1,708,000 reported earlier in the week by the Democratic National Committee, and $6,256,111 the Republicans spent in the 1928 election.

The G. O. P. report, filed with South Trimble, clerk of the House of Representatives, showed the Republican committee ended the year with a deficit of $195,100. This, however, did not include broadcasting charges of $19,000 not yet approved nor radio bills of $3,308 for talks by President Hoover and Secretary Stimson and paid for by Stimson.

In the report, Henry Ford also was shown to have paid a radio bill of $25,000. Numerous big donors were enumerated, including Harvey S. Firestone, of Akron, who gave $20,396; John D. Rockefeller, of New York, $15,000; Secretary Stimson, $5,335; Secretary Mills, $1,728, and the Pennsylvania Republican Ways and Means Committee, $30,494.

U. S. Planes Greet British Warship

GALVESTON, Tex., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The British cruiser Danae arrived here today for a four-day goodwill visit. A flotilla of yachts escorted the warship to a pier, while planes of the Third Attack Group at Fort Crockett soared overhead. The Coast Guard cutter Saranac fired a salute of 21 guns.

Four Policemen Talk Themselves Out of Tags

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Maybe it was because they knew all the alibis, but anyway four motorcycle policemen talked themselves out of a fire plug parking jam yesterday.

They did just what the common folks do—hunted up the patrolman on the beat and put it up to him. It was a unique conference, for the patrolman knew all the questions and the motorcycle cops had heard all the answers. Finally the patrolman grinned and said he'd think it over. He didn't book the cases.

WIFE FORGIVES CONTRITE ATES

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—A reconciliation between Roscoe Ates, film comedian, and his wife, the former Clara Adrian, vaudeville actress, neared completion today as Ates said "I was all wrong" and Miss Adrian announced she was willing to "forgive my contrite husband."

The couple parted Wednesday, the stuttering comedian moving his belongings out of the family home. Miss Adrian said they quarreled over what transpired at a Hollywood New Years Eve party.

The actress, although willing to forgive Ates, said she wanted to know what caused him to say she was jealous of him and nagged him all the time. Ates explained:

"I was wrong about that, too, and should not have said it."

Physician Honored For Epidemic Battle

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The Atlantic City Kiwanis Club has chosen Dr. Walter B. Stewart, Jr., pediatrician, as the outstanding citizen of the resort city during 1932.

The award was based on Dr. Stewart's efforts in combatting the outbreak of infantile paralysis in this city last summer. Dr. Stewart administered daily to stricken children in the Municipal Hospital and finally he and his three children contracted the malady in September. Dr. Stewart is still recuperating. His three children have recovered.

Doris Kenyon Wins Exemption in Suit

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—A Superior Court jury had decided today Doris Kenyon Sills, film actress and widow of Milton Sills, actor, does not have to pay in the $10,000 promissory note suit brought against her and Edwin Carewe, film director, but that Carewe must.

Carewe was held responsible for a note he and Mrs. Sills signed as guarantors for Cornelius Cole, motor dealer, and grandson of the late Senator Cornelius Cole.

GARLAND TO ASK 'BUY AMERICAN' COUNCIL VOTE

Robert Garland, past president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, president of the Garland Manufacturing Company and a Councilman, will present a resolution to Council Monday asking it to pledge itself to "Buying American."

Reciting a few of the foreign-made articles that compete with Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania industries, and urging that citizens join in putting over the "Buy American" campaign, Garland said:

"It is very gratifying to note the energetic manner in which the Sun-Telegraph is heralding to our people the subject 'Buy American.' In these days of stress nothing could be more timely when so many of our people all over this land are unemployed.

"Plate glass and window glass come from Belgium; steel bars and other structural material is coming to our shores from various European countries, menacing our Western Pennsylvania industries; while the factories of New England are experiencing competition, not only in textiles and fabrics, but also in shoes made in England on American machinery and low English labor cost. Coal and cement are also coming in. What is not coming in?

"Every purchase of these foreign goods, whether staples in our manufactured lines or other articles of all classes and descriptions, is a death blow to the American mine, mill and factory, the American mechanic and the American laborer.

"Of course, everyone clearly understands that this is all brought about by the exceedingly low wages paid for European labor. Bad enough to contemplate this, but now Japan, with its very much lower than European wages, again appears on the horizon. Common labor in Japan is paid about 12 cents per day, and skilled labor less than 30 cents.

"They deliver goods to our Pacific Coast seaboard at a transportation cost very much lower than will obtain on the general run of American products, mostly manufactured in the zone of industrial activity east of the Mississippi River.

"Some years ago Japan started shipping us in cargo lots baseball bats such as American boys use in amateur play.

"It would seem to me that this is the time to 'BUY AMERICAN.' Citizens and taxpayers should join together in a mighty movement and show their patriotism by refusing to purchase anything but American-made goods, whether they be the smallest article or the largest staple. In carrying out this policy we cannot be accused of insularity; the barriers are up against our goods in European countries."

IMPORTS HURT PITTSBURGH INDUSTRIES

Steel, glass, coal and coke—Pittsburgh's outstanding industrial products on which a majority of the workers of the district depend for a living—are being vitally affected by increasing competition of foreign products, made by labor paid in depreciated European currencies. This represents the composite declaration of leaders in each of these industries.

When questioned as to the need for increased tariffs on imports to equalize the advantage secured by other countries whose currencies have depreciated, these industrial leaders were unanimous in their indorsement of plans for greater protection as proposed by William Randolph Hearst.

The outstanding figures in these industries who declare higher tariffs are needed to protect the jobs and wage scales of Pittsburgh workers are E. R. Crawford, chairman and president of the McKeesport Tin Plate Company; J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company; H. S. Wherrett, president of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, and Frank R. Frost, president of the Superior Steel Corporation.

COUNTY TO RENT OLD CITY HALL TO STATE

Plans will be drawn immediately for remodeling of the old city hall, Smithfield street, so it can be leased to the state as a central office building for state agencies now in different buildings, the County Commissioners have decided.

Director Ray Sprigle of the Property and Supplies Department was instructed to have the plans drawn and advertise for the work.

He said the approximate $30,000 cost for needed improvements would be repaid by the rentals in two years.

RULES FOR EMPLOYES

New employes hired by the county are to be given books of rules and regulations such as large corporations issue for their workers, the Commissioners have decided. It was brought out at yesterday's meeting that many minor accidents have gone unreported, leading to trouble with insurance companies. The booklets will instruct the employes to report all accidents.

Department heads were ordered to report employes who are frequently absent or late for work.

The Commissioners have authorized the National Fireproofing Company to tile a 15-foot section of the Liberty Tubes wall, without cost to the county. A representative of the concern suggested that the county line the walls at a cost of about $100,000. Informed this could not be done, he sought permission to install a sample panel.

BRIDGE BILL SCORNED

Refusing to pay a bill for $1,300 for extras on the West End-North Side Bridge, submitted by the Harrison Construction Company, the Commissioners referred it to the county auditors. A representative of the company said it had the contract to pave the bridge and north approach. He said the company was delayed about six months while the county held up bids on the hand railing, which caused a loss of $1,300.

County accountants waited too long before they deducted discounts of $32.96 on eight bills submitted by the Peoples Service Company for gasoline, the Commissioners were informed. The bills were paid after the discount date. The Commissioners ordered prompt payment of all bills carrying discounts.

STAMPS IN CLUB HOBBY SHOW

Stamp collectors will be represented in the "hobby" show the Westinghouse Club will sponsor, starting tomorrow in the clubhouse, Kenwood and Rebecca streets, Wilkinsburg. This feature will be represented in an exhibit by H. B. James, with the co-operation of the Philatelic Society of Pittsburgh.

Stamps, however, are only a single feature of the exhibits which will include the entire gamut of so-called hobbies. Tropical fish will not be accepted in this long list. The exhibit will be opened to the public—free—tomorrow afternoon, from 2 until 5 o'clock; tomorrow night, from 7 until 10 o'clock; Sunday, from 2 until 5 p. m., and every evening next week from 7 to 10 p. m.

Adam K. Bert, a well-known stamp collector and a member of the Philatelic Society of Pittsburgh, is giving a series of instructive talks on various United States postal issues at the Kaufman store auditorium, Saturday mornings at 10 o'clock. The title of tomorrow's address will be "George Washington Honored in Postage Stamps." Members of the Sun-Telegraph Stamp Collectors and all others interested in stamps, are invited to attend.

Patricia Pitt

A spring-like day arrives for the wedding of a Germantown girl, who will be one of Pittsburgh's young matrons after the honeymoon.

The bride-to-be is Catherine Willson Baton, daughter of the Henry Edgar Batons, of Germantown, Philadelphia, related to our Pittsburgh Batons.

In Ivory Velvet

And she is marrying Frank Scott Sayers, of Pittsburgh, this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Turner Memorial Chapel in Germantown. The bride, who is being given in marriage by her father, is wearing ivory velvet in medieval style, and her bridesmaids, her sister, Betty Baton, and Mrs. Henry E. Baton, Jr., honeydew crepe, trimmed with brown velvet. They are carrying brown velvet muffs and wearing chapeaux to match. Their bouquets are of Talisman roses.

William Sayers is the brother's best man, and Edwin M. Sayers and James B. Sayers, both of Pittsburgh, and Henry C. Baton, Jr., of Germantown, are ushers.

A reception in the home follows the ceremony. In addition to the bridal party those from Pittsburgh at the wedding are the William M. Duffs, the Henry C. Sayers, the George S. Batons and Louise Baton.

Dinner Guests

At a small dinner in their home last evening for 16 guests, the John W. Lawrences entertained Sir Frederick and Lady Whyte, who arrived in Pittsburgh last evening. As you know, Sir Frederick is lecturing before the Friday Morning Club today and after the lecture he and Lady Whyte are attending a luncheon given in their honor at the Twentieth Century Club by the Allegheny County League of Women Voters, with Mrs. George S. Oliver as hostess.

Sir Frederick's uncle, Dr. A. H. F. Barbour, one of Great Britain's most famous surgeons, has been a close friend of the Lawrences for many years, and they've often been his guest when in England.

Another relative of Sir Frederick, James Y. Simpson, of the University of Edinburgh, is a friend of the Lawrences, too. Mr. Simpson, who is a scientist of note, has been here, and has visited the University of Pittsburgh. His uncle, Sir James Simpson, was the discoverer of chloroform.

A new star has risen in the debutante's life. There's to be another event for the debs. Paul Mellon, the handsome, popular son of Ambassador to England Andrew W. Mellon, will give a dinner January 14 in the Mellon's Woodland road place. And the guests will be the debutante set and other friends of the host. Young Mr. Mellon is expected home Monday from New York, where he went to see his father off for London again.

Louise Schleiter, daughter of the Walter F. Schleiters, isn't going to be married in Pittsburgh, we're sorry to hear. She will wed Frank Westcott Horne, of Conway, N. H., son of Mrs. B. Frank Horne and the late Dr. Horne, of Conway, at 5 o'clock, January 14, in the home of her brother, Walter B. Schleiter, of New York.

Most of us are still enjoying, or enduring, the post-holiday lethargy. But gradually we will emerge from this state of desiring to do nothing at all, and by next week we'll be back to normal.

Going to Bermuda

Then some of the more fortunate ones will commence to plan visits to the South, and those staying at home will busy themselves sewing and knitting for the poor.

One of the smart set who'll be leaving next week is attractive Wilhelmina Balken. She's home from New England, where she spent the holidays, and will depart next week with a New York girl for Bermuda.

All the dances aren't over yet. There's to be one this evening for sons and daughters of members and friends of the College Club.

Dance Tonight

The dance will be held in the Arnold School gymnasium, with the Arnold School Orchestra furnishing the music.

Mrs. Kenneth Cunningham is chairman, aided by Mrs. Edgar Cate, Mrs. George Mohler, Mrs. Philip Hodill and Mrs. Clyde Whetzel.

We've just heard that Mrs. Ferdinand W. Bailey, of Sewickley, will be her sister's matron of honor and only attendant at the wedding of Marion La Rue Davis, daughter of the Stephen Davises, of New York and Las Vegas, N. M., and Charles Neale Brown, of Sewickley.

Wedding Attendant

The ceremony's to be January 14 in the Church of the Transfiguration, New York.

A reception and wedding supper in the Hotel Ambassador will follow. For their honeymoon, Mr. Davis and his bride will travel through Mexico, and will be at home after March 1 on Mr. Brown's ranch near Las Vegas.

And I almost forgot to add that Henry Oliver, Jr., will be best man.

Pitt Women to Give Luncheon Tomorrow

The January calendar of the Pitt Women's Association includes a bridge luncheon at the College Club tomorrow; the regular meeting on Wednesday, also in the College Club, with Elmer Kenyon speaking on New York plays, and the readers' group, January 18, in the old club building.

Mary Ellen Zink Married to Navy Man

Announcements have been received in Pittsburgh of the marriage on Saturday afternoon, December 31, of Miss Mary Ellen Zink, of New Brighton, to Ensign Arthur Stafford, of the United States Navy, son of Mrs. A. B. Stafford, of Waynesburg.

The ceremony took place in the home of the bride's father, Earl B. Zink, at 4:45 o'clock, with the Rev. H. A. Welday, of Sewickley, officiating.

The bride wore white satin and carried roses. Miss Alice Gore, as maid of honor, wore poudre bleu satin and carried pink roses. Henry Pharoah, of Indiana, Pa., was the best man.

After the ceremony there was a wedding dinner for 30 guests. Mr. and Mrs. Stafford will be at home in Boston, Mass.

The bride has been in training at the Beaver Valley Hospital. Ensign Stafford is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, class of 1931.

Gossipy Chat

At a recent wedding reception, someone asked the bride's young brother how he enjoyed the wedding.

"Oh, I nearly died laughing. Mother had on new shoes, and they said, 'Cheap, cheap' all the way up the aisle."

At a holiday children's party, all the little boys in turn gave a recitation. When it came to young Bobbie Shortreed, the Glenshaw W. J. Shortreeds' son, he was nonplussed for a minute. Then he rose, and said:

"Ladies and gentlemen: Although none of us voted for Roosevelt nor wanted him, now that he is elected, it's our duty as good citizens to accept him."

Have you ever realized how few red-heads there are in the smart set?

Adele Lippincott has red tresses, Mrs. George Faber Downey, Jr., young Nancy Metcalfe and debutante Margaret Meanor's young sister. And I can't think of another auburn-haired person. Can you?

A novel way to duck friends intent on giving newlyweds a send-off at the station—the William J. Kountzes III, went to the movies after the reception. They're now in the southland. Mrs. Kountz is the former Bobbie Wilson.

By the way, one may still find in book stores "Billy Baxter's Letters" written by the young bridegroom's namesake, William J. Kountz, Jr.

FORECAST OF SPRING DETAILS PRESENTED IN LATEST MODELS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 6. — Today's sketches list a good many of the details that Paris forecasts for spring. As one of the first of new 1933 costumes, it is done in gray—one of the light colors, along with beige, that Paris prophecies among big successes of the year. Its gray is not one of the light, bluish types that have been familiar in the past, but rather a more becoming version, that has a bit of brown in its cast.

MADAME BRUYERE, who designed the entire costume and chose the color, calls this a fog gray—a name which probably describes better than anything else its particular tone. Dress, coat, fur and hats are all in the same tone; accompanying accessories are of black and brown. Costumes of this new gray look especially well with scarfs of silver fox.

NOTE THE nickel studs incrusted into the sleeves at the wrists. They are forerunners of the beading which many Parisiens declare is going to be prominent in spring fashions.

THE COAT, in matching gray, is fashioned of a woolen fabric with markings in its weave. The gray shaved lamb which fashions sleeves and collar are joined to the fabric via buttonhole stitching—which also edges the woolen bands forming tie and belt.

PARISH BENEFIT SHOW SUNDAY

Canned food and standard package goods, such as are found on the shelves of the grocery stores throughout Pittsburgh, are the only tickets required for the benefit show to be given Sunday under the auspices of the Emerson Club of Sacred Heart Church at the Sheridan Square Theater, East Liberty.

"Amateur Daddy," with Warner Baxter, will be the feature picture and the show will be amplified by comedies, newsreels and short subjects—all donated by Warner Bros., including the use of the theater.

Food will be the only tickets required—no cash accepted. Father E. L. O'Connell, Sacred Heart Church, hopes that all who attend will show a liberal spirit, bringing at least two cans of food or two packages of cereals or other staple food commodities—single cans or packages if they are of the larger type. He would like to have tea, coffee, sugar, flour, rice and diversified canned goods. This big food benefit will start at 2 o'clock and run continuously until 10 o'clock, and all of the food donated in return for this entertainment will be distributed to the needy in the Sacred Heart parish

CITE TRAFFIC VIOLATIONS

The leading violation of Pittsburgh motorists in 1932 was passing street cars on the left side, according to the annual report of the Better Traffic Committee. Of the 4,874 violations reported last year, Walter Rosenbaum, education section chairman of the committee, said 962 were of this type.

Other leading violations during the year were not obeying stop and go lights, weaving driving, violation of through street signs and driving on the wrong side of the street. Letters will be sent violators by the traffic committee, asking them to help make Pittsburgh a safe city.

Younger Students Entering Colleges

EVANSTON, Ill., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—College students may not only seem younger now days, but they are younger on the Northwestern University campus, Dr. E. L. Clark, director of admissions, reported.

Since 1919, Dr. Clark said, the average age of the freshmen men has dropped from 19 years and one month to 18 years and two months for the current school year. The same holds true for the women, he added, but not in the same proportion.

COUNTY HEADS AND SHERIFF IN BATTLE

Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar exchanged a few hefty rights and lefts with the County Commissioners in Common Pleas Court today.

The Sheriff's attorney, B. Robert Averbach, delivered this punch:

"The County Commissioners are running every office of the county, including the courts, and we don't purpose to let them do it."

Attorney Ralph H. Frank, for the Commissioners, who also comprise the Salary Board along with the Controller, countered as he left the courtroom:

"We don't purpose to let the Sheriff high-hat the Salary Board."

Judge Thomas M. Marshall, chiding Averbach, suggested he didn't "mean" the Commissioners were really bossing the courts.

The exchange developed over the Sheriff's petition to ask the courts to pay four deputies who have been guarding ballot boxes. The Commissioners have refused, contending they, as the Salary Board, should fix the payment, not the Sheriff, nor even the courts. Decision was reserved.

The Commissioners are working on a plan to remove ballot boxes from the custody of aldermen and justices of the peace and instead to have them safeguarded in the Courthouse.

ATTACK FOUGHT BY PENNINGTON

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—John D. Pennington, prohibition administrator for Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, today disputed a statement which he said was made by Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell, of Philadelphia, that "police and federal agents all over the country have been raiding private houses." Pennington, in a letter to the Judge, said:

"I wish to invite your attention to the present policy of federal enforcement in the Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware area, which is, in substance, that federal officers are subject to immediate dismissal if the home of any citizen is entered without a federal search warrant issued on affidavit of a sale within the premises to be searched."

Pennington added that only one home was raided by federal men in this district in six months.

TWO CHILDREN, FATHER SLAIN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Silas Donaldson, 43, his son and a daughter, were shot and killed last night by Charles Donaldson, 48, a brother of Silas. The shooting occurred in the Donaldson home where they all had been living.

Police, who said Charles Donaldson had been drinking, arrested him as he attempted to escape from a second-story window.

Besides the father, the victims were George, 18, and Mary, 14.

Mrs. Agnes Donaldson, wife of Silas, and two other children were in the house, but were not harmed. Mrs. Donaldson told police that recently there had been several quarrels over the living arrangements. Charles Donaldson, a steam engineer at police headquarters, paid half of the rent.

W. Homestead Man Guilty of Arson

Isadore J. Green, of 493 Seventh avenue, West Homestead, was found guilty of arson in Criminal Court yesterday before visiting Judge Albert E. Swoyer, of Wayne County. He filed a motion for a new trial, and a request by Assistant District Attorney Earl R. Jackson that Green's bail be increased to $10,000 was granted.

Green was charged with arson in connection with his combination home and grocery store August 30.

Witherow Elected Carnegie Trustee

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

'Iron' Out a Pain in the Neck

Dr. Copeland

Recently I told you something about "wry-neck," explaining the cause of this uncomfortable ailment. Today I want to tell you about "myositis." This is the general term used for inflammation of a muscle. "Wry-neck" is the special term for myositis when it is confined to the neck.

As I have suggested, myositis may involve any muscle of the body. It is often called "muscular rheumatism," or "neuralgia," but these are incorrect terms.

The inflammation may be traced to various causes. Among these are exposure to cold and wet, over-exertion and strain, and certain infectious diseases. In some instances it results from lead, mercury, or alcoholic poisoning. The affliction is more common in persons who are susceptible to gouty and rheumatic disturbances.

Acute myositis comes on suddenly. It sometimes produces a painful spasm of the involved muscles. The pain is at first dull and aching. There is a feeling as if there had been a tear in the painful muscle. The symptoms are made worse when the involved part is used. Indeed, motion may be impossible because of the severe pain.

The skin above the inflamed muscle is sensitive to the slightest pressure. Even the clothing may be irritating.

Fortunately, most cases of myositis are of a mild nature and subside within a few days. When neglected, the attacks tend to recur.

I can think of no better method of treatment than the simple application of a hot water bottle to the affected part. Relief can also be obtained by painting the involved surface with 30 drops of a mixture of equal parts of guaiacol and glycerine. Cover the painted area with cotton.

Ironing the skin above the painful muscle with a very warm iron is a useful home remedy. When you do this, place a piece of flannel over the skin.

Hot poultices are sometimes beneficial, and in some instances vigorous rubbing of the area with a piece of ice gives relief.

Persons who are subject to myositis should make every effort to determine the underlying cause. All points of focal infection, such as infected tonsils, nasal sinuses, decayed teeth, faulty bridgework, diseased gallbladder and appendix, should be treated as soon as possible. The wrong diet, irregular living habits and constipation are faults that must be corrected.

Chronic myositis, like chronic wryneck, if neglected, may lead to a permanent deformity. I have seen cases of untreated myositis terminate in physical disfigurement that could not be corrected by operation.

CHAMBER BACKS MANAGER PLAN

The board of directors of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce has again taken a stand for legislation to allow the adoption of the city manager plan and proportional representation in voting. The action was taken on the recommendation of the Municipal Affairs Committee.

A revision of election laws at the present session of the Legislature also has been recommended.

The chamber's directors also voted to continue their support of the present school code, opposing a change from the method of having the courts appoint the members of the Board of Education. The chamber is particularly opposed to the elective system.

HITLER MAKES PEACE MOVE

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND

(Copyright, 1933, Universal Service, Inc.)

BERLIN, Jan. 6.—Adolf Hitler, German Fascist leader, has dropped his demand that he be made the "Mussolini of Germany" and he is now willing to "cooperate" in administering Germany's government, it is reliably learned.

Apparently seeing his chances even of sharing power in governing the Reich rapidly fading away in the face of an impending split in his Nazi party, Hitler held a secret conference Wednesday in Cologne with former Chancellor Von Papen.

The Nazi chieftain, it is said, hinted that he would co-operate with Von Papen on condition that Von Papen replace Gen. Von Schleicher as chancellor and that Hitler be permitted to name the minister of reichswehr and minister of interior from his Nazi party.

Von Papen reportedly rejected the conditions.

LAWYERS' BANK RATING STUDIED

Bank accounts of 14 attorneys have been subject to examination for a week, it became known today at the County Commissioners' office where an auditors' bill was received. It was sent by Attorney Donald Anderson, secretary and counsel to the committee appointed by the Allegheny County Bar Association to investigate professional conduct of certain lawyers.

The bill was for $792, or which $212 was for Main & Co., auditors employed, it was said, to look into bank accounts of 14 attorneys. The committee has instituted proceedings to disbar three. Other items in the bill were for an investigator and a stenographer, and court costs.

The Commissioners tabled the request pending a private conference.

STORK TO VISIT LIBBY IN PHILA.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—Libby Holman Reynolds' baby, heir to the wealth of her slain husband, Smith Reynolds, will be born in Philadelphia, probably within the next month.

Although officials at Pennsylvania Hospital and Dr. Norris W. Vaux, the former Broadway singer's physician, denied published reports that a suite of rooms already had been engaged, the physician admitted the baby will be born in Philadelphia.

Dr. Vaux is a member of the staff of the Pennsylvania Hospital and has been Libby's attending physician while she remained in seclusion near Wilmington, Del.

Three Men Linked In Hill Robberies

Solution of nearly 50 robberies in the Hill district was believed near today in the arrest of three Negroes, police said. Two of the suspects were arrested near a P. H. RAID INDICTS 2 OFFICERS

Alderman Robert H. Logan and Constable Earl R. Sams, of the Fifth Ward, were indicted by the county grand jury late yesterday on charges of misdemeanor in office.

Informations made by Abe Feldman, Fifth Ward political worker, charge that Logan issued a warrant, which Sams served, for a raid on 2159 Heman street, July 2. In the raid it is alleged Sams seized a 500-gallon still and 150 vats of mash, and arrested two men who he found in the act of manufacturing liquor. It is then charged Sams released the men after having taken them to jail, and that Logan ordered the release, and that Logan did not hold a hearing in the case.

SEEK RELEASE OF MOTHER

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—A habeas corpus petition for the release of Mrs. Minnie Wroe, 60, charged with the slaying of John A. Brooks, has been filed by her counsel.

The writ asserts that the woman has a "heart condition" which may prove fatal if she is held in jail.

A coroner's jury held Mrs. Wroe after her daughter, Mrs. Emma Elizabeth Brooks, 21, estranged wife of the victim, made an unsuccessful effort to "take the rap" for the shooting.

SHERIFF'S SALE FOILED AGAIN

The property was returned to Renninger by the same group that on Tuesday led the movement to protect John Hanzel, a Bucks County farmer near Doylestown, who was being foreclosed to satisfy an $1,800 judgment.

COUNTY AIRPORT UTILITY COSTS UNDER FIRE

Pipe lines of two utility companies, which cost the county more than $100,000 to move when the City-County Airport was constructed along the Lebanon Church road, will cost huge sums in the future, and will be a liability, County Commissioner C. C. McGovern stated today. The Commissioner made this statement after receiving a report from the county auditors on the contracts between the county and the two companies.

Under an agreement with the Carnegie Natural Gas Company the company has the right at any time to enter upon the airport, dig ditches through the hard surface runways, repair or make any necessary changes to their lines and make the county pay the bill. When this agreement was read, McGovern said:

"This is the most unfair thing ever done to the county and to continue to impose such unfair terms is beyond me. It looks like the lines will be a continual liability."

UTILITY COSTS

When the airport was built it was necessary for the county to change lines of the company and for this work the Carnegie Natural Gas Company was paid $35,815.57. In addition, the county will be liable for about $21,502.92 when the Carnegie Natural Gas Company replaces other pipes under a temporary fill at the airport. This amount only covers the cost of labor and material and is exclusive of trenching and backfilling. It is likely that the additional cost will be approximately $24,843.

The county also has an agreement with the Equitable Gas Company which states that in the future if changes are to be made in the lines of the company because of plans or wishes of the county, the county shall pay the bill. The county paid the Equitable Gas Company $62,352.25 for replacing portions of the gas lines and $4,369.69 for relocating a telephone line of the company.

Commissioner McGovern, after the report was read, declared that he opposed the placing of utility lines under the airport when the port was constructed, but that his objections were useless. He declared he believed there was plenty of "monkey business" when the changes were instituted.

RENT DUE COUNTY

The report of the auditors also dealt with rentals due the county from utility companies for rights-of-way for their lines. The county bought the airport properties from several former owners and is now receiving a portion of the rentals. In some cases the utility companies have paid rentals to former owners who have not paid it over to the county, it was reported. All told the amount due the county is $210.

The Commissioners received the report and turned it over to the county solicitor. The solicitor will collect money due the county and give an opinion on whether the county has the right, when it takes over properties, to cancel the rights-of-way held by utilities.

McGovern, who has termed the airport the "costliest in America," received another jolt when the Irwin Run Coal Company notified the county that they wanted $12,500 for coal under the port and under the state highway along the field. There are 18 acres of partially mined coal under the field which the county agreed to buy at a cost of $4,410. The price was 25 cents a ton. The remainder is for coal under the roadway. Commissioner C. M. Barr refused to agree to the purchase and offered the company 15 cents a ton for the remainder.

TAX REDUCTION GROUP TO MEET

The Turtle Creek Taxpayers' Association, which has been circulating petitions for a 3-mill reduction in school and in borough taxes, will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock in Community Hall, Locust street and Munroeville avenue.

Petitions for tax reduction have been signed by approximately 1,500 taxpayers, it is reported. Speakers tonight are to include Robert Hutchion, Charles Saeger and M. Aike. The Nonpartisan Civic Club has been active in organizing the taxpayers' association.

The pictures on which prices have been asked, according to C. M. McKee, superintendent of supplies, include 77 for Prospect School, 84 for Arsenal High School, 35 for Mifflin School, and 79 for Knoxville School. The cost has been estimated at around $2,000 a school.

SCHOOL FUNDS CRISIS AIRED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—A wide variety of suggestions for aiding the nation's schools—ranging from the use of road construction funds to the imposition of a manufacturers' sales tax—were taken up today by the citizens' conference on what has been called the crisis in education.

Called into session yesterday by President Hoover, the conference sought to develop a program which would enable the schools to endure present economic conditions without damage to the educational system.

The suggestion that millions of dollars of road funds be used for education instead of highways came from Secretary Wilbur, chairman of the conference.

Dr. William John Cooper, United States Commissioner of Education, proposed the manufacturers' sales tax. He advocated that it be imposed by the federal government but collected by the states.

Under his plan, the more prosperous states like New York, Illinois and Michigan would turn over part of the funds to states such as Arkansas, Alabama and Arizona.

BURGLARS LOOT THREE HOMES

Thieves entered the second-floor apartment of Mrs. Mary Roebuck, 1339 Manning avenue, and escaped with $86 in cash last night.

Meyer Coon, of 5510 Baywood street, reported to police that a key for a safety deposit box had been stolen from his home by burglars who cut the glass in the front door and ransacked the house last night.

Mysterious Death Of Divorcee Probed

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—A chemical analysis was ordered today in an effort to determine the cause of death of Thelma Trosper, 28-year-old divorcee. She was taken to a hospital from a hotel room she shared with Miss Irene Taylor, radio and stage entertainer, her case diagnosed as possible poisoning. After her death, however, an autopsy failed to disclose poison.

Put to flight when police say, he attempted to hold up three Negro women with a toy pistol, Ed Glase, 45, of Homestead, was arrested at Bedford avenue and Washington street early today. Police said he had the toy pistol in his possession when arrested. The attempted holdup occurred in Clark street.

Pinchot Not to Offer New Utility Measure

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Jan. 6.—Unless he completely alters his present policy, Gov. Pinchot will not originate in the Legislature any measure dealing with public utilities and the Public Service Commission.

Mr. Shields

The commission, now a Pinchot agency, communicated its ideas on revision of the public service company law to the Senate Utilities Committee, and these were embodied in the committee report and their effectiveness is sought in a series of bills authorized by the committee.

Gov. Pinchot's former championship of a "fair rate board" has been abandoned, and this proposal now lingers only as a catch phrase useful in the campaign of 1930. In that campaign the Governor recommended that an elective fair rate board replace the Public Service Commission, but the elective feature was dropped early in the session of 1931, and since the Governor has obtained control of the commission through five of the seven appointments, he is content to forget the fair rate board.

Despite his decision not to introduce legislation, the Governor expects to have much to say about utilities through this session, and will seek to drive through bills he approves as well as to seek satisfactory amendment to those in disfavor.

Senate Bill Backbone Of Pinchot Program

The bill sponsored by the Senate Utilities Committee, including regulation of holding companies, supervision by the P. S. C. of securities sales, and refusal to permit rate increases pending action by the commission, are the backbone of the Pinchot program. Despite the fact these bills were approved by the Senate committee, a body controlled by the Republican organization, they may be opposed by the anti-Pinchot forces.

If the Senate is recalcitrant the Governor may turn for dependence to the Democratic minority in the House, which has theories of utility legislation similar to those of Mr. Pinchot. Democratic members are preparing bills on the subject, resembling closely the program of the Senate committee.

Pinchot-Democratic co-ordination may be a subject Sunday of the conference between the Pennsylvania Governor and President-elect Roosevelt in Hyde Park. Both men have parallel ideas on power control and Mr. Roosevelt, through Joseph F. Guffey, of Pittsburgh, may endeavor to assist Pinchot.

Proposal that the Governor be given sole right to hire and fire Public Service Commissioners may not become an issue of this session. It was on this rock that the administration and the Senate organization split in 1931, Pinchot insisting upon the right. He made it a part of every utility measure through amendment in the House, and when the Senate refused to recede from opposition, all utility reform legislation fell by the wayside in the resulting deadlock.

Would Peril Present Pinchot Appointees

Now the Governor has control of the commission. The only member over whom he might wish to exercise arbitrary authority is S. Ray Shelby, of Uniontown, whom he tried unavailingly to remove several years ago. To establish the hire and fire right would permit a succeeding Governor to lop off the Pinchot appointees before their terms expire, even though they should be confirmed by the Senate.

It was a real Pinchot issue two years ago. It is immaterial now to the Pinchot policies.

Future of the Senate Utilities Committee is in doubt. Through decision of Dauphin County courts the committee can spend none of the $100,000 appropriated for its inquiry, in the special session last summer. A continuance resolution has been prepared, including an appropriation, the language of the resolution designed to get around the barriers raised in courts.

However, the Republican organization has not yet determined to pass the resolution. Meanwhile, Oliver K. Eaton, Pittsburgh, counsel for the committee, has returned home, with no further duties to perform, unless the committee decides to continue its inquiry.

As the situation stands, Eaton was prevented from questioning Shelby and former Commissioner James S. Benn, through the recourse of these two gentlemen to protection of the courts. Certain phases of investigation of the activities of utilities also were closed to Eaton by court action.

To fight these actions will require money, and unless the Senate acts to provide it, the conclusion will be obvious that the organization senators are glad to have the door closed in their faces.

DR. M'FADDEN DIES HERE AT 69

Ex-U. P. Moderator, Noted Evangelist and Writer, Passes

Prominent throughout the United States and Canada for his evangelistic work among Jewish people, the Rev. Dr. E. Marshall McFadden, 69, former moderator of the Monongahela Presbytery of the United Presbyterian Church, was dead today in his home at 934 Heberton avenue, East End.

Dr. McFadden, who was general superintendent of the New Covenant Mission in the Hill district, died yesterday at the family home following an illness resulting from an automobile accident two years ago. He was organizer and first president of the Ulster Society in Pittsburgh.

BORN IN NORTH IRELAND

Dr. McFadden was born in Larne, County Antrim, North Ireland, in 1863. He came to this country in 1883, settling in Philadelphia with his parents. Graduating from University of Pennsylvania, he studied for the ministry at Philadelphia Theological Seminary, where he received his Doctor of Divinity degree. Following pastorates at Morning Sun, Ia.; Hamilton, O., and Central Falls, R. I., he spent four years at Dumbarton, Scotland. He returned to this country in 1908, accepting a charge at Mercer, Pa., which he retained until 1911, when he came to the Seventh United Presbyterian Church, Lawrenceville.

EVANGELISTIC WORK

Dr. McFadden became interested in the work of the Rev. Maurice Ruben, converted Christian, who founded the New Covenant Mission, the second oldest of its kind in the country. Upon the death of Mr. Ruben, eight years ago, Dr. McFadden was elected general superintendent. He had devoted 15 years to the evangelistic work and was widely known as a writer on religious subjects.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Charlotte McFadden; three daughters, Mrs. J. D. Nuskay and Miss Jean McFadden, both of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. George S. Cooper, of New Rochelle, N. Y.; two sons, James M. McFadden, of Pittsburgh, and E. Harrison McFadden, of Meadville; his father, James McFadden, Sr., 96, and a brother, James McFadden, Jr., both of Philadelphia.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Jan. 6.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Mr. Coolidge, you didn't have to die for me to throw flowers on your grave. I have told a million jokes about you, but every one was based on some of your splendid qualities. You had a hold on the American people regardless of politics. They knew you were honest, economical, and had a native common sense. History generally records a place for a man that is ahead of his time. But we that lived with you will always remember you because you was "with" your times. By golly, you little red-headed New Englander, I liked you. You put horse sense into statesmanship. And Mrs. Coolidge's admiration for you is an American trait.

Yours, WILL.

Policeman Here Escaped When Tuscania Sank

LIEUT. EDWARD KIRBY

Differs With Meyer Version of U-Boat Attack

Capt. Wilhelm Meyer, retired commander of the German U-77 which sent the British transport Tuscania with the loss of 204 American troops, might have his log but Police Lieut. Edward Kirby today has his memory of the disaster.

Lieut. Kirby was aboard the Tuscania, the sinking of which, in February, 1918, was described in two installments by Capt. Meyer and which was concluded yesterday in the Sun-Telegraph. Kirby was a member of the 158th Aerial pursuit squadron, which lost 24 members in the disaster.

Capt. Meyer's description of fearing detection by destroyers with the convoy of 13 ships amused Kirby. There were no destroyers with the convoy for about 10 hours preceding the torpedoing, Kirby said. His version of the sinking follows:

"Capt. Meyer said in his article that it was dark and he fired two torpedoes at 7:40 p. m. It was 5:45 p. m. when we were hit. The boxing show had just concluded and we were filing in for mess. Dick Given, a well-known local welterweight, had appeared in the last bout.

"It was still daylight. The Irish shore could be seen. There were no destroyers to give chase. They had gone to their base about 10 hours before the attack. The Tuscania was the twelfth boat in the long line of the convoy, each ship being about 1,000 feet apart.

"That sure made it easy for the sub to hit something. The boat took three hours to sink. Our outfit was one of the last to leave. We were able to step off the boat onto the British destroyer Pidgeon. Do you know, the Tuscania was the only camouflaged boat in the convoy."

SCHOOLS TO END FREE FEEDING OF PUPILS

Board Doubts Wisdom Of Move, But Yields To Emergency Body

The free feeding of school children in the cafeterias of the public schools will be discontinued February 1, the Board of Public Education has decided. This will not include the distribution of milk.

In the meantime, Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of schools, is having reports made by his principals on undernourished children, and a list will be submitted to the Allegheny Emergency Association which has taken the position that the children should be fed in the homes and not in the schools.

The Emergency Association in a recent conference with the school board and members of City Council took the stand that they will see that undernourished children are fed if the cases are referred to them by the school authorities.

That the Emergency Association has been able to handle only a small part of the cases turned over to them November 3 by the Board of Education was brought out by Superintendent of Supplies C. M. McKee. Out of 11,488 names, 8,089 have not been cleared through the welfare groups, according to McKee's figures.

Dr. A. L. Lewin declared it is impossible to feed a growing child on 90 cents a week. The opinion was expressed that the welfare groups have been swamped by the immense relief load.

Dr. G. W. Gerwig suggested the introduction of legislation at Harrisburg to enable the School Board to finance the feeding of children, but it was pointed out this would fail to provide for the children of the parochial schools.

CIVIC LEADERS TO PASS ON FINANCES

Act in Response to Attack in Drive For Tax Cut

The Board of Public Education, at the suggestion of President Marcus Aaron, has decided to appoint two committees, one composed of 25 prominent citizens to pass on the Board's financial policies, and the other made up of nationally-known educators to pass on the educational standards set by the Board.

The protest of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board's Community Research Bureau against a statement made by Aaron, which criticized the bureau and individuals for their activities on the Coyne sub-committee and their proposals to spend less money was referred to the Finance Committee.

The request for a public apology made by letter to Aaron by Rush & McGonigle, certified public accountants, in connection with his reference to the accountants working with the Coyne sub-committee as "discredited auditors" was read before the board.

REVIEW ASKED

Aaron's reply was then read, suggesting that the matter be reviewed by the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Accountants. Aaron said he would make the apology if the accountants group said that he owed it.

N. R. Criss said that one of the most frequent charges that is heard is that the school board has an organization that is "top-heavy."

At this point, Aaron again flayed the critics of the board. He said:

"I have never seen such an exhibition of absolute ignorance. Some of these people went to school, and that, to my mind, is the most damaging evidence against the schools. They don't know what it's all about."

A letter from I. Leonard Aronson, of the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners' and Taxpayers' League, was referred to Finance Committee with the understanding that they confer with Aronson on what figures are wanted on school costs.

The board re-elected Superintendent of Buildings James Bonar at a salary of $7,200 a year, and Superintendent of Supplies C. M. McKee at $6,750 a year.

REFUSE TO CUT PAY

Mrs. John M. Phillips moved to reduce Bonar's salary to $5,400 a year. Mrs. F. B. Chalfant voted with her. The remainder of the board voted against the reduction. Mrs. Phillips also voted "no" on the McKee salary.

Other re-elections included four associate superintendents: Dr. J. Freeman Guy at $9,000; Dr. S. E. Weber at $9,000; Dr. R. M. Sherrard at $6,750, and Frank M. Leavitt at $6,750. Dr. James P. Kerr, City Controller, was again elected school controller under the law so providing.

Dr. William F. Kennedy, associate superintendent, was placed on the retired list, and it was announced that, for the present, Dr. Weber will assume the former's duties in addition to his own.

The citizens' committee which will be asked to pass on the board's financial policies are: A. E. Braun, J. W. Bamford, Frank F. Brooks, Howard Heinz, R. Lamont Hughes, J. H. Lockhart, Frank Wilbur Main, H. H. McClintock, H. C. McEldowney, Malcolm McGiffin, R. B. Mellon, W. L. Mellon, W. L. Munro, Frank Phillips, A. W. Robertson, A. C. Robinson, H. B. Rust, Arthur Scully, Edwin W. Smith, Lloyd W. Smith, William Watson Smith, A. Leo Weil, E. T. Weir, Homer Williams and J. C. M. White.

PIANIST SCORNS TEMPERAMENT

Temperament is no part of the makeup of Miss Elisabeth Oppenheim, pianist who will be soloist with the Pittsburgh Symphony Society Sunday night in Syria Mosque.

Miss Oppenheim, the house guest today of Mr. and Mrs. S. Rosenbloom, 1036 Beechwood boulevard, holds the hopes of the average girl of 22 years. Temperament to her is but the excuse of individuals to do things they should not do.

Miss Oppenheim started piano study at the age of 5. Attending Peabody Conservatory in her home town of Baltimore during school days, the pianist won over her parents' threat that college would have to follow high school if she did not make good in one year. She made her professional debut in Paris and New York in 1931. She will offer the Symphonic Variations of Cesar Franck Sunday night with the orchestra, under direction of Antonio Modarelli.

Problem of Unwed Mother Put Up to Readers By Elsie Robinson

Cash Prizes Offered For Best Answers To Old Puzzle

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Should an unwed mother keep her child?

That question may not—thank God!—mean much to you. But it means the difference between lifelong happiness or misery to thousands of poor girls, in these chaotic days when love cannot wait on pocketbooks.

Rose was such a girl. They'd loved beautifully, honestly, expecting to marry. But there was no job. The waiting was bitter—and love the only consolation they could afford.

Then there was a day when that consolation became a dreadful menace and the boy, in his fear and desperation, ran away. Rose couldn't run—had to stay and face it—and felt that it was worth all that it had cost when she held her baby in her arms.

Motherhood Ecstacy

Never had she known ecstacy as she felt at the clutch of those tiny hands; nor, strangely, such pride as when she thought of the years ahead when she would battle for her little son.

But there was neither ecstasy nor pride in the eyes of The Folks when they faced her with their verdict. Only anger and shame! She might stay—but the baby must go! Never, never, should she bring an illegitimate child into a decent home!

Frantic, she wrote for help. Her letter was published, and hundreds answered. Most of the answers were filled with pitying love; said, "KEEP YOUR BABY, ROSE!" A few still stoned the Magdalen. But there was one answer which did not stone, yet denied her right to motherhood.

Is Woman's Heart Or Baby's Future More Important?

That answer is published here today. It is a strong letter. Is it a wise one? Would YOU say this to an erring girl? Would YOU pass this judgment on a helpless child?

My dear Miss Robinson:

As the mother of two beautiful children whom I have adopted, I want to talk about the problem of Rose and her baby.

THERE IS ONLY ONE ANGLE IN A CASE OF THAT KIND—THE CHILD'S ANGLE. Each baby born is entitled to every break that can possibly be given it. AND CAN AN UNMARRIED MOTHER GIVE HER CHILD A REAL BREAK IF SHE KEEPS IT? I don't think so.

Scorn Hurts

The mothers of both my lovely children were unmarried. They gave them up, because life gives enough hurdles to each of us, without adding any; and the world in general is not yet capable of the breadth of understanding that permits the unwed mother to keep her baby, without pointing scornful fingers. AND SCORNFUL FINGERS HURT.

To be fair to the helpless child, we must see that it is put into a normal home—normal as we have it today. Any child is entitled to that. I consider the mothers of my two babies much greater and finer because they gave them up, instead of thinking only of their own wishes and keeping them.

LET US NOT CONFUSE MOTHER LOVE WITH A CERTAIN FORM OF "LOVING" SELFISHNESS.

As for the thought of a stranger raising your baby—well, I should say that the woman who so wants children that she takes to her

1 Convicted, 5 Freed In Lottery Trial

Edward Goldstein, of 2135 Fifth avenue, was found guilty of operating a lottery in Criminal Court late yesterday. He was one of a half-dozen arrested when county dectectives raided 231 Baldwin street, in former Hays Borough, October 7. The detectives seized six adding machines and many alleged number slips. Five others were brought to trial, but were found not guilty. They were George Ralston, 5920 Alder street; Howard Murphy, 1000 Talbot street; Vincent Monahan, 141 Moultrie street; Lawrence Shane, 437 George street, Rankin, and Martin Potter, 2123 Tustin street.

'What Do You Think?'

The Sun-Telegraph will pay cash prizes for the four best replies to Elsie Robinson's question "Should An Unwed Mother Keep Her Child?" It will pay $5 for the best answer, $3 for the second and $1 each for the third and fourth best replies.

These opinions must not exceed 50 words in length and must be postmarked not later than 9 p. m., Monday, January 9, or turned in at the counter of the Sun-Telegraph Building or at the Downtown Sun-Telegraph office, Fifth avenue and Market street, not later than that time. Address your reply to the Question Editor of the Sun-Telegraph.

From time to time other questions will be raised by Miss Robinson. Watch for them. Her regular column entitled "Listen World" appears regularly on the editorial page of the Sun-Telegraph.

Roberts Won't Quit Job And Can't Get Fired

David B. Roberts, former superintendent of the court house building, now under suspension, has asked the County Commissioners to dismiss him.

Chairman C. C. McGovern asked Roberts to quit.

Neither would yield and Roberts is still suspended. Roberts had previously asked the Commissioners to erase from their records the mention of his suspension, which followed his indictment last September on charges of obtaining tax receipts in wholesale numbers. He also requested that he be reinstated or dismissed, and asked pay for the suspension period.

Yesterday the Commissioners agreed to insert in the records mention of his acquittal, but refused to remove mention of his suspension. McGovern told Roberts he had severed relations with the county when someone was put in his job. McGovern maintained that to discharge him might set a precedent and interfere with future furloughs or suspensions of employes.

Roberts said he had not had his 1932 vacation when suspended and made a request for his vacation pay, which the Commissioners took under advisement. County solicitors held that the county was not obliged to pay him for the term of his suspension.

NORTH SIDE WOMAN SAVES MAN AFIRE AFTER BLAST

CHECKS BLAZE, LEADS VICTIM TO STREET

An aged man was burned probably fatally as fire, following a gas explosion, early today forced nearly a score of persons to the street in night attire from a North Side rooming house.

Standing in the middle of his room, bewildered, his clothing blazing, Louis Landerkir, 68, a roomer at 204 Anderson stret, was ed from the building by Mrs. ucy Collins, 49, his landlady, after she had extinguished the flames and wrapped his seared body in her bathrobe.

Landekir was in Allegheny General Hospital suffering burns about the entire body. He is near death, hospital authorities reported. His rescuer, Mrs. Collins, burned slightly about the hands, was treated at the hospital and sent home.

The explosion occurred in Landerkir's room, police said, after the aged man had struck a match to find his way about the room. Firemen said a gas jet on a hot plate had probably been leaking.

Mrs. Collins, sleeping on the first floor near Landerkir's room with her two children, Helen, 11, and Carl, 9, was awakened by the blast and ran to Landerkir's room. There she found him standing in the middle of the floor, his underclothing, his only apparel, blazing.

Other roomers, fearing a bomb explosion, ran to the street.

The damage was estimated by firemen at $100. They said a partition in Landerkir's room was blown out and several windows on the first floor of the building broken.

FIVE CHILDREN FLEE IN FIRE

Nine persons, five of them children, were forced to flee from their Wilmerding home early today when fire, followed by a slight gas explosion, damaged their home to the extent of $2,000.

The three-story brick building, a company house of the Westinghouse Airbrake Company, Airbrake avenue, was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William Wise and their four children, and another family of three occupying the third floor.

Fire Chief Thomas A. Hurney, who estimated the damage, said the fire was caused by a spark from the furnace igniting frame work. The gas explosion which followed, Chief Hurney said, shattered a few windows in the building, was slight.

The two families were unable to save any of their clothes in their escape.

School Burglary Suspect Captured

Detected as he is alleged to have forced entry to the Columbus School, Irwin avenue, North Side, early today, James Hinds, 18, of 1718 Columbia way, was under arrest in North Side Police Station on a suspicious person charge. Hinds, captured by H. N. Dunn, custodian of the building, after he had climbed a fire escape to the second floor, told police, they said, he was after money he believed in the school building.

There's Only One Proper Way to Bring Rum Back

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

There's only one way to bring it back. In your traveling bag hidden under underwear and sox.

"Be careful with that bag, boy. I'm wearing glass underwear this season."

For 20 years the inbound trunks and portmanteaus have gurgled and swished. If the boys knew how to bring it back illegally they ought to do all right when armed with powers plenipotentiary.

And, if our memory doesn't hiccup, so did Works and Jones. They went back West where it was still wet.

Mr. Wells was born in Bridgeport, Pa., now part of South Brownsville. For a number of years he was employed as a clerk in McKeesport postoffice. He became a member of the editorial staff of the McKeesport Daily News in 1919, which position he held until his death.

He was a member of the Central Presbyterian Church of McKeesport; Tube City No. 378, Independent Order of America; the Capt. A. B. Campbell Camp No. 99, Sons of the Union Veterans of the Civil War; McKeesport Camp No. 33, Woodmen of the World, and the Knights of Malta.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Lille Wells; two sons, Dr. Lewis E. Wells, Jr., of Jollytown, Pa.; Richard Allan Wells, of McKeesport, and a sister, Mrs. James Wampler, also of McKeesport. Interment will be in Versailles Cemetery.

MOTHER WINS CUSTODY CASE

Mary Regina Parker, whose marital troubles have been aired in public for more than a year, has won the right to have custody of her two children during week-ends, according to a ruling made by Judge Elder W. Marshall.

Mrs. Parker, who is 33, with silver gray hair, and lives at Cambridge, O., recently won her action for divorce from Irvin M. Parker, of Carnegie, who also filed a libel against her and lost. The Superior Court affirmed the action of the lower court, which before the divorce case was decided, gave the father the two children, Mary Jean, aged 10, and Patricia Jane, 6.

Judge Marshall refused to interfere with that action, in deciding a habeas corpus case entered by the mother to get possession of her children, following the divorce decision. Mrs. Parker said that she was denied the privilege to see them, except in the Parker home in Crafton. Judge Marshall ruled:

"It is atrocious not to let a mother have possession of her own children. She must be allowed to have them at reasonable periods."

DOG'S WARNING SAVES 12 MEN FROM FIRE

Aroused by the barking of a pet dog shortly before last midnight, 12 men sleeping in a commissary building of the Duquesne Slag Company at the Scully yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad, leaped to safety from windows when they were trapped by flames on the second floor of the building.

Two were injured, one in a fall, the other when he returned for a bag of money hidden beneath his pillow. The building, a historic landmark, was destroyed.

Nick Urembuiak, 39, was burned about the head and face when he attempted to re-enter the burning building to retrieve money hidden in his bed, police said. Joe Joedon, 33, suffered an injured leg when he jumped from a window. Both were given first aid by Burgess C. C. Dittmar and Acting Police Chief William Shaffer, of Ingram.

Aroused by the barking of Toots, a pet dog, the men found the stairway a mass of flames, their escape cut off. They smashed windows and leaped to safety.

The three-story frame building, formerly part of the James Colbert estate, was one of the pioneer homesteads of the Pittsburgh district. Loss was unofficially estimated at $10,000. The blaze was of undetermined origin.

Two city fire companies fought the blaze more than six hours after laying almost 2,200 feet of hose. The firemen stretched the hose down a valley, spanned the bed of Chartiers Creek, then scaled a ladder and stretched hose from the top of the creek bank 400 feet to the scene.

PAIR ARRESTED IN CHECK FRAUD

McKeesport police today were holding two men and searching for the leader of an alleged gang of bogus check passers.

Joe Parisi, 28, of 3003 Boyd street, McKeesport, and William Garrison, 30, of 807 Main street, West Newton, were under arrest after a bogus check purporting to have been issued by the Bell Telephone Company, had been passed. The alleged leader of the gang is said to have abandoned an auto, rented in Dayton, O., in McKeesport on January 4. The man sought formerly was a police chief in a nearby borough, officers said.

Dancing Girl Dares Death In Mystery Hall of Virgins

Risks All to Learn Rites No White Had Ever Seen

By ELSIE ROBINSON

All night they heard her screaming.

Sobs, at first, broken gasps of terror. A shriek! Then, presently, that thin, high, witless wailing that went on and on . . .

Outside, midnight trailed black lace along the temple marble . . . spilled white fire upon the temple pool . . . poured hot waves of jungle fragrance across the forbidden wall. Everywhere, through the courts, the night passed murmuring, flaunting her passionate darkness under the Indian moon. But through it all—ripping sharp as catgut—tore that tortured thread of sound.

Rustling in the courtyard. Scurry of frightened furry feet. The wild, fierce squawl of a peacock. A monkey's angry gibbering. But in the great, dark Hall of the Virgins—no sound. No movement, only a terrible, breathless awareness. And along the walls, on the couches of yellow ivory set with ebony and gold, files of slender bodies lying still as death . . . taut with terror . . . painted nails sinking, knife sharp, into jeweled flesh—

NIGHT OF TERROR

Would it come like that to them, too—some day?

When the ceaseless dancing drill was over . . . when, once again, the little, tinted feet had followed the dread pattern of the chain before Riva—she of the eight awful arms . . . and the temple drums had fallen silent . . . and the Buddha tree had cast its flowers like snow on the black marble . . . would it come, then, to them?

To which one of them the grim honor—the last, deadly duty?

One day a dreaming dancing girl . . . floating, swaying, bubble bright, bubble frail across the courtyard stone . . . weaving, in stiff, gilded splendor, before the towering throne . . .

And then, on the next—the choice. Set apart to be the malak-ul-Maut . . . the black-robed angel of death . . . she who alone knew the whole sequence of the chain and who, alone, must dance that sequence through upon the day—

Dance until the blaze of the temple torches faded from her eyes . . . and the roar of the temple drums died within her ears . . . and the memory of the pattern grew numb in her listless feet . . . and she was lifted, broken and dumb, to lie between the ruthless knees . . . waiting the night, and, with the morning—was gone.

MYSTERY FATE

To where? To what? Who knew? That was the worst terror of all—

And now she was facing it—the little, quiet one who, for long days, they had not seen. Not since they took her away to make her ready, in ways known only to the high priest and the Murrabi. No sound from her since then, until this sudden, senseless screaming that would not still—

What were they doing to her—what worse than death thing was happening, there in the inner shrine? No one dared question. But, in the long, dark Hall of the Virgins, the silence screamed in answer—and on the ivory couches, slender bodies stiffened in terror—waiting.

Only one small, brown body did not stiffen. Furiously, she gripped the velvet pillows with her perfumed hands. . . . Braced herself against the gilded ivory . . . Sank small, white teeth into writhing flesh to still her body's madness to be gone. They might wait for death—those others. Wait, docilely as cattle, as Indian maidens always waited. But she would not go to death, cattle meek. She—she was different—

Brown—Virgin—drilled to the chain and vowed to the goddess, like the rest. But still different! For the shadow of India that browned those other skins, lay like a smothering darkness over their spirits, too. But, beneath her darkness, there was no shadow—no brute helplessness. Fire instead! For her brownness was only a stain—a mask for a desperate, gallant cause. Beneath it—she was white!

RISKING DEATH

A white girl, risking death to learn a dance which no white eyes had ever seen—for the sake of a dead man's dream and a vicious woman's greed!

And love—that had come too late—waiting, helpless, outside the wall, while she went down to certain doom.

Or was it waiting? Was it even love?

She could not know. Was past wondering. Only life counted now, with death so near—death so certain.

Like broken beads, her thoughts. Great, blazing emerald beads—such as Desiree had commanded. Thoughts like beads strung on the catgut thread of a scream . . .

The snake pit that was Shahapur, set in its circle of jade . . .

HARROWING THOUGHTS

(Thoughts like beads . . . scattering, shattering, on the worn marble, down which 10,000 little frightened feet had danced to death! Broken beads—why could she not catch them . . . why could she not think straight? Was she going witless, too?)

Death!

Dancing death—swaying to the roar of temple drums—floating to the swirl of temple incense—

Death, wreathed in incense . . . set in emeralds . . .

(All the beads scattering hopelessly now . . . All the light failing. Darkness—rushing darkness—and a scream, rising . . . rising . . .)

And there, in case you haven't already guessed it, is the makings of the most gorgeous gasper that ever turned a dreary January drizzle into an Arabian night!

A serial story? Yes. But more Anklets-of-seed-pearl- and - rivers of rubies-more!

A golden woman with a body of sulky flame and eyes as cold as blue ice—

DEN OF DEMONS

Sick of worrying about hard times? Tired of hashing over the annual family brawl? Fed up on gossip and washed up on bridge?

Then here's a magic carpet that will waft you away from the boredom and blues . . . out of the walls you know too well . . . away from the streets where you've struggled too long . . . into a land of amber and spice, moonlit fountains, moonmad love and very messy death!

Dead Man's Dream, Woman's Greed Rule Fate

So put out the cat—douse the glim to a ghostly glimmer—snuggle down and—away you go!

Four last questions? All right, let's have 'em.

What's the name?

Who's the author?

Pearl Bank Steward.

Where's the place?

Time?

This coming Sunday.

That's all. And don't blame me if you miss it. Gwan—read the almanac, if that's your idea of exciting literature. But as for me—

Bong—

Bongg—

Bong-g-g-g! ! ! !

Temple drums are booming!

Temple fire are flaring—

UNWED MOTHER PROBLEM PUT UP TO PUBLIC

heart any little wisp of humanity to raise as her own, is no stranger. That word, used in relationship to myself and my babies, is a shock to me. I hadn't thought so of it; I thought they were sent to me by the forces of life, to fulfill my destiny and theirs.

Wouldn't Trade

They are now 10 and 6 years old, and I wouldn't trade them for a dozen that were my own by birth, they are so dear to me. Nothing is too much for me to do for them. They are both brilliant, talented and HAPPY.

They will never know the circumstances of their birth, so long as world thought is as it is. We have no right to send little children to pioneer in a field that we grown-ups have not yet been able to conquer. Who can justly put them up against such a hard situation?

My children take their place, without question, with my friends' children. Their opportunities are exactly the same. Their adopted father goes ahead, hewing out an honorable path for them to follow, with the family name. I have made a strong point of this, so that, if in the future, they need any sort of protection, they will know exactly where they may find it. This is their right. To give them less is to rob them of something that belongs to them.

Chance For Baby

Oh, Rose! Be big about this thing! I don't condemn you for having your baby. I feel that any woman who brings a fine little human into the world, regardless of circumstances, is doing a great thing for her race.

BUT WHAT SHE DOES WITH HIM AFTERWARD MUST BE GOVERNED BY WHAT IS BEST FOR HIM—what is best in the present set-up, since she has thrust him into it without consulting his wishes. There are many fine people ready to take children. There is a rightful place for your baby, where he will be secure and have a real chance.

My heart aches for Rose, but it will ache more for him, if she doesn't forget her own wishes, and fails to give him his chance on this blundering old planet.

World Brutality

Well—there's the letter. What's your verdict?

Admitted that "world thought" is still set against illegitimacy. Admitted, too, that even our present social chaos does not justify the recklessness which brings illegitimate babies into life. Still—

WILL WE EVER MAKE THE WORLD MORE KINDLY IF WE CONTINUE TO BOW TO ITS BRUTALITY?

OR IS THAT VERY BRUTALITY THE BEST PROTECTION THAT CAN BE GIVEN TO DECENT WOMEN AND THEIR CHILDREN?

Remember; this is not a modern problem, or an American problem. It is a problem as old as love and life. Other nations have recognized and provided for it long since. Many nations refuse to admit that ANY baby is illegitimate, and treat the unwedded mother and honor the unnamed child exactly as they treat mothers and children who are protected by wedlock.

Some of our own states have recently passed laws taking this stand. In those states a man's "illegitimate" children can now claim equal rights with his "legitimate" ones.

DO YOU AGREE WITH THAT STAND?

OR WOULD YOU BRAND ROSE AND ROB HER BABY FOREVER OF ITS REAL MOTHER, TO MAINTAIN THE OLD, RIGID STANDARDS OF OUR FOREFATHERS?

Let's hear. This paper wants to know.

The dollies and tea things had all been arranged
For a Christmas night "party," you know.

"Right after the broadcast, now please hurry home,
Or the tea will get chilled," she had said.
"My dolls will be hungry and weary for sleep
And they should be early to bed."

Oh, Little Boy Blue, whose tin soldiers faithful
Hold their vigil with never a noise—
Please send a few of your trustiest guardsmen
To watch over Gloria's toys.

Well, Larry Fay never dreamed he'd go that way. Nor did any of us who rubbed shoulders with him . . . Imagine Larry Fay not being the target of a gang feud, but the victim of "stew stuff" because a drunken and disgruntled doorman of his night club was peeved! . . . Oh, I know Larry Fay was a rough guy, but I guess I liked him because he was generous to the distressed . . . And I once sympathized with him when he groaned because a "respectable" businessman was allowed to get away with being a milk racket czar, but the law and the papers never raised a fuss about it. Fay, however, was good copy, and . . . made a delightful target . . . Golly! About eight years ago he had a million dollars! . . . And only recently I reported how Fay was so bent he peddled 200 cabs at $5 each because he needed the money and because he couldn't pay for the storage of them . . . Yes, he was a nuisance to the law—even though the police couldn't pin enough on him for a jail rap, but he had a sense of fair play—for which he was liked even by enemies . . . Never forget how angry Larry was over a crack I took at him when I found him on the wrong side of an incident . . . He stopped talking to me for a spell, and then we made up . . . Never encountered a hard guy in New York yet—who prolonged a grudge . . . I've differed with many of them, but never did they show their fangs—when they knew they were wrong.

Until recently when postoffice inspectors finally tracked a certain nuisance, but laid off until further instructions, I kept receiving nasty anonymous letters from a chump, who certainly has a good reason for disliking me . . . The letters were always signed with phony names, of course, but they never varied . . . I was a this and a that—and the same letters were sent to other writers, critics, magazines, etc., who greeted me with favorable remarks . . . Ring Lardner, however, stifled the clunk best . . . Ring got one of the missives, which read: "Why is it that you constantly mention this Winchell, when decent papers like the Times and Sun won't permit his name in their papers?" . . . Lardner wrote a reply, which was never received because it was a phony name and address, in which the humorist said: "I thought you might consider it unethical if I published your squawk or sent it to Walter, but I am pretty sure I have read the names of Gyp the Blood, Farry Thaw and Two-Gun Crowley in both the papers you refer to, etc." . . . Hehehch . . . My latest antagonist is a former yellow journalist, who reformed. He now edits a trade mag for newspapers and growls incessantly. He, too, has a good reason. I once said he edited yellow and sensational newspapers in Easton and Pittsburgh and he did! . . . In an editorial he now blames me for "Front Page" . . . Ha-ha! . . . That was heard on Chicago scribes shortly after I was expelled from P. S. 134 for being a dunce! . . . He calls me a journalistic gangster . . . Well, frankly, that's merely a pose on my part . . . So that people won't think I'm a columnist.

Reminds me of the incident about one of those typical, lazy, fresh copy boys that are on some gazettes. This kid worked on a tabloid paper . . . He lost his job and later got a similar one on the Herald Tribune . . . A reporter from his former sheet happened into the H. T.'s editorial rooms and encountering the kid, asked him how he liked his new position . . . "Oh," he replied, unhappily, "it's all right, I suppose—but you know, I'm a tabloid man at heart." . . . Funny, even if it isn't so . . . I mean the way they discipline the chorines at Radio City . . . When the girls in other theaters are caught talking during a stage number or committing some other crime, they are fined a few dollars . . . But not so at the Rockefeller Center . . . There the lassies are made to sit alone out front in the vast empty theater when the show is over! . . . Of course it gives them the willies . . . But it might be worse . . . A more inhuman punishment would be to make the poor things sit there during a performance! Readers won't believe me, but it is a fact . . . There was a Federal raid on an elaborate speakeasy a few weeks ago here . . . But what caused it was this—the owners, who were losing money there and who were stuck with a long lease, called the dry snoopers and told them that a raid would be greatly appreciated.

A Pawtucket newspaperman writes me he was surprised because he got an answer from me to a letter he sent . . . Can't understand why so many readers think a columnist is such a snob . . . If I hadn't answered him I'd never have received his second letter, which is so good it must be used . . . He said: "One of the greatest trials of the newspaper profession, and that goes for columnists, too, is that its members are compelled to see more of the world than any other profession . . . Day after day, through every newspaper office, go all the revenges that want to be reaped, and all the mistakes that want to be corrected . . . In addition we have all the men who want to be set right who never were right—all the dull speakers who want to be thought eloquent, all the crack-brained philosophers with stories as long as their hair—all the meanness that wants to get noticed . . . And last and least, we mustn't forget all the heres who come to stay five minutes and talk five hours" . . . Quitese, quitese. But it's better than going to work.

Gay Cronies Mourn for Pickford

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 6.—To a small group of men, cronies of years gone by, the passing of Jack Pickford will revive memories of the gayest period in the history of Hollywood.

For them, time will turn back to the days when the Vernon Country Club was the scene of nightly revelry, when the Sunset Inn kept a special drum and a pair of gold drum sticks for Roscoe Arbuckle, when Paul Whiteman was playing at the Alexandria.

Mr. Cody

Young bloods they were in those days, inseparable companions. Wherever things were doing, you found Jack Pickford, Lew Cody, Norman Kerry, Marshall Neilan, Roscoe Arbuckle, Paul Whiteman, James Kirkwood and Ward Crane.

For them it was nothing to take Paul Whiteman's band around to serenade Hollywood friends. For them the night was day, picture-making a carefree business and life was meant to be enjoyed.

Yes, warm memories will come flooding back to these cavaliers. To Jim Kirkwood, whose baby daughter was born as Jack lay dying; to Norman Kerry, who has just come back to Hollywood with his bride; to Marshall Neilan, back East and a little out of things now; to Lew Cody, still the bonviviant and an actor in demand; to Roscoe Arbuckle, hitting the comeback trail; to Paul Whiteman, slenderized and one of the great names of jazz.

Only Ward Crane will not remember, will not mourn, Jack—he went on ahead.

Here's a hard luck story. An M-G-M agent, who helped negotiate the talkie rights for "He Who Gets Slapped," reports that the widow of the author, Leonid Andreyev, is taking in washing to educate her children . . . The Richard Ariens have started the carpenters to work remodeling their home. Outside it will be Monterey style and inside, early American . . .

Mr. Arlen

Royer, New York fashion designer, will speak at a tea given by the Assistance League of Hollywood. The style expert came to California to visit friends in Pasadena and was promptly signed by Samuel Goldwyn to design Elissa Landi's clothes in "The Masquerader" . . . New Orleans will get a glimpse of Fifi Dorsay. The French star leaves here soon for a two weeks' visit to the southern city. Despite denials, Hollywood is sure Madge Evans and Tom Gallery are engaged.

Zasu Pitts, out for the first time since her illness, was at Agua Caliente for New Years. . . . Both Bennett girls were there. . . . Connie danced a lot with Gilbert Roland. . . . Howard Hughes divided his time between Marian Marsh and Sondra Shaw. . . . Nils Asther stagged. . . . Jesse Lasky, Jr., was the most attentive of Jean Harlow's swains. . . . Carl Laemmle, Jr., was there with Eleanor Holm,

Down at Palm Springs, the Dick Ariens entertained George Raft at the Dunes . . . Lola Lane and Lew Ayres celebrated there, too. . . . Also Ralph Farnum, Howard J. Green, Zeppo Marx, Wallie Beery, Al Dubin, Harry Warren, Buster Crabbe and many others.

Funniest New Year anecdote concerns Jack Oakie. Jack was behaving himself at a certain Hollywood party, when the author's wife, whom he had never seen before, came up and gave him a swift kick. Jack laughed it off, but presently she landed another. Still laughing, Jack remonstrated. This time, she slapped him.

To cap the climax, her husband appeared, misunderstood the slap and tried to start a fight.

WARREN WILLIAM AND ALICE WHITE DISCUSS "EMPLOYES' ENTRANCE" SCRIPT

Frank Craven's Term Is Extended

Frank Craven, playwright and actor, who went to Fox Movietone City to write adaptations and dialogue, and who was drafted for a part in "State Fair" with Will Rogers and Janet Gaynor, has had his contract extended. Mr. Craven wrote the screen adaptation for "Handle With Care."

Marion Nixon Adopts Baby Boy

Marian Nixon, Fox Film star, announced recently that she and her husband, Edward Hillman, Jr., of Chicago, had adopted a 10-weeks-old baby boy. No name has been decided upon. Miss Nixon is working at present in "Face in the Sky" opposite Spencer Tracy and Stuart Erwin.

Serious Film In Fulton

By MANUEL M. GREENWALD

A man and a maid from the grand huzzah of a champagne existence come down to the bitter realities of today in a seriously honest picture called "Faithless," which opened in the Fulton yesterday.

In it you will find the personable Robert Montgomery and the talented Tallulah Bankhead turning in sincere performances that make the film smoothly dramatic. "Faithless" is not a pretty piece of tomfoolery, for it carries with it a thought which may not be to the taste of the average movie fan.

Yet in its bitter romance there is a stimulation for fight and struggle that is inspiring when thoughtfully interpreted. This story of a money-laden society girl and her advertising man-sweetheart does not progress very far before we see them bucking the "no help wanted" signs and realizing that the big problem is not avoiding a boresome evening but principally that of reducing breadlines.

The players have not been favored with a sweet fairy tale. They must pitch in and make the best of grim facts. As they sit in a cheap restaurant over a bowl of soup, he bragging about a small trucking job, a newspaper gives information that his firm has passed to the happy hunting grounds.

That is the spirit of "Faithless"—the terrific battle that follows romance and overshadowing economic pessimism. You must expect this and be prepared to accept it in the right light if you want to enjoy the film.

'Blossom Time' Well Sung First Time In Nixon

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Blossom Time," an operetta that has been heard here frequently, achieved one "first time" record last night in spite of the very many times that its pretty story and entrancing music have delighted audiences here. It was sung for the first time in the Nixon, as the initial performance of the second part of a two-bill engagement, the other musical presentation by the same capable company having been "The Student Prince," given the first half of this week.

The very title of "Blossom Time" suggests fragrance and delicacy and lyrical beauty, and the promise—does it need to be repeated at this late day?—is thoroughly fulfilled in the story of the sadly sweet romance of the great song writer of 100 years ago, Franz Schubert. It is set to the adapted melodies of some of his immortal works, including a motif from his Unfinished Symphony, arranged by Sigmund Romberg as the haunting tune of "Song of Love," theme song of "Blossom Time."

Time and again, time and again, have the merits of this pretty, musical tale of the pathetically frustrated romance of the shy composer been detailed, and it is scarcely necessary to repeat them. It has got to the point where general acquaintance with it is taken for granted, and it is only necessary to tell how it is being done, and that can be told briefly in the statement: Most capably.

The leading male role, that of Schubert, is sung by J. Charles Gilbert, who has appeared here in the role almost as many times as the piece has been presented—fully a score—sometimes twice in a season. Mr. Gilbert never has failed to give his characterization the actual quality of shyness and simulation of musical genius to make it appear real—and he is still the artist.

Gertrude Lang, as Mitzi, the girl who captured his heart, sings sweetly and is seemingly just the paragon of maidenly modesty and charm that would appeal to a man who could sing of love but knew not how to practice it. Allan Jones, as Baron Von Schober, has vocal gifts and stage presence and acting ability to make the part as prominent as it should be, and Manila Powers, as Bella Bruna, is a dazzling charmer, lyrically and physically.

The comedy part of Kranz, the court jeweler, father of Mitzi, is the finished work of George Hassell. The character, itself, is a libel on a dignified profession, but it is as it is, and there is no one who can do a better job of clowning than this same Mr. Hassell.

All other details of the production are in keeping with the satisfactory singing and acting.

Girl Diets Off Pounds To Win Film Role

Patricia Farley, who was weighed into a motion picture career on a set of scales, has disclosed how she lost 15 pounds in 30 days in order to win a contract as a Paramount featured player. "Pat," as she is called around Hollywood, was working as an extra in "Night After Night" when Albert A. Kaufman, who is in charge of player talent, noted her good work and promised her a contract if she would reduce sufficiently. After 30 days she turned up slim and radiant and received a part in Kate Smith's "Hello, Everybody!"

Raquel Torres Cast With Jack Holt

As a direct result of her work in "So This is Africa," Columbia's Wheeler and Woolsey farce in which she had the feminine lead, Raquel Torres was selected for an important role in "Tampico," starring Jack Holt.

The Morning Musicale at Hotel Schenley yesterday brought Martha Eaton Brickman, one of our justly popular sopranos, and Hulda Lefridge as solo pianist.

Mr. Lissfelt

Miss Lefridge is far too busy a lady to devote herself to the practice, sufficient to make solo playing as it should be and I should say her playing yesterday morning was ill-advised.

Mrs. Brickman, aside from being a most attractive personality, has a very beautiful voice and sings with intensity and understanding. She is a careful singer, as far as her talents permit her, for if her high voice and pianissimo were limbered up, her music would be still finer.

Her songs were well chosen to display a variety of moods. "Befreit" of Strauss and her "Ernani" air were particularly effective. As encore she sang Gretchanioff's "My Native Land."

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

HOTEL GEORGE THE FIFTH, PARIS, FRANCE.—Paris has changed. Something has happened during the four years since I was last here. The sparkle and the spontaneous gaiety seem to have disappeared. Those funny horns and those dilapidated taxicabs have been replaced by modern klaxons and smooth-running vehicles. It's all different, somehow.

Picture my arrival in this town and this same hotel just about the same period in 1928. I stepped from the train into a station that fairly teemed with life. Two or three porters fought for my luggage and, when they finally placed me in a cab, they all cried bitterly about the dollar tip I had handed out.

As I bounced through the streets I'll swear I thought it was New Years Eve. It wasn't, of course, but it did seem that way. Lights were blazing. The bars were crowded with people who were drifting in and out. Each street seemed more exciting than the next. And all the while those silly horns kept honking as though it were an absolute necessity.

I remember turning to the gentleman who was with me.

"Lou," I cried, "isn't this great? Paris! This is 1928, and I haven't been here in so long that I've almost forgotten what it's like. Get a load of this atmosphere! Look at that bar and that funny guy with the whiskers—and that dame who's strictly on the make!

"This gets into your blood, doesn't it? Wow, what a town! Grab a load of that cute dame on the corner with that funny hat. Hey, driver, look where you're going! Didn't you see it? He just missed a couple back there by two inches. Whoopee! What a place!"

Then came the arrival at the hotel in which I am now stopping for the second time. I handed him a tip, but I remained standing where I was because I knew that driver was going to cry for more. And I wasn't disappointed.

"But, monsieur," he wailed, "my wife and my baby! They starve. Give me please another franc. Please. Thank you."

Into the hotel, then, with a grin from ear to ear. Registration and up to a room that wasn't very large—but one that, to my eyes, seemed to be but one step from heaven. This was Paris, and I was a part of it! I unpacked my trunk between jigs.

"Can't beat this life," I told my friend enthusiastically. "This is the world's greatest playground. Wait until you get a load of the night life and the orchestras and the restaurants! Boy, am I happy!"

The phone rang. It proved to be a girl I had known in New York some years back.

"Mark," she said, "this is Mabel B——. Remember me? I'm so glad. I just saw you coming through the lobby, and I just thought you'd like to renew an old friendship. What's that? You'll meet me at 8:30 tonight and we'll see the town together? Gee, that's swell. Meet you in the bar at 8:30. Righto. So long."

Great? Say, that was life. Or I thought it was, which amounts to the same thing. After the unpacking and a hurried shave, I hurried to Fouquet's, which at that time was the meeting place of all Paris.

For three hours I sat at a corner table and watched the people as they came through the revolving doors. Fascinating women. Handsome men. Strange faces. Beautiful gowns. Each new character a separate thrill. Each new entrant a different kick.

At 8 o'clock I raced back to the hotel. Time to dress now. Time to meet a girl I hadn't seen in years and investigate the night life of one of the world's most famous cities. I'd have to hurry. But what difference?

It was all so swell. It was all so different. It was all so much a part of a thrilling life.

Today I arrived at practically the same hour as I had on my previous visit. It was early evening and the lights were already blazing. But they didn't seem to have any warmth. It was foggy and the lights were strangely distant.

My taxicab glided noiselessly through the streets. When the chauffeur blew his horn on one occasion it was no different from a taxicab in New York. The bars were crowded with people who seemed strangely subdued.

I turned to Ray Cozine, who was riding with me.

"We're in Paris, Ray," I said, "but there's something different about it. The atmosphere has changed. I miss the old cabs and the old horns that never stopped honking. Everything seems different. I don't understand it. The old kick is gone."

"You're crazy," he offered excitedly, "this is a grand place. Look at that dame on the corner. Did you see her wave as we passed? And look at those crowds! Oh, boy, what a town!"

The words seemed vaguely familiar . . .

When I paid off the cab driver he accepted the tip with a gracious nod. Registration, and up to a suite that is unquestionably one of the finest in the hotel. I carried letters to Mr. Max Blouet, the amiable manager, and he was more than anxious to please. I began to unpack.

The phone rang a short time later. It proved to be a very beautiful girl; one who had been in the last Ziegfeld Follies.

"Mark," she cried, "this is B——. How are you, darling, and how have you enjoyed your trip so far? I'm just dying to see you and to dish the old dirt. Read in the paper that you were due here and I've been calling every day to find out if it was really true.

"When do we get together? I have been here a month, and what I have to tell you will knock you right off the old sofa."

I told Miss B— that I would call her in a day or so. I really did want to see her then, but I was afraid that she might stay too long. And I felt terribly tired.

Before going to bed I went with Mr. Cozine to Fouquet's. We sat at the same table at which I had sat four years before; the one right near the door.

Somehow or other the place had changed. Surely it was the same spot. It was the same location. The same doors were turning. The same amount of people were drifting in.

Everything the same—and yet it was all different. The women weren't beautiful; at least they didn't appear so to me. The men were by no means handsome. I saw no face that looked the least bit interesting. And the gowns would never entice a second look from anyone.

"Ray," I asserted, "you stay here if you want to. I haven't slept in some time—and I'm tired. I'm going back to the hotel, pound out a column that I've got in mind and go right to sleep. Do you mind?"

He shook his head.

"Not at all," he replied. "But I'll stick for awhile. This is positively swell!"

* * *

Take my word for it, my friends, Paris has changed. It has changed a great deal in four years. And yet, just before I put out the lights and got to bed, I can't help wondering about something.

Is it Paris that has changed—or is it I?

Lion Bites Swimmer! So That's News

If you want to get along with lions and tigers just ignore them, advises Buster Crabbe, world swimming champion who has been working with the jungle denizens for several weeks as the Lion Man in Paramount's "King of the Jungle." The first day before the cameras Crabbe was bitten by a lion and went to the hospital for repairs. A week later he was again bitten but not severely enough to delay production. After that he got along with a whole skin.

Barbara Weeks in Film With Regis Toomey

Barbara Weeks and Matthew Betz, who have recently completed important roles in Columbia's "Child of Manhattan," under the direction of Eddie Buzzell, are together again in the company's "State Trooper," a romantic melodrama of California's oil refinery industry, which is being brought to the screen by D. Ross Lederman. Evalyn Knapp and Regis Toomey are the principals, with Raymond Hatton and Lew Kelly cast for heavy roles.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Although he is a young man, Noel Coward, author of "Design For Living," new comedy in which he will be co-starred with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in the Nixon next week, he has appeared on stages of America, Europe and Asia. However, the Asiatic incident is merely for the records, as it was only for three days in "Journey's End," given by an amateur company in Singapore, where Mr. Coward paused during a world tour. His professional acting has been confined to the United States and England, his native country. He is making his fourth American appearance in his new play, his previous vehicles having been "The Vortex," "This Year of Grace" and "Private Lives," all the product of his own pen, as the typewriter is known in literary circles. Besides the three stars the cast of "Design For Living" includes Campbell Gullan, English actor who came over especially for this production, Gladys Henson, Phyllis Connard, Ethel Borden, Alan Campbell, Ward Bishop, Philip Tonge and Macleary Stinnette.

The final curtain for the George Sharp Players, as well as "The First Mrs. Fraser," will come at the conclusion of that play in the Pitt tomorrow night. Margaret Anglin is appearing as guest star of the company in this St. John Ervine comedy, the last three performances of which will be tonight, Saturday afternoon and evening. After that it is quite probable the house will be the theater only of its own echoes for many, many weeks, joining the solitude of its older sister, the Alvin, and again bringing the total of vacant downtown theaters to four, the others being the Aldine and Harris. Memento mori, requiescat in pace, and all that! But our resident company really is worthy of a better deal, and likely would have had it had the day been more propitious.

A Sanskrit play, 15 centuries old, will be given its first modern production by the experimental theater of Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Saturday, January 14. It is Bhasa's "Svapnavasavadatta" ('The Dream of Vasavadatta"), recently discovered in a library in India. Henry Noble McCracken, president of Vassar, will have a role in the play, which is part of a historical series in which examples of past years have been a fourteenth century liturgical drama, a Japanese play and the "Hyppolytus" of Euripides, given in Greek last year.

Window Cleaners Strike Over Rules

Thirty employes of the National Office and Window Cleaning Company, 415 Fourth avenue, went on strike today, protesting, they said, the methods used by the company's manager, D. E. Heckman, to secure new business, and the practice of employes living in the Acme Hotel, 808 Second avenue, operated by Heckman.

John Archibold and Eugene Sines, purported leaders of the strike, said Heckman paid his workers barely enough to meet their rent and forced them to live in his hotel.

Bridgeville Jeweler Routs Robber Pair

Peter Strasser, jeweler, 438 Washington avenue, Bridgeville, aroused by the clash of glass in the display window of his store, switched on the lights in his store and frightened away two robbers early today. The thieves stole $30 worth of jewelry.

First 'No-Tax' Tag Nets City $1 Check

The City of Pittsburgh received $1 today for the first of the non-fixable traffic tags. Philip H. Ecker, who received the tag, sent his check to Traffic Court, explaining that he had lost the tag.

NEWSIE TURNS DETECTIVE

In the Federal Building three weeks ago, Dominick saw a young man knock down an elderly man. A few days ago, when Dominick saw the alleged assailant again in the building, he notified a government employe, who arranged the arrest.

When the prisoner, William A. Reilly, 23, of Greenfield, was arraigned before the United States Commissioner, Dominick identified him as the assailant. Reilly denied the charge, but was held for a second hearing pending efforts to locate the victim, whose name is Stewart.

Commissioner Roger Knox said:

"Which newspaper do you sell the most?"

Dominick answered:

"The Sun-Telegraph."

STEEL FREIGHT RATE CUT URGED

A proposed reduction of freight rates on steel shipments from Pittsburgh district was approved at a meeting of the Pittsburgh District Independent Steel Traffic Association in the Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

A proposal outlined by J. A. Coakley, general traffic manager of the United States Steel Corporation, for reduction of rates on certain steel articles from Pittsburgh and Youngstown to Toledo, Cleveland and Detroit, was discussed. This will be presented at a public hearing in the William Penn Hotel, January 13, by the Central Freight Association, the Trunk Line Association and the New England Freight Association.

The meeting was attended by representatives of 44 independent steel shippers. A. R. Kennedy, traffic manager of the Pittsburgh Steel Company, presided.

How Coughs and Colds Yield to Creosote

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

The Tobacco Crop may be Short this Year—

but that can't affect Chesterfield—why?

U. S. crop (average, 5 yrs., 1927-31) .	1,091,265,750 lbs.
Estimated shortage, 1932 crop . .	339,664,750 lbs.

The manufacturer of good cigarettes does not depend on any one year's crop. He knows that to keep up the quality of his brand, he has to carry on hand at all times a large stock of the right kinds of tobacco from several years' crops.

The domestic tobaccos are kept in large hogsheads, each containing about 1000 pounds, and are allowed to age for two full years—in other words, nature's method of curing the tobaccos. Something like ageing wine.

Liggett & Myers has about four and a half miles of warehouses used for storing leaf tobacco, to make sure that its products are uniform and are as good as can be made.

To do this requires a great deal of money—for example, there is invested in the domestic and Turkish tobaccos for Chesterfield Cigarettes over $75,000,000.

Smokers can be assured, regardless of the crop conditions, that Chesterfield will be absolutely uniform—the same yesterday, today, at all times. The cigarette that's milder—the cigarette that tastes better!

They Satisfy—people know it

SIR HUBERT WILKINS -:- 'March of Time' Dramas; Al Jolson, Tom Howard -:- ON THE AIR TONIGHT

Mrs. Roosevelt Discusses Babies

Sir Hubert Wilkins, internationally known scientist famed for his polar explorations by submarine and airplane, comes to an NBC microphone to make a plea in behalf of the Salvation Army's "Share the Purchase" relief plan during the Caravan program today at 5:15 p. m.

Sir Hubert

Sir Hubert's talk, heard in Pittsburgh through KDKA, is one of a series by a long list of celebrities sponsored jointly by the Salvation Army and by the Caravan program. The "Share the Purchase" broadcasts, to continue until January 20, are presented in order to acquaint the public with the Army plan, devised to render aid to the needy through "painless" contributions.

"Bringing Up Our Babies" is the topic of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's radio talk during Leo Reisman's weekly program over WCAE at 9:30 tonight. Talking on child problems, Mrs. Roosevelt discusses her own experiences and the knowledge she has gained from years of study of child psychology and educational problems.

Outstanding current events of Europe, Asia and the two Americas are dramatized during "March of Time," over WJAS at 8:30 p. m. Review re-enactments include the most recent developments in the question of Philippine independence, a scene from the New York automobile show, the evacuation of Nicaragua by United States Marines and the renewal of hostilities between China and Japan.

Program Pointers

Hilda Burke, young dramatic soprano of the Chicago Civic Opera, who made her debut as Aida in 1929, makes her initial appearance in a new series of weekly concerts over an NBC network including KDKA at 7:15 tonight. Miss Burke, who was first acclaimed when she won a contest conducted by the National Federation of Music Clubs in 1927, will offer favorite operatic and semi-classical selections . . .

Miss Burke

The final installment of the mystery thriller, "The Black Camel," in which Charlie Chan reveals the identity of the murderer of Shelah Fane, the film star, is listed on KDKA at 7:30.

Some more of Howard and Shelton's outlandish situations, interpolated by the music of Leonard Hayton's orchestra and Betty Barthell, is WJAS's 9 p. m. feature.

"The Miracle at Rockton Grange," in which Thurston tells how he was requested to use his magic in influencing a wealthy woman to change her will and thwarted the schemes of two greedy nephews, is dramatized on KDKA at 8:45 p. m.

WWSW at 8:15 broadcasts a play-by-play account of the Grove City-Duquesne basketball game, with Ed Sprague at the microphone.

Nino Martini's tenor interpretations of the Serenade from Bizet's opera, "The Pearl Fishers," and the spirited "Ecco Ridente in Cielo," from Rossini's "Barber of Seville," are WJAS highlights at 11. The orchestral portion of the program, conducted by Howard Barlow, includes Tchaikovsky's "March Slav" and Grainger's "Country Gardens."

A group of Vincent Youman's hits and a medley, "Marching Through the States," mark Phil Spitalny's vocal-instrumental ensemble presentation at 8 o'clock on KDKA.

Auto Makers On Air At N. Y. Show

John North Willys, head of the Willys-Overland Company, speaking at the 1933 New York Automobile Show, will be heard over CBS - WJAS tomorrow morning from 10:10 to 10:15.

Other speakers scheduled on subsequent days are Paul G. Hoffman, Studebaker Corporation, Monday; Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., General Motors, Tuesday; A. J. Brosseau, Mack Trucks, Inc., Wednesday; E. L. Cord, Auburn Motor Car Corporation, Thursday, and Capt. Edward Rickenbacker, Friday.

Long's Sports Review WCAE Feature

An authentic review of happenings in the world of sport by James J. Long, sports columnist of the Sun-Telegraph, is broadcast by WCAE at 7 o'clock tonight.

An interesting program for the children is presented under the direction of Jane A. White, assistant curator of education at Carnegie Museum, from the studios of WCAE at 4:45 p. m.

Speaking from the Sun-Telegraph editorial rooms, Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, broadcasts the latest news flashes over WCAE and WJAS at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m., and over WCAE at 2:15 p. m. today.

Listening In On Radio Gossip

Muriel Wilson, the new "Mary Lou" of "Show Boat," says that flying from New York to Ohio with Clarence Chamberlain, the trans-Atlantic flier, was the greatest thrill she ever had . . . Bookings are postponing Ben Alley's honeymoon. He celebrated New Years Eve by marrying his former secretary, Mildred Mauger, of Columbus, at the stroke of midnight . . . Lennie Hayton, the maestro, also bows as a composer. He's dedicated a new tune, "Bing Bang" to Bing Crosby . . . A new singer known as "The Texan" is being offered to prospective sponsors.

Hello Ladies and Gentlemen:

Do you remember the strike of the Monaca school students? Well, the very same class that started the strike has a perfect attendance record for the last three months and is striving for a 100 per cent record for the whole semester.

Bridgeville has puzzles. John Kristoff's grandfather is Thomas Matichko, who, after the death of his first wife, married Mrs. Julia Zirney, and then John married Mrs. Zirney's daughter. This not only makes Mr. Matichko the grandfather, but father-in-law, as well, and John's grandfather's wife, his mother-in-law as well and grandmother. Does all this make Mrs. Matichko (nee Zirney) the mother or grandmother of John's wife?

Jimmie Drinkwater, the New Eagle Globe-Trotter, wants his friends to know that he is not in Elk County hunting deer. In fact, he's through with deer. He didn't get a deer, but he did get buck rheumatism, a new one on him. He's not sure whether the name refers to the animal or the dough it takes to cure him.

Miss Vern Martinsky, of Creighton, might have been surprised by the appearance of a robin on New Years Day, but here comes Charleroi with one, or perhaps, two better. Three red breasts this morning have encouraged the writer to be contemptuous of Old Man Winter.

The Pittsburgh Council of Parent Education is doing valuable work in showing how parents can aid their children to avoid certain traits of character. At a discussion the other day one said that when a child doesn't eat it is the parents' fault, to which some wag responded: "I say it's spinach."

What, no spinach? You bet there is at Anna Friedman's home on Fredonia avenue, West End. And no sand or grit in it, either. All because she puts the spinach in a large vessel under the faucet and lets the water run in a slow stream. The water fills up the container and as it spills over the side it carries with it all the impurities.

'Emperor Jones' On Air Tomorrow

The world premiere of Louis Gruenberg's opera, "The Emperor Jones," from Eugene O'Neill's famous play of the same title, by the Metropolitan Opera Company, will be carried in full by KDKA tomorrow beginning at 2 p. m. Lawrence Tibbett sings the title role.

Church Choirs Mark Greek Christmas

Warren Man Files Here As Bankrupt

Nicholas Joseph Mangus, of Warren, Pa., filed a voluntary bankruptcy in Federal Court, listing his liabilities as $23,296.19 and assets as $13,561.

RADIO TRIBUTE TO COOLIDGE

Memories of the friendship and of the nappy day in 1927 when Calvin Coolidge, then Chief Magistrate, visited Pittsburgh, will be recalled by Dr. Samuel Harden Church, an intimate friend of many years, in a special Coolidge memorial program broadcast from the studios of WCAE tonight between 10:30 and 11 o'clock.

Dr. Church was instrumental in bringing Mr. Coolidge to Pittsburgh, and he will tell of his friendship with him.

Dr. Carl A. Voss, pastor of the German Evangelical Protestant Church, Smithfield street, will lead the prayers.

E. T. Weir, of the National Steel Corporation and vice chairman of the National Committee on Industrial Rehabilitation, will tell of his close work with Mr. Coolidge in behalf of the nation's industrial engeavors.

Papale's Nephew, Child of 3, Dies

Three-year-old Frank DiNardo, nephew of Magistrate Charles Papale, died today in Pittsburgh Hospital, but the cause of death seemed a mystery. Frank, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles DiNardo, was seized with a coughing spell in his home at 128 Auburn street. It was thought he had swallowed one of the beans with which he had been playing.

But X-rays failed to bear this out. And when the child died today no cause was advanced.

FOREIGN ACTOR BAN IN SENATE

By FULTON LEWIS
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Immediate Senate action on two bills to ban foreign actors and singers from the United States as protection for American artists was promised today by Senator Hatfield (Rep.), of West Virginia, chairman of the Senate Immigration Committee.

Both measures have passed the House. They would prohibit entry of all artists of stage, screen and concert except "those of distinguished merit and ability."

Both bills are similar to a measure passed by the last session of Congress, and now law, prohibiting the entry of musicians. All three are the result of similar action pursued by Great Britain, France and other countries for several years past.

Grid Players Ask To Join Fudge Class

WILLOW GROVE, Pa., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Fifteen boy students at Upper Moreland High School, six of them members of the football team, may soon be learning to make fudge, apricot delight and other tootnsome dainties. They have asked to be admitted to the domestic science class. Supt. H. K. Rothermel said he favored their request.

Waifs Will Chase Loneliness From Childless Homes

Suppose you knew you could never have a child—and the man you loved wanted them?

What would you do? Would you go ahead and marry him, without telling him?

What is your answer?

Florence is asking, and she is plenty worried.

Dear Elsie Robinson—

Will you please help me? I have a decision to make, and it is more than I can do, it seems.

I have been going with a wonderful young man for a year now, and we have learned to love each other. He has asked me to marry him, and when he did, it was the biggest thrill of my life. I was so happy! But now I don't know what to do. Here is the reason.

I was very ill once, and the doctor told my mother that I must never try to have any children, because the strain of that would probably bring my old ailment back, or sap my strength so that I would not live long. I had T. B. You know how that is. You get well. You look as well as anybody—but you don't have real stamina any more.

And Bob loves children. He often says something about "our children" when we are talking about the future, and it simply breaks my heart when I remember I can't have them. I love them, too, but it simply can't be done.

DIFFICULT QUESTION

It is terrible. I have thought about it until my head aches and I can't eat. I love him so! I know I would be so happy as his wife, and I know I could make him happy—for we get along wonderfully together—except for that one thing. It just breaks my heart.

What shall I do?

Would it be fair if I just married him without saying anything? If I tell him I am afraid that I will lose him, because he has built so much on the idea of having a family, and looks forward to it with such pride.

And if I don't tell him—No! I don't know. It is terrible, trying to decide. If I don't tell him I know he will be heart broken, hurt—and maybe he will hate me for deceiving him.

Do you think that I, myself, could make up to him—make him happy enough so that he wouldn't mind not having the family he has dreamed of?

Please help me. I am simply desperate. FLORENCE.

SHOULD TELL HIM

Poor little kid! It's a tough break, and you have all my sympathy.

But you must tell him, honey. The chances are that if he really loves you, he will sympathize with you and love you all the more because of your broken dream.

But it wouldn't be fair for you to marry him, and let him down by not telling him just how things are. That would really be cheating him; he would be justified in being angry at you. So tell him. Then, if things are all right, they will be all right for always.

There are scores of little waifs—smiling, rosy little boys and girls—in this world, who need a loving home. Adopt a baby, if you can't have one of your own.

Career Women Must Not Overlook Mother Role—Fay King

By FAY KING

So many careers are open to women these days.

But they must not thoughtlessly disdain the "old-fashioned" women whose only career was marriage and the home.

Those women had just as much talent and ability, but lacked that greatest essential to any career—opportunity!

Not so long ago women novelists had to write under men's names to be more acceptable to publishers and the public.

To choose the stage, once, practically meant ostracism.

Even to go to work to help along the meager family funds was frowned upon!

In my own career, how often I have regretted that my mother did not have my opportunity. Her artistic talent and writing ability would have far surpassed mine.

But, God bless her, her career, alas, was only—"me!"

Dicky Hears of Robert Savarin's Legacy

For a few seconds after I had told Dicky of Philip Veritzen's proffer, to Lillian and Harry, of any sum needed to complete the ransom demanded by the kidnapers of Marion and Carolyn, his face was so dour that I wondered if his old foolish jealousy was imagining some possible appeal of mine to Philip Veritzen for aid. Then he spoke crisply and I realized with relief that I had no part in the picture he was drawing.

"That's mighty white of the old goat," he said, "and of course we will have to accept it if there's no other way. But that will mean slavery for Harry and Lily the rest of their lives. Of course, old Phil wouldn't want the money back, but can you imagine Lil or Harry resting until the last cent of it had been paid?"

"I know that," I said quietly, then, bracing myself for the revelation, I added, "but they won't have to go into economic slavery. There is a sum of money at their command sufficient to make up what the rest of us cannot raise; but they don't know it yet."

Dicky's incredulous stare again suggested a suspicion that my brain was turning, under the strain of suspense and terror.

"Please, Dicky, do not make it hard for me to tell you a secret that I have kept from everybody ever since Robert Savarin's death."

DIVULGES SECRET

He started violently, then struck his fist against his knee.

"I knew there was something unexplained about that deathbed visit at the time," he said, "but it wasn't exactly cricket to go poking my nose into something you and Lil wanted to keep to yourselves."

"Lillian knows nothing of what I am going to tell you," I said. "It is a secret that I share only with Mrs. Cosgrave, Robert Savarin's sister."

"And you are now privileged to spill it?"

"I could have told you at any time," I said, "but I was afraid you would be angry."

He threw himself back in his chair so forcibly that the wood cracked.

"For the love of Abimilech, also Josiah," he exclaimed, "will you get on with this? Shoot the works! Spill the beans! But do it quickly."

"It's a very short story," I said. "Robert Savarin, as you know, was a comparatively rich man at the time of his death, with his sister his only relative. Half of his fortune provided for her in safety, comfort, even luxury, for the rest of her life. The other half he wanted Lillian and Marion to have, but he knew Lillian would not take the gift, and he was afraid if he willed it to either Lillian or Marion, there might be unpleasant publicity——"

EXPLAINS TRANSACTION

"I'll say there might!" Dicky commented explosively. "Can't you imagine the headlines? And everybody in Lil's world knew how nearly she came to marrying Savarin after old Harry raised such merry hell with everything. And Harry would never have stood for Lil's touching a penny of Savarin's money; or Marion, either."

"Robert knew that," I said slowly, "yet he could not die until he had made Lillian's future secure, so he——"

Dicky's face darkened. He bent forward almost menacingly.

"You don't mean—What did he do?" he demanded.

"You promised not to be angry," I said spiritedly, "and I do mean just what you think. With his sister's approval, and her signature as a witness, he deeded the half of his property to me, so that in any future need of Lillian's or Marion's I could come to the rescue."

"Deeded it to you absolutely, with no strings, no proviso that it was in trust for Lil?"

"Nothing. I could not have had a free hand with it, otherwise."

"And wouldn't that have been a sweet mess for me, if the transaction was ever discovered?" Dicky commented, then sprang to his feet at the look on my face.

"Yes, I am a selfish brute," he said, "even to think of that at this time. Even Harry could not refuse it for this. But I don't envy you the job of telling him about it."

Hints for the Household

The new tooth brush should be washed in soap and water and rinsed thoroughly before using. How often has a clerk in a drug store shown you the quality of the bristles by running his fingers through them leaving behind germs rampant? Be on the safe side and clean up the brush before using.

Jellies will set much more quickly if the mold is placed in a basin of cold water to which a handful of coarse salt and washing soda has been added. The mold should be rinsed in cold water or brushed with olive oil before the mixture is poured into it.

Unpleasant odors can be dispelled from a room with a raw onion. Cut the onion into small pieces and drop into a basin containing cold water. The onion quickly absorbs the unpleasant odor, leaving the apartment fresh.

To remove cocoa stains, rub the stain gently with a little glycerine, rinse in tepid water, then iron with a moderate iron on the wrong side of material till dry.

Never add water to chocolate when melting it. Shave or shread the chocolate into small pieces and put in the top of a double boiler over hot water. Do not allow water to boil while chocolate is melting, as high temperature destroys flavor of chocolate.

When a door squeaks as it is opened or closed, if you take a small piece of blacklead—even a stout lead pencil will do—and rub the hinges with this, the squeaking noise will disappear.

When washing white window frames, a little whiting added to the final rinsing water will improve their appearance, as this water goes into all the cracks and dries white, preventing those grubby lines which even the most careful washing sometimes leaves.

Steamed puddings can be made prior to serving; they can be cooled, stored in a cool place, and when desired for serving they can be quickly heated in a double boiler.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Playing the Right Card

The importance, even with a worthless hand, of giving your partner the benefit of all the information so that his play may net the largest number of tricks is one frequently minimized even by expert players. There are a few players who boast that they never play an encouraging card, and this practice is sometimes aptly described as the practice of "deucing" your partner.

Recently in a Duplicate game at Crockford's Club, New York, the East player, through following the expert practice in this respect, enabled Mr. Walter Malowan, playing South, to make a doubled contract, plus 3 overtricks, by means of a pretty squeeze.

The hand and bidding were:

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ A Q 9 5 3 ♡ K 9 ◇ 10 2 ♣ A J 10 5
♠ K 8 ♡ A Q 6 2 ◇ K Q J 5 ♣ Q 7 6	North West East South	♠ 10 6 2 ♡ 8 5 4 ◇ 8 7 4 3 ♣ 9 4 2
	♠ J 7 4 ♡ J 10 7 3 ◇ A 9 6 ♣ K 8 3

Mr. Walter Malowan

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♡	Double	Pass
2 N T	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
3 N T	Double	Pass	Pass
Pass

South's two notrump response to his partner's Double of one heart was slightly optimistic, but having passed originally, he could not greatly mislead her. West's Double of the three notrump contract looked reasonably safe, and possibly might result in a bad set. However, due to East's faulty play, the contract was made.

West made the correct Opening lead of the diamond King, but East, having listened to experts tell how echoes were unnecessary, played the diamond 3, and West read this as an instruction to switch to another suit. The next lead was a small heart, upon which the 9 was played from Dummy, and Mr. Malowan overtook with the Ten in his own hand in order to finesse the spades. He then led a small spade, finessed the Queen, and followed with the Ace from Dummy, which dropped the King. The club finesse was guessed correctly, due partly to West's double, and West was hopelessly squeezed when South took all his club and spade tricks. He could not hold the Ace of hearts and also keep the Queen of diamonds protected, and South not only made his contract, but 3 overtricks as well.

TODAY'S QUESTION

If one notrump is bid and made on one hand, and one notrump bid and made twice by the same side on two following hands (assuming opponents do not win a game meanwhile), is a game scored for the three tricks at notrump?

Answer: No. If one notrump is made on three hands, the total part-score is only 90 points, for the first trick at notrump counts 30 points always, each hand being considered separately. In other words, the first trick over six at notrump never counts 40; only the even-numbered tricks over six count 40 points.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Lacquered wigs are smart and arty, but they are trying to any countenance other than the youthful one blessed with the fresh, perfect complexion. Their smooth surface and hard lines are not flattering. But they make a grand sensation at the evening party.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Baby's Name

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

If I name my baby Barbara Ann, I should like to use that name only for written purposes and call her "Babs." Would it be proper to fill in the announcements like this: "Barbara Ann "Babs" so the people will know her nickname?

No. The birth announcements should be carried out in formal fashion. And, besides, there isn't much point in announcing the nickname of the baby, for your friends will know that later.

Marriage Announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am about to be married the second time and I am going to the country and am to be married from my parents' home. I am divorced and have used my maiden name since my divorce in business and otherwise, and I would like to know the correct form to use on my announcement cards?

Most of my friends know that I have been married before and that I have been using my maiden name. S.

If the use of your maiden name was granted to you by the court as you got your divorce, and if you have used this name ever since, then this is the form that you would use on your marriage announcements. If you have kept your maiden name and used Mrs. before it, as some women do, then this is the form that would appear on your marriage announcements.

Be Sensible about the FLU

With every epidemic of influenza comes an epidemic of advice. But if you have the flu—or you even suspect its presence—there's just one thing to do. Call a doctor immediately.

There are, however, some simple and sensible precautions everyone should take at this time. Try to keep in good physical condition. Guard against colds or sore throat by avoiding contact with all coughers and sneezers. The germs of disease will often fasten upon the man or woman whose vitality has been lowered by a severe cold.

If you should catch a cold, Bayer Aspirin will help fight it. Keep a supply of these tablets in the house and take them according to directions at the first sign of any cold. Crush three Bayer Aspirin tablets in half a glass of water and gargle as directed, if there is any soreness of the throat.

Be sure to use the genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets stamped with the Bayer cross.

Above all, don't delay calling your doctor if you have reason to suspect that you may have caught the flu.

Many Kinds of Cheese Offer Highly Nutritious Food

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

In a newspaper article the other day I saw an interesting article about a New York store. It was stated that in its grocery department are to be found more than 100 different kinds of cheese. Every country in the world has made its contribution.

We need not be astonished that cheese is made everywhere. Milk is the fundamental food. In all lands it is the first and chief article in the diet. But it is a perishable substance and in the fluid form soon becomes worthless. It was natural to seek some means of preserving its good qualities. Butter and cheese were found to do this.

Since butter is difficult to keep, cheese has found greater popularity in many lands. Its study is equal to a course in geography.

NUTRITIOUS FOOD

Cheese is a highly nutritious food. Pound for pound it exceeds the value of beefsteak. A pound of the best cheese carries all the fat and protein of a whole gallon of milk. It retains the mineral substances of the fluid, being rich in lime, sulphur and phosphorus, with a considerable percentage of iron.

There is a popular notion that cheese is difficult to digest. This valuable food does not deserve such a reputation.

I venture to say that meat and eggs and bread and butter could gain a reputation equally bad if they were eaten in the same manner and at the same times that a great deal of cheese is consumed. Suppose you have finished a meal and then ordered a quarter of a pound of fried ham, or three eggs—don't you believe your already crowded stomach would rebel? Would it not utter a protest if you took a big meal of meat and potatoes at midnight?

EASILY DIGESTED

Cheese is commonly eaten at the end of the meal or as an important part of a late supper. If made a part of the regular meal, displacing other protein and fat food, it is as easily digested as more familiar articles of diet.

There are two chief types of cheese. They are the soft varieties, like Neufchatel, Gorgonzola, Camembert and Brie, and the hard types, like Roquefort, Edam, Swiss, Cheddar and American.

Space does not permit any extended discussion of the particular virtues of each of these varieties. All are desirable, but some are richer in certain qualities than others. Some of the great food authorities contend, for example, that Swiss cheese and American cheese carry at least a half dozen times as much lime as cottage cheese. But all are valuable in their contribution of minerals, vitamins, proteins and fats.

I wish there were some way to popularize the eating of cheese in America. In various countries they consume per capita many times the amount we use.

Really, cheese is too delicious and too health-promoting to be neglected. Talk with your grocer next time you visit him. Let him show you the many varieties he has in stock.

TEACHER'S AUTO INJURES 4

Two girls and two men were injured, one seriously, early today when an automobile overturned at Bayard and Devonshire streets after colliding with another machine.

The drivers, Miss Lelia Rupp, of 524 Osceola street, a teacher in the Taylor Allderdice School, and Arthur Carolis, 20, of 256 Omega street, were arrested on reckless driving charges.

Carolis and his companions, Miss Julia Kern, 20, of White Valley, Pa.; Miss Gerry Swam, 18, of Murraysville, and John Gavana, 20, of 6404 Jackson street, were taken to Homeopathic Hospital. Miss Kern suffered a probable fracture of the skull.

Bad Check Warning Follows Clue Here

ALTOONA, Pa., Jan. 6.—A plot to flood this district with bogus checks was charged today by J. H. Shearer, president of Penn Central Light and Power Company, who warned against checks printed on yellow paper and purporting to have been drawn by the company on the First National Bank of Patton, Pa.

Shearer said the company had been notified by a printer in Pittsburgh that a young woman had ordered the checks, and that the printer had become suspicious after delivering them to her.

Prudence Penny's Recipes

FRENCH CHEFS have discovered that sugar is a priceless ingredient in meat cookery; it ripens and mellows the flavor; seals the flavor behind a deliciously crisp brown crust; colors, flavors and enriches the gravy; adds slightly to the nutritional qualities and tenderness of the meat and permits the cooking at a lower temperature.

If you've never tried sugar in cooking meats, prepare to try it now. For I have some original, distinctive and highly interesting French recipes for you.

DELMONICO ROAST

Run through the grinder 1 pound of chuck or round of beef and ½ a pound of lean pork. Add 1 small minced onion, 1 green pepper, very finely chopped, and 1 pimiento cut in small pieces. Season with 1½ teaspoons sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper and paprika.

Add 1 cup soft bread crumbs and 1 well-beaten egg. Mix all very thoroughly and shape into a loaf. Dredge all over with a mixture of 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar and 2 tablespoons flour. Place in a dripping pan in a hot oven and leave to cook without liquid for 20 minutes. Then add 2 cups canned tomatoes or a can of tomato soup, 1 small onion, chopped, and a very small piece bay leaf. Continue cooking for 30 to 40 minutes longer; serve on a hot platter and strain the gravy into a gravy boat.

MOCK FILET MIGNON—Mix 1½ pounds finely ground chuck or rump steak with 1 tablespoon finely ground suet, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, ¼ teaspoon pepper and paprika to taste.

ITALIAN HAMBURG—Chop 2 medium sized onions and brown in 1 tablespoon of olive oil, adding a teaspoon of sugar. Turn in one pound of hamburg steak ground fine, stir till well browned, sprinkling over the meat as it cooks ½ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon sugar.

RAISIN SAUCE TO SERVE WITH HAM—¾ cup light brown sugar, ⅓ cup water, 1 cup seedless raisins, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon cornstarch, juice of 1 lemon, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 glass currant or grape jelly, ¼ teaspoon ground cloves.

Put the sugar and water in a saucepan and bring slowly to the boiling point, stirring until the sugar is dissolved. Add butter, raisins, jelly, salt and cloves. Stir constantly while adding the cornstarch that has been rubbed to a smooth paste in a little cold water. Cook 10 minutes, remove from fire and stir in the lemon juice.

FRESH BEEF TONGUE WITH SOUR CHERRIES AND FRENCH TOAST SANDWICHES—4 pounds tongue, 1 stick cinnamon, 2 bay leaves, 1 stalk celery, 2 scant tablespoon salt, 10 whole cloves, 1 onion and 1 carrot, juice of one lemon.

Boil the tongue with the other ingredients in enough water to cover. When tender peel tongue and cut into slices.

Part 2—1 quart pitted sour cherries, ¼ pound blanched almonds, cut lengthwise into strips; juice of two lemons, rind of one lemon cut into strips; ½ cup sugar.

Put layer of tongue in pot, cover with one-third of the above ingredients. Alternate layers of tongue and other ingredients until all are used. Simmer over a slow fire while you prepare the toast. Save some of the cherry juice for the sandwiches.

Part 3—1 loaf white bread, cherry juice from the quart of cherries, 4 eggs, currant jelly.

Cut each slice of bread in halves. Spread one piece with jelly, top with a plain piece of bread. Dip each sandwich quickly in the cherry juice, then into the beaten eggs and fry until a golden brown. Serve tongue and cherries on one platter and French toast sandwiches on another.

INDIAN PUDDING—6 tablespoons cornmeal, 1 quart scalded milk, 3 tablespoons fat, 1 cup cold mink, ¾ cup molasses, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon ginger, 3 eggs, well beaten.

Add the cornmeal gradually to the scalded milk, while stirring constantly, and cook in the top of a double boiler for 20 minutes. Then add the fat, cold milk, molasses, salt and spices, and pour over the beaten eggs while stirring constantly. Turn into one large, greased pudding dish. Set in a pan of warm water and bake in a slow oven of 325 degrees Fahrenheit for 1¼ hours or until a silver knife inserted in the center comes out clean. Serve hot or cold with whipped cream or vanilla ice cream. Serves 6. If preferred, turn into about 8 greased individual casseroles and bake as above. Evaporated milk diluted one-half with water may be used in this recipe.

It's really simpler than it looks.

Cipher No. 36 was easy after you figured out the first two or three letters, wasn't it? To get the answer you took the highest letter in the alphabet and subtracted the lower one from it.

This way—"K" (11) subtracted from "L" (12) gives you "1," or the letter "A." Continuing in this fashion you obtain the complete message.

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Neale's Unequaled Feat. At Peak in Two Fields. Herman Gives Piet Job.

Martin in Floor Game. Recalls Bue Opposition. Amateur Icers Praised.

MAKES WORLD SERIES AND ROSE BOWL

SPEAKING OF MEN who gained prominence in both baseball and football, Will Wedge advances for Alfred Earle (Greasy) Neale, present gridiron coach at West Virginia University, a claim to unique leadership. Neale has climbed higher in the two sports than any other man in history. There have been better known players and better known coaches, but nobody else can boast of having had a hand in the classic grand finales of both the diamond and the gridiron—the world series in baseball and the Rose Bowl game in football.

Greasy Neale

And to make his double achievement stand out all the more prominently, Neale came through both classics without defeat. He played rightfield for the victorious Cincinnati Reds in all eight games of the 1919 world series against the Chicago Black Sox, making a batting average of .357, and he coached the unbeaten Washington and Jefferson football team of 1921 that was chosen to play at Pasadena against the University of California on January 2, 1922, and held the Golden Bears to a scoreless tie to uphold the prestige of the East.

REVIEWING THE NUMEROUS things for which Babe Herman has been responsible since he became a National League fixture in 1926, Brooklyn fans figure that in an indirect way Tony Piet owes his job as second baseman of the Pirates to the former Dodger and Red.

Had Herman signed his Brooklyn contract last March, instead of holding out, he would not have been traded to the Reds, and Second Baseman Tony Cuccinello therefore would not have become a Dodger. It is said Pittsburgh was after Cuccinello and probably would have landed him if Brooklyn had not entered the field as a rival bidder.

BUT CINCINNATI WANTED Ernest Lombardi, and when circumstances enabled Max Carey to offer Herman and Wally Gilbert in addition for Cuccinello, Joe Stripp and Clyde Sukeforth, the Pirates didn't have a chance to get the man they sought.

If Cuccinello had come to Pittsburgh, he would have been assigned to the regular second base job as the only seasoned candidate for the position, and Piet would have lost the chance to develop that fell to him later. So Herman's holdout was a break for Piet.

THOUGH GUS MANCUSO is to be the Giants' first-string catcher, with Frank Hogan and Bob O'Farrell gone, Manager Bill Terry plans to give plenty of work to Paul Richards, Minneapolis recruit. Richards, a Texan, is 24, stands 6 feet 1½ inches and weighs 180 pounds. He started professionally as a third baseman six years ago with Crisfield in the Eastern Shore League. This is his third time up. The Browns farmed him out in 1927 and 1928 to four different clubs and finally dropped him. Brooklyn farmed him to Hartford in 1931 and recalled him for 1932, but Manager Carey had no room for him and was forced to let him go to Minneapolis without a string, as Paul had already been optioned the number of times allowed by baseball law. Donie Bush, who was the youngster's manager last year, says the Giants have landed a prize. Bush would have recommended Richards to Cincinnati if he had known he was to manage the Reds.

Pepper Martin

JOHN LEONARD MARTIN, otherwise Pepper, whose plunge from a regular season batting average of .300 and a world series mark of .500 in 1931 to the lowly figures of .238 was one of the baseball tragedies of 1932, is playing professional basketball this winter in an effort to preserve physical fitness and keep himself hard.

If basketball helps Pepper to keep from being injured in baseball by improving his shiftiness and balance, the lack of which has caused most of his hurts, it will be well worth while for him and the Cardinals. National League fans are unwilling to believe he can't come back. He has too much spirit to be stopped.

THE GAME-GOERS in every city are pulling for Martin, too. They like his style. He surely plays ball as if he meant it. If his spirit of hustle and try could be retailed, there isn't a club in the majors that could not benefit itself by laying in a stock of it.

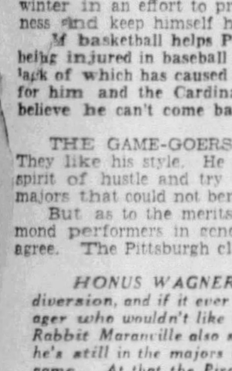
But as to the merits of basketball as a winter exercise for diamond performers in general, the club owners and managers do not agree. The Pittsburgh club, in particular, was long opposed to it.

HONUS WAGNER played basketball for years as a winter diversion, and if it ever hurt his baseball playing there isn't a manager who wouldn't like his whole club to be hurt in the same way. Rabbit Maranville also spent many an off season on the courts, and he's still in the majors after 20 campaigns, the age marvel of the game. At that the Pirate management made him give it up after his third season here, fearing it was putting too great a strain on his legs. Harry Riconda also was ordered to quit basketball when he was obtained with Jess Petty from Brooklyn in the Glen Wright deal after 1928. The objections of the Buccaneer owners dated back to the winter of 1908-09, when First Baseman Jimmy Kane almost lost an eye because an opponent stuck a finger in it during a game in the old Central League.

EVEN THE SLANG in billiard rooms has been cut 50 per cent in time of depression. At least that's the report that Jack Doyle, Eastern billiard veteran, brought back after attending a meeting of the New York Billiard Room Keepers' Association.

"It's so bad down our way now," one of the downtown members declared, according to Doyle, "that the pocket billiard players are even trimming on their slang. They say now 'He wound up behind the four ball.' It used to be the eight ball."

ONE OF HOCKEY'S all-time greats, Nels Stewart, now playing center for the Boston Bruins in the National League, insists that the amateurs of the days when Pittsburgh had the original Yellow Jackets were just as good as the professionals.



Nels Stewart

Stewart, who was playing for Cleveland at that time, names Roy Worters, Harold Darrah Herb Drury, Harold Cotton, Duke McCurry and Mickey McGuire, then with Pittsburgh, in a list of players offered in support of his contention that the amateur hockey of that period was of major league quality.

STEWART RELATES THAT the only time he was injured in amateur hockey was in a national championship series against Pittsburgh. "It was the final game, and we were handing Pittsburgh a 5-to-0 defeat," he says. "Then, two minutes before the end of the game, my shoulder was broken, and I was forced to hang around all summer with the arm in a sling. However, that was just a break of the game. I might have slipped and done the same thing in the street. We had a fine team in Cleveland, with Verne Turner, Moose Jamieson, Hardy Winters, Joe Debartney and Jimmy Cree. One of our spares was Mickey McGuire, who played later for Pittsburgh. That club could have gone into professional hockey and done well for itself. I am willing to go on record as believing the old amateur teams were of big league caliber."

FIFTH AVENUE, PEABODY IN HEADLINER

By JULIUS LEVIN

Basketball will come into the sports spotlight this afternoon and evening when the members of the City League and the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League inaugurate their championship races.

The battle for the City League championship is divided into two sections, each of which are composed of seven schools, while the W. P. I. A. L. competition involevs 18 sectional frays.

While the City League rosters in both sections remain intact for the 1933 competition, the W. P. I. A. L. sectional affairs have undergone several changes.

SCHOOLS DROP OUT

Uniontown High School, former state champion, has withdrawn from the league insofar as basketball competition is concerned, owing to its displeasure over the section in which it was placed, while Youngwood and East Washington have turned in last-minute resignations because of financial conditions.

As a result of East Washington's withdrawal from Section XV, Carmichaels, also known as Cumberland Township, has been moved from Section XVI to fill the vacancy.

The City League program for this afternoon is an unusually attractive one. The section I frays are headed by the Fifth Avenue-Peabody battle at Peabody. Fifth Avenue always has a smooth-working floor machine and this year's quintet is no exception to the general rule. Coach Chester Briggs' combination is heralded as one of the favorites to win the section I crown. In engaging Coach Lambie's Peabody team the Uptowners, however, it is meeting a powerful opponent. Allderdice plays at Connelley Trade and Westinghouse appears at South High in the other section I duels.

FAVORITES IN ACTION

Two of the favorites in the section II competition likewise oppose tough foes in their league openers. South Hills, boasting a veteran quintet, entertains Langley, while Carrick is host to Chester Smith's Perry floor machine. Perry, fresh from its victory in the championship football game with Westinghouse, hopes to add the basketball trophy to its collection.

Schenley High, the defending City League champion, plays a non-league game with Steubenville in Steubenville. Schenley also met this team in a football game last fall. Allegheny, coached by Harry M. Springer, is the defending champion in Section II.

The W. P. I. A. L. sectional fights get under way tonight with a flock of interesting duels up for disposal. Braddock High, of Section VIII, is the defending champion. This section looms as the best balanced in the entire W. P. I. A. L. and a mad scramble for the title is expected in this group.

MEET TURTLE CREEK

The Hudson floor machine begins its fight for the retention of its laurels against Turtle Creek Union tonight at Braddock. Scott High, coached by Johnny Reed and undefeated in nine pre-sea-

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: TYPIST WORKS HARDER THAN COAL SHOVELER—Using a gauge to determine the ounce pressure, it has been found that a single stroke of a typewriter key from inertia to printing point requires 12 ounces of pressure. Based on the record of Miss Stella Willins, winner of the 1928 International Typing contest at Toronto, of 38,306 strokes in an hour, a fast typist expends enough energy in an hour to lift 15 tons and in a six or seven-hour day the record would be around 100 tons. These astounding figures were revealed during the National Business Show at the Stevens Hotel in Chicago, November 13, 1929.

Maybe they'll go better on their own floor and maybe they are doomed for a siege of the staggers before they finally hit their stride. But whether or no, Duquesne University's Dubious Dukes of basketball have their second major test of the season a week ahead of them tonight. The test will be offered by Grove City's veteran Crimson passers, the scene of action to be the Dukes' gym.

Bob Thorn

Switching to the Pitt Stadium Pavilion floor Tuesday night, the Dukes, touted as possessing in the most plentiful quantity of all tri-state district squads the ingredients for an unbeaten season, were taken to the cleaners by Westminster. The team failed to click in the manner in which Coach Chick Davies thought it should, and a shakeup in the varsity lineup has resulted. Tonight, Capt. Bunk McGeever, veteran center, and Jim MacDougall, a junior forward, will ride the bench at the start of festivities, at least.

STARS DEMOTED

So incensed was Coach Davies with the way in which his players ignored his instructions in the Westminster game that he kept them in the Stadium for an hour after the game and put them through a workout. He still was lugging the torch the day following the demotion of the stars resulted. A defeat by Grove City tonight will just about cause Coach Chick to ask for waivers on his entire squad.

This Grove City team will be no setup. It wasn't as strong a year ago as it is today, and at that, the Dukes were hard pressed to win by 25-22 and 25-23 in a home-and-home series. Tonight, old Silver Fox Thorn has a smooth-working machine primed for the locals, a squad which has been convinced as only Thorn can convince, that it is the underdog and therefor, will be doubly tough to take.

Starting in the places of the demoted regulars will be Irving Brenner, former Fifth Avenue High School star, subbing for Capt. McGeever, and Paul Birch, former Homestead luminary, in for MacDougall. Feldman, Reiter and Moore will complete the lineup.

STAVNITSKY STAR

Coach Thorn's starting lineup isn't exactly set, but it figures to have Minnick and Buck Tomko at the forwards, Soich at center (a braw lad) and George Stavnitsky and Bud Laycock at the guards. This fellow Stavnitsky—what a man! He has all the color and class of a Frank O'Doul, and when he is right and wants to go—he's a T. N. T. cocktail for any team.

Chief among the Grover reserves is the speedy and experienced Bernard Fegley, who, despite a bum ankle can be counted upon to cause the Dukes anxious moments for as long as he's in there.

The Tipoff

Coaches Hannum and Carlson, of Tech and Pitt, respectively, have their floor charges ready for tomorrow's Eastern Intercollegiate Conference tilts. Pitt meets Temple here in the Stadium Pavilion while the Tartans pry off the lid of their 1933 season by tussling with West Virginia at Morgantown. The task confronting the Tartans is by far the toughest.

Hannum, making his debut as a college mentor, gets a break in that his Tartans will be the underpups tomorrow. Such would not be the case were Red Fergus and Lou Jagnow in the well-known pink, but with this pair scheduled to perch on the bench, the Tartans will have to make an uphill battle of it against Francis Stadsvold's talented West Virginians. Der Maxis isn't certain of his lineup, and won't be until game time.

Pitt defeated a strong Temple team here a year ago in the first game of the season with a team not as sporty as the one wearing the Gold and Blue this winter. In the meantime, the Owls, according to all available information, have not improved to any noteworthy extent, and though coached by a cagy and accomplished mentor, Jimmy Fallon, they'll find the job of stopping the speedy Panthers far from soft.

BOOTERS SET FOR BATTLE

By TOM BIRKS

With one victory needed to sew up the Central District Soccer League crown, Lawrenceville goes into its battle with Clan Douglas tomorrow afternoon at Leslie Park with the utmost confidence.

Jimmy Dunlop and his mates have been staging practice sessions this week to get into shape, and followers of the Strip aggregation feel that the crown now worn by the Union Switch and Signal outfit, of Swissvale, will land in Lawrenceville around sunset tomorrow.

Douglas must win the game outright to force a playoff, and with this in mind the Leslie Park booters can play a strictly defensive game all afternoon.

Lawrenceville has the best goalkeeper in the district in Henderson. Moreman and Mangus are not as dependable as McDonald and Craig, provided Craig plays fullback. Injuries have forced Manager Adam Miller to bring Lynch into the lineup at fullback, and send Craig to the halfback line. Tennyson and Stirling have nothing on Boyle and Gifford, so that evens up matters as far as the halfbacks are concerned.

Douglas has been making many changes in the forward line, and this may hurt its chances. Miller was decidedly weak last Saturday against Switch, and McNair is too much in the veteran class to play in the forward line. Marshall, Moir and Smith, however, are good inside men.

The game will get under way at 3 p. m.

GOODWIN, DURAN WIN

SPORT VIGNETTES

At lunch the other day, this writer ran into a former college football star . . . It was the day after Pitt's crushing defeat by Southern California in the Rose Bowl game . . . The former star was decrying the fact that the Panthers had had a fine season ruined by the setback in the post-season clash . . . He was in a bad humor about the manner in which the sport is being conducted and predicted that the time will come in the not distant future when college football either will be placed on an out-and-out professional basis, with the players being well paid for their services, or abandoned altogether.

"Of course, we all know that Pitt took the Tournament of Roses game, after its sad experience in the same event three years ago, because it needed the money to help pay off the Stadium indebtedness," the former player said . . . "However, I seriously question if it was worth the price . . . Here were a lot of college boys who had gone through the toughest season in the university's football history being forced to accept humiliation as a reward for their splendid efforts . . . No matter how much was received in payment by the university, it wasn't enough to pay for the loss of prestige . . . The defeat put Pitt and Pittsburgh and eastern football on the spot . . . The sacrifice was too great.

"College football has entirely outgrown its original scope, which was sport for sport's sake . . . It has grown into a gigantic business to glorify colleges and universities and attract students there by the glamour of newspaper headlines . . . The competition is intense, the games are fiercely fought, the boys are asked to 'die' for alma mater and their coaches . . . And football leaves its mark in no uncertain manner. . . . Gather together any group of former players and check up on them if you doubt my word. . . . This man has a trick knee by which to remember his football career . . . That one has a bad ankle . . . Another has a pain in his shoulder which bothers him in bad weather . . . Bill Jones is punch-drunk from a kick in the head.

"And who is the gainer? . . . . Is it the college or the university? . . . . Is the Stadium, which has been paid off at the cost of human misery, a fitting monument? . . . . No, emphatically, no! . . . . This football business, if you want my frank opinion, is nothing more or less than a racket for high-salaried coaches and graduate managers, who do not take the punishment, but get fat salaries . . . In return, the players, who take all of the hard knocks, are lucky to get an education, and that is begrudged them by reformers who blush with shame at the thought of 'commercialism' in the college ranks . . . . There will be no solution until we meet the issue fairly and openly pay the players their honest share of what they draw at the gate and regard them as profesional performers playing to pay their way through college . . . . Either that, or by cutting out the so-called sport entirely."

A letter is at hand from a fair defender of the Pitt players, Miss Edith Grove, of Altoona, who writes . . . "I don't want the scalp of Dr. Sutherland or any of his fine players, but I would like to have several dozen of Mr. Winchell's famous orchids to toss at them . . . Win or lose, right or wrong, I think they're swell . . . In my opinion, Ted Dailey and Joe Skladany are the finest pair

THORNHILL SET AT STANFORD

PALO ALTO, Cal., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The Board of Athletic Control of Stanford University has recommended that Claude E. (Tiny) Thornhill, who has assisted Glenn S. (Pop) Warner with the Stanford football teams since Pop came here nine years ago, be appointed successor to Warner, who leaves Stanford to coach at Temple University in Philadelphia.

Tiny Thornhill

The recommendation, which is considered tantamount to appointment, was made at a meeting last night.

Thornhill learned his football at the University of Pittsburgh under Warner. He enrolled in 1913 and was graduated in 1917. He was named All-American tackle on the 1916 team, which has been called the greatest in Pittsburgh's gridiron history.

Thornhill was graduated as a mining engineer, but the ink was hardly dry on his diploma before he was playing professional football at Massillon, O. He later coached pro football at Cleveland.

After two years' Army service in the World War, he began his college coaching career at Centre College, where he was assistant in 1920 and 1921.

When Warner accepted the coaching position at Stanford in 1922 he sent Thornhill and Andy Kerr, now at Colgate, out to the Coast to lay the groundwork for him.

In addition to his football activities, Thornhill played basketball both in college and as a professional. He is 39 years old and of Scotch-Irish descent. He was born April 14, 1893, in Warrenton, Va., and was reared in Beaver, Pa.

'FAKE' CHARGES THREATEN TUNNEY-DEMPSEY FIGHT

SYNOPSIS

Tunney's K. O. victory over Tom Gibbons on June 5, 1925, puts him in line as Jack Dempsey's challenger and the late Tex Rickard opens negotiations for that match while partisans of Harry Wills, Negro contender, start bitter "knocking" campaign against Gene. The latter agrees to fight Wills, but Harry fails to show up to sign articles, confident that the New York boxing officials would uphold his prior claim to the Dempsey match. Affairs are now nearing a climax in Tunney's career, which he has described in previous chapters from his boyhood days in Greenwich Village, through the A. E. F., and up to the portals of the world boxing championship. He and Gibson are now in a contest of wits with Wills (and the "split-commission" element) for that big title shot.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

Having Wills refuse to meet me was not keeping my hand in the game. Knowing how necessary this was, Gibson and I accepted a match to box Bartley Madden in Minneapolis in the latter part of September, 1925. As the months went on I kept getting better. I knew there was but one way to continue this improvement and that was by fighting as often as possible. Madden, who had not seen me in a couple of years, had not allowed for the possibility of improvement. He flew at me in the first round just as he used to at the City A. C., back in 1919, when I was a youngster just discharged from service. Madden, a year earlier, had somewhat deflated the Wills balloon of greatness by holding him off for 15 rounds.

Gene Tunney

KNOCKS OUT MADDEN

Bartley, though small and not much of a hitter, was very tough and had as game a fighting heart as was ever put in a man. Strict training always bored him. He went into many fights completely untrained, but on getting in fought until he fell. Madden never thought of quitting as a means of extricating himself from a desperate situation. The left hook that knocked Madden out in the third round, after he had got up from a count of nine, was the best that I have ever delivered. Lou Fink, my faithful trainer, who was with me in all important matches, contends that I never hit as good a blow before or since. Madden dived into the canvas, his flesh quivering as he was counted out.

Again a Tunney victory jeopardized the standing of the "black menace"—Wills. Something surely had to be done. Madden had discharged his manager a couple of months before his fight with me. This fellow became associated with Paddy Mullins, Wills' manager. On the day the Madden-Tunney fight was to take place in Minneapolis this disgruntled ex-manager went to a certain sports writer and said:

"Tunney will score a knockout over Madden tonight. I know it is fixed."

FAKE CHARGE RAISED

The sports writer worked on a new publication edited by a man whose ethics were no credit to his profession, and whose only thought was to increase circulation. This editor, accordingly, was made the dupe of the chiselers who had a piece of Wills. I do not believe Paddy Mullins was a party to this; but others were who were associated with him, in an attempt to ingratiate themselves by advancing Wills at the cost of Madden's and my reputation.

One of these was the dismissed manager of Madden, who, chagrined because Madden had been matched for an important fight in which he was not to get his managerial cut, gave vent to the malice of his nature. He forgot the previous fights in which Madden was battered around by large and more skillful opponents; fights in which he shared in everything but the beatings. This is the brand of ingratitude that is so peculiarly a part of a good many managers.

GOOD MANAGERS NECESSARY

A fair percentage of the managers' profession is a mere racket for parasites. Good managers are, in most cases, necessary for the successful piloting of a young pugilist. There are some managers who take their profession seriously. These managers are almost indispensable to the young boxer in his early years, for it is the tendency of all youngsters in the exuberance of health and the excitement of small success to overmatch themselves. A smart pilot, without disclosing his design, avoids these mistakes. Moreover, he sees that his charge is paid his full worth, that he is properly protected and publicized. Very important responsibilities, these last.

Occasionally a manager will direct the training of a fighter, but this is rare. Licensed trainers are usually hired for this purpose. Though managers will fight and chisel each other, and become bitterly acrimonious toward one another, they meet on one common ground: to oppose any fighter without a manager. A boxer who could be successful without a manager would be a bad example to the other boxers. To make impossible any such evil examples, there is no limit to the conspiring the managers will contrive.

LIBEL AVOIDED

According to the sensational policy of the publication mentioned above, a long telegram was sent to the promoter, Jack Reddy, to come East at the publication's expense to give testimony as to the honesty of the Tunney-Madden fight. Reddy provided himself with affidavits from George Barton, the referee, sports writer of the Minneapolis Tribune and leading boxing authority in the Middle West; the chairman of the Minnesota State Boxing Commission and several newspapermen who saw and reported the fight for their papers. When Reddy gave his testimony and presented the affidavits to the self-appointed committee of the publication, in fury these circulation hounds accused him, the referee, the boxing commission and all the newspapermen of being party to the alleged fraud. The story was too preposterous for other newspapers to touch.

However, a lawyer to whom I had taken the copies of this publication advised me that there was no outright libel. The libel laws had been carefully circumvented. The accusations were made by intimation and innuendo.

PRAISED BY CORBETT

Wills was associated with a powerful and influential ring of cheap politicians and split-commission men who went the full limit for him—and incidentally for themselves. In my next match, on November 13, against Johnny Risko, in Cleveland, a story left Cleveland that I had been knocked down in the first round. In truth, Risko did not land a solid blow during the 12 rounds.

One of the most pleasant experiences of my career came to me that night. I met James J. Corbett and talked with him after the fight. Jim was playing in a local theater and came down to the auditorium to see the match with Risko. He had never seen me box before. I felt because of my sore hands he did not see me at my best. At this suggestion, to my surprise, Jim said:

"If you had Dempsey in there tonight you would have knocked him out."

DEMPSEY'S DEFENSE GOOD

I said I did not think so and did not understand his reasoning.

He explained:

"When you hit this fellow Risko and had him all but out, which occurred in every round, he'd wrap his arms about his face and cover up, leaving you no opening in which to place a finishing punch. Now if you hit Dempsey a blow like any of those and hurt him, he will not cover up. He doesn't know how. In rushing in he'd leave an opening so that you could get in the finishing shot. When you fight Dempsey fight him exactly as you fought Risko tonight and you'll surely win."

I was to learn that Jim was wrong in one regard. Dempsey did know how to cover up!

PANTHERS VISIT INDIANS

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Jan. 6.—After arriving in this good-sized Northern New Mexico town early this morning, before breakfast in fact, the Pitt Panthers prepared to take a look into the famous Indian village about 20 miles away.

When all this is out of the way the boys will board the rattler again and head for Pittsburgh, with only two short stops scheduled before the long awaited and yet dreaded arrival in the home town.

Kansas City and Chicago are due to get brief glimpses of the Panthers tomorrow and Sunday.

McVey Scores Kayo In Fairmont Bout

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Jan. 6.—Jimmy Colombo, of Clarksburg, 142, and Jimmy Reilly, of Fairmont, are all even in the boxing duel. Colombo last night evened the score with the Fairmonter, defeating him in a fast eight-round bout.

Frankie Reilly, 143, Fairmont, was awarded an eight-round verdict over Frank Portland, 142, Pittsburgh. Sunny Jim McVey, 177, Pittsburgh, scored a technical knockout over Chuck Carter, 175, Fairmont, when he broke Carter's jaw in the fifth round of their scheduled eight-round preliminary.

Secret Practice For Giants Is Terry's Order

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—No more chinning with the fans, no more loafing in the sun.

That's what the New York Giants will have to forego when the National League baseball club begins spring training here at Wrigley Field. In a letter to the management of the park, Bill Terry, Giant manager, said all practice sessions will be closed to the public.

Terry explained that last year the players talked too much with friends and relatives when they should have been chasing flies, perfecting their slides and hitting the ball.

HANDBALL LOOP SCHEDULE ARRANGED

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Final draft of Sections A and B schedules for the impending campaign of the re-organized City Inter-Club Handball League was released for publication today. Start of the bi-divisional laurel chase is set for tomorrow afternoon, though the Y. M. H. A.-Keystone A. C. clash in the secondary loop may be held over till Sunday.

The official card leaves the matter of staging combats either on Saturday or Sunday to the convenience and discretion of the team captains. It is understood that "B" contests in which the Downtown Y. M. C. A. squad is not involved, will be run off as Sunday features. Results of individual frays, rather than team tilts as a whole, will be computation of the standings.

The inaugural bill on the morrow sends Keystone A. C. to Y. M. H. A. and P. A. A. to the Downtown Y in the upper sector and the Y. M. C. A. to the P. A. A. in the lower group. Competition will be staged weekly in both sections till the teams have played twice around their respective circuits on a home-and-home basis; in other words, each outfit will encounter each rival four times. This means that there'll be hostilities till March 26.

Game Commission Elects Officers

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Whatever you hunters may think, the State Game Commission says you enjoyed unusually fine hunting last season.

The commission says preliminary reports indicate more deer and bear were killed than originally anticipated, and that the small game kill was particularly pleasing.

Adolf Muller, of Norristown, was re-elected president of the commission yesterday. Other officers chosen again were vice president, William H. Moore, of Philadelphia, and executive secretary, Ernest E. Harwood.

JUDGE READY TO SIGN

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(A.P.)—The Sun says Joe Judge, veteran first baseman of the Washington Senators, has come to terms with the Brooklyn Dodgers and will sign a contract for $11,000 as soon as he receives his formal release from Clark Griffith. Confirmation was lacking at the Dodger offices, but neither was there an outright denial.

Bam Accepts Defi of Babe To Sports Test

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The battle of the Babes was assured today when Babe Ruth, big shot of baseball, accepted the challenge of Mildred (Babe) Didrikson, ace of women athletes, to compete against her in a round robin of sport events.

The girl star of the Olympics picked handball, running, baseball throwing, billiards, swimming, golf and bowling as the sports in which she thinks the masculine Babe might give her a fair battle.

Of course, she doesn't think Ruth would have a chance in some other sports at which she is proficient, such as high and fancy diving and archery, but she says the events named might be close enough to be interesting. The Ruthian Babe, when he heard about it, said:

"Say, I want to see that dame. She must be pretty good at that, but she's off her nut if she thinks she can take me at golf or bowling or tossing a baseball or handball. I think I'm pretty fair at those games myself."

"I'm not so hot at tennis, though, and I guess she could make me look foolish at billiards and swimming. And, as for running, well, I'm not as young as I was and maybe she could take me there, but I'm not so sure about it."

The masculine Babe took every challenge in good part except the golf. He seemed incensed over the fact that any girl should think she could beat him. He said:

"Lissen, if anything in skirts can trim me with a golf club then I'm ready to admit it's time to enter an old man's home. You say she can shoot 82, but I want to see her do it over a tough course before I believe it."

Well we shall see.

SARAZEN L. A. OPEN THREAT

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Gene Sarazen, national and British open champion, has proved he will be a very formidable opponent to the other entrants of the Los Angles open. Yesterday he shot a 35-35—70, an hour after completing a three-day journey here from Florida.

The score was one stroke under par for the Wilshire Country Club course, where the $5,000 tournament opens tomorrow morning.

Clark May Get Post at Wyoming

LARAMIE, Wyo., Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The resignation of John "Choppy" Rhodes as athletic director and head football coach of the University of Wyoming has been announced by President A. G. Crane. The Wyoming football team won only one conference game last season, and was held scoreless in the last four contests.

A successor will be named at the March meeting of the board of trustees. Among those mentioned for the post are Earl (Dutch) Clark, former Colorado College star and professional football player.

Champion Leads In Cue Match

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Ralph Greenleaf, national champion, won the seventh and eighth blocks of his special pocket billiard exhibition match from Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia, and went into the lead, 1,011 to 925.

The champion turned in a high run of 129 in winning the afternoon block, yesterday, 169 to 91 in six innings. Ponzi's best cluster was 39. Last night the champion won, 128 to 75, in 11 innings. The high runs were 53 for Greenleaf, 27 for Ponzi.

BUCS AT TOP IF YOUTH IS SERVED

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The bromidic "youth must be served" adage has been walloped so often in the battle of life, the line has lost a lot of its punch. In baseball you could change it to "youth must be curved" and be sure of a hand from the oldtimers' section.

This little prelude might serve as the opening number in developing today's program—a recital inspired by the most attractive club in the National League—the youthful Pirates.

When the Bucco symphony cracked up on its ill-fated Eastern trip of last summer you could trace the sour notes, not to the saxophone player of rightfield, but rather to the boy virtuoso of the shortfield who seems to have been brought along too fast in his Wagnerian music.

PIRATES LACK AGE

Floyd Vaughan, one of the most precious of a fine crop of diamond rookies, was hardly a big-league shortstop last season, speaking from a defensive standpoint. At bat and on the bases, the brilliant boy left nothing to be desired, and he did only what many believed he would do in some of the fielding crises.

All of this brings up the question of age. Floyd, just 21, is the youngest member of one of the youngest clubs major league baseball has produced. The collective age of the boys slated for the eight positions, exclusive of pitcher, is less than 27 years.

The question, then, is — "Are the Pirates too young to measure up to the test of winning a pennant?"

YANKS HAVE VETERANS

Consider the Yankees, world champions of the diamond and a truly great ball club. The average age of the Yanks is just short of 30 years. Here are the figures for the athletes of the two clubs in corresponding positions:

PIRATES	POS.	YANKEES
L. Waner, 26	cf	Combs, 31
P. Waner, 29	rf	Ruth, 38
Vaughan, 21	ss	Lary, 27
Lindstrom, 27	lf	Chapman, 24
Traynor, 33	3b	Sewell, 32
Suhr, 27	1b	Gehrig, 29
Piet, 25	2b	Lazzeri, 28
Grace, 25	c	Dickey, 25

Average age, Pirates—26 yrs.; Yankees—29 yrs.

Fortunately for the Pirates, they still own the services of Shortstop Tommy Thevenow. There were times of stress last season when Tommy might have taken the team out of the doldrums. Perhaps he will be pressed into service often in the next campaign.

Jakie May Given Release by Cubs

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—Jakie May, veteran southpaw pitcher, today was given his unconditional release by the Chicago Cubs.

May broke into professional baseball in 1914 with the Newman club of the Georgia-Alabama League and ultimately served with three National League clubs, the St. Louis Cardinals, the Cincinnati Reds and the Cubs. He came to the Cubs in 1931 and was used mostly as a relief pitcher. May is in his thirty-fifth year.

As a 10-year man, he is free to line up with any team, major or minor, that he wishes.

of ends in this entire land . . . Tormey is all right, too, and I'd like to smack the guy who says the whole team isn't all right."

So, you see, everybody isn't sore about that New Years Day game . . . And we just wonder what everybody would be saying if the home boys had won and come back home generally recognized as the national champions . . . After all, aren't we all—a swell lot of second guessers?—HARRY KECK.

'MEN OF WITZ' IN BATTLES AT ARENA

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Battling Gizzy vs. Louis Di Santis and Jimmy Thomas vs. Frankie Jarr, 10 rounds each, and Curtis Klaas vs. Johnny Bayliog and Shorty Washko vs. Petey John, 6 rounds each, Arena, North Side.

Ernie Schaaf vs. Stanley Poreda, 10 rounds, and Abe Feldman vs. Mike Kaiahan, Joe Barlow vs. Charley Massera, Rudy Winkler vs. Justin Sirotis, Phil Johnson vs. Ray Lazer and Tony Polisio vs. Sam Portnoy, 5 rounds each, Madison Square Garden, New York.

Baby Arizmendi vs. Archie Bell, 10 rounds, San Francisco.

Buster Caimes vs. Tom Patrick, 10 rounds, Hollywood, Cal.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Abie Witz has something to worry himself about tonight.

Two of his fighters, known as "Men of Witz," are going to the post in 10-round bouts at the Arena, on the North side—that means that while the bouts are on Abie will remain in their corners and the corns and bunions of the ringside customers will be safe, for Abie will not be making his usual rounds looking hither and yon for reasons best known to himself, if any.

Frankie Jarr

It's really more of a treat to see Abie do his trot on a night when he has no fighters in action. But, then, the fighters have to work some time, and when they work Abie works. That is, he cuts out the roadwork and goes into the corner and does the heavy thinking, also if any.

DI SANTIS MEETS BATTLER

But the heck with Abie Witz. You want to know who is fighting. All right, it's Abie Witz' Battling Gizzy and Abie Witz' Jimmy Thomas against two other guys. The gent who is in against Gizzy is Louis Di Santis, of Cleveland, who already has beaten Patsy Hennigan and Don Asto here, and a fellow named Frankie Jarr, of Fort Wayne, Ind., famous because Pee Wee Jarrell hangs his hat there, is in with Thomas.

Di Santis is one of those ambidexterous souls who can switch around and box southpaw, and does so not once but often in a bout. Probably the feature of tonight's show will be the action when the rough-and-tumble Gizzy starts flailing away and Di Santis turns southpaw on him and everybody gets up and moves back a couple of rows for protection.

JARR VS. THOMAS

Not much is known here about Jarr, but he has fought some good ones and they say he'll be able to handle himself against the clever and hard-hitting Thomas.

Curly Klaas, North Side lightheavy, boxes Johnny Bayliog in the second bout, and Shorty Washko and Petey John are in the opener, at 8:30.

Between Rounds

Stanley Poreda will be gunning for his second victory over Ernie Schaaf when he meets Jack Sharkey's protege in Madison Square Garden, New York, tonight. He beated the Bostonian in New Jersey last summer.

Steve Stefek, Bill Eley and Jackie Fields are among the entrants in the Monongahela Valley amateur tournament to be held at Brownsville January 12-13-19. Entries may be made with John T. Taylor, A. A. U. official here, or A. M. Radacy, 424 Front street, Brownsville, up to next Tuesday.

Jadick to Meet Chocolate in Cuba

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—(INS.)—Johnny Jadick, of Philadelphia, will defend his world junior-welterweight title against Kid Chocolate, the featherweight champion, in Havana, Cuba, March 7. He is to get a $10,000 guarantee and it is expected the racing crowd will contribute a $75,000 gate.

URGES FARM CROP PRICE PROTECTION

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Behind the domestic allotment farm relief plan is a scheme for dividing the flow of agricultural products from maker to user into two streams—one intended for domestic consumption and the other for export. The desire is to give a protected price—above the world market level—for products intended for use in the home market. The corollary of this is to dump the exportable surplus overseas at prevailing world prices.

Mr. Rukeyser

In connection with cotton, for example, the point has been raised that the bounty which the domestic processors will have to pay might put them at a competitive disadvantage with foreign producers who can buy raw materials at lower prices. Accordingly, in so far as the home market is concerned, with domestic allotment must go a prohibitory tariff which will exclude foreign competitive merchandise.

Now a new idea for handling the exportable surplus has been suggested by an industrialist, who is strongly committed to a program of farm relief. Instead of selling the exportable surplus at substantially less than the artificially maintained domestic price, this business executive has proposed that it be allotted to domestic processors for their own export trade. Thus, they would be better able to compete with foreign manufacturers for export trade in neutral markets. For example, we now ship raw cotton to Manchester, where it is manufactured into finished goods and then into garments, which are exported to the Orient. It is thought that by placing a low export price on raw materials sold to American manufacturers, it would be possible to cut out foreign middlemen, and ship the finished products direct to the ultimate consuming country, thus employing American labor and equipment in the process.

SEGREGATE CROPS

The essence of this plan would be to segregate the crops into products intended for domestic and foreign use. By means of the allotment bounty, products intended for home consumption would sell substantially above the world price level, whereas the exportable surplus, which would thus be made available to American processors and manufacturers, could be bought below the world price level.

This proposal fits in with the growing striving in this country for larger economic self sufficiency. It recognizes that processing raw materials means employment for men who are now idle.

With European manufacturers tending to seek raw materials from other sources, it is suggested that the answer to such discrimination would be to go into direct competition with our foreign customers, and to seek markets in the non-industrialized parts of the world.

BUSINESS

Receivership Plea Will Be Fought By Steel Car Company

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

OFFICIALS OF THE Pressed Steel Car Company are making plans today to oppose the plea brought at Trenton, N. J., yesterday for the appointment of receivers in bankruptcy.

They declare that out of 6,000 bonds which were due on January 1, all but 1,220 have been deposited under one or the other of the optional plans for settlement. They state that by January 15, they expect to have deposit of a sufficiently great majority of the bonds to avoid receivership.

Two bondholders of the company, which is the largest producer of railroad cars in the Pittsburgh district, a corporation with assets carried at $47,000,000 and which normally employes 11,500 men, yesterday asked the court of chancery at Trenton, N. J., to appoint receivers in view of the fact that a bond issue which matured on January 1, 1933, has not been paid.

Two Reorganization Plans Attempted

VIRTUAL DISAPPEARANCE of buying of railroad equipment resulted in large losses during recent years. As a result of this and the general state of the market for securities, the organization was unable to refund or pay off an issue of $6,000,000 convertible gold 5s due January 1.

To meet this emergency the company first offered to pay $250 in cash and $750 in new debentures due in 1943 for each $1,000 bond. A few days before the end of the year a new offer was made of a flat cash payment of $550 for each $1,000 bond.

In announcing the latter plan the management declared that if substantially all the bondholders accept one or the other of these offers, they would be able to arrange to secure the necessary funds to meet the cash requirements of the proposals. Deposits of bonds were to be accepted by the New York Trust Company up to January 16.

Loss Reported For Last Year

THE REPORT FOR 1932 will show a large loss in view of the fact that hardly any cars were bought by the railroads last year. In 1931 net loss amounted to $1,245,959. This compared with a net profit of $1,089,256 in 1930 which covered dividend requirements on $13,611,500 of 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock and left 21 cents a share for 395,622 shares of common stock outstanding. No preferred dividend has been paid since June 31, 1931.

The plaintiffs in the suit for receivership were Isadore Tachna, of New York City, and J. Lester Albertson, of New Rochelle, N. Y., who charged that the company had failed to pay either principal or interest on bonds maturing January 1, 1933, and for this reason, asked that receivers be appointed. The company is a New Jersey corporation which accounts for the filing of the suit at Trenton.

CARRIERS LEAD STOCK PRICE UPTURN

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The stock market pushed forward again today, after yesterday's period of hesitancy.

The list wavered momentarily during the morning, then forged ahead under leadership of the rails after mid-day. The list showed signs of pushing well through the upper resistance levels of the December trading range.

The market remained a professional affair, with little public following, but brokerage sentiment continued rather bullish. There was little in the business or industrial news upon which to base bullish conclusions, but unconfirmed rumors of impending Washington developments, bearing upon credit inflation, may have been a factor. Banking quarters were satisfied that any such effort would avoid currency tampering.

The unfilled tonnage statement of the United States Steel Corporation, which will be made public next Tuesday, was expected in well-informed quarters to show little change from last month's figures. It was stated that incoming orders, while small, had been offset by reduction in mill activity, so that December would show a close balance between the two. Year-end automobile and tin plate orders were understood to have contributed to hopes for some improvement in production schedules early this year.

The week-end trade reviews were in agreement that business is holding the gains recorded after the Christmas holidays. Dun's observed a cheerier tone, and Bradstreet's remarked that "business seems to be relieved that 1932 has become history. Everyone seems to feel that 1932 has been the worst phase of the battle against economic adversity."

Bankers continued to watch closely all governmental effort now being made in the direction of balancing the federal budget. One leader in this field stressed three subjects which, he said, could furnish the key for an almost immediate improvement in business: Reduction of government expenditures, both federal and municipal; settlement of the international debt question, and enough relaxation of tariff restrictions to encourage a revival of foreign trade.

RESERVE HOLDS BOND POLICY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—The Federal Reserve system will continue its attitude of maintaining excess reserves of member banks through purchase of government bonds to aid "factors of safety and stability in meeting the forces of deflation."

The announcement of the policy was made by the open market conference of the system which yesterday ended a three-day session at which all of the Federal Reserve banks were represented. The meeting devoted particular attention to review of economic, business, financial and banking conditions in each of the Federal Reserve districts and the nation as a whole.

The conference discussed the workings and effects of the open market policy of the Federal Reserve system through which the Federal Reserve banks have increased their holdings of government bonds by $1,085,000,000 in the last year, bringing such securities to a total of $1,851,000,000.

MARKETS DARK TOMORROW

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The New York Stock Exchange, the New York Curb, the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange and the principal securities markets throughout the country will be closed tomorrow as a mark of respect to the memory of former President Calvin Coolidge.

Several of the commodity exchanges will be closed also, including the New York Cotton Exchange. The Chicago Board of Trade (Grain Pit) will operate on a shortened schedule, closing one hour earlier than usual.

U. G. I. System Plans To Spend $13,350,000

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—(AP.)—John E. Zimmerman, president of the United Gas Improvement Company, today said subsidiaries will spend more than $13,350,000 in 1933 for additions and improvements to plant equipment.

Zimmerman said much of this money will be for extension of gas and electric service in territories supplied by the various companies of the parent company's system.

Defer Mackintosh, Hemphill Interest

H. V. Blaxter, chairman of the Mackintosh-Hemphill Company, in a letter to holders of the 6 per cent first mortgage bonds, says that in order to conserve working capital, the company is forced to ask its bondholders to postpone, during 1933, collection of coupons on the bonds.

MARY FAITH

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XXIV.

"Of course, Florrie will give you a job," Jean said. "She knows what slick work you do, and she'll be mighty glad to get you. I'll fix it for you first thing tomorrow morning . . . . What happened between you and Kim, Mary Faith?"

Mary Faith put her head to one side, thinking. "Well, for one thing he was bored, Jean, and I didn't know it. I didn't mind staying at home nights or going to a picture show with him. As long as he was with me I didn't need anybody else. But he got tired of me, it seems . . . ."

"Tired of you, bah!" cried Jean with infinite scorn in her voice. "He marries the best-looking girl and the nicest girl in this town and gets tired of her in five months! He didn't have sense enough to appreciate you, that's what! I've known you for five years and I've never been bored by you . . . It's too bad you didn't marry Mark Nesbit, Mary Faith, when you had the chance. And you did have it. Everybody at the office knew that he was absolutely hay-wire over you."

She took a vanity case out of her tan silk bag and powdered her face before she finished what she had to say: "The trouble with Kim Farrell is that he has a heart as big as a hotel. He falls for every girl he meets. . . I never told you at the time but he even tried to date me up while you were engaged to him; and I was always bumping into him when he was out stepping with other girls. Remember how I used to urge you to marry him before he left you high and dry? . . . What are you going to do now? Divorce him?"

DOESN'T WANT DIVORCE

Divorce . . . The very word was paralyzing to Mary Faith. She stood staring blankly at Jean for a full minute before she answered her.

"Oh, no, I'd never divorce Kim, Jean. What makes you ask me if I would? You've seen him lately with some girl, haven't you?"

"No, I haven't, but he's left you, hasn't he? And, so far as I can make out, he's left you without a cent to bless yourself with. I should think you'd want to be free from a man like that—after the baby comes, of course. It's just possible that, in the course of human events, you might want to marry again sometime, you know. Such things have happened."

"No, I'd never want to marry again. No matter what happens there never will be anybody but Kim for me, Jean—and there's just a chance that he'll come back here to me if he knows that I want him."

Jean's lips, painted the bright red of sealing wax, curled in a smile that was half tenderness and half contempt. She shrugged her shoulders once more.

"I must go," she said. "I have a date with a man from Phoenix, Arizona. Burr sold him a car the other day and brought him out to the house last night to play cards with us. He's a whizz—tall and tanned and blue-eyed. You ought to see him, Mary Faith; and you ought to hear him talk about his ranch down in the Salt River Valley. He grows everything on it from cantaloupes to cotton. Well, I hope you'll enjoy working for Florrie. I think you will. I'd work for her myself but I don't believe relatives ever get along in business, do you?" And she went away to keep her engagement with the ranchman from Arizona.

BEGINS WORK

On the first Monday in June Mary Faith started work as a stenographer for the Write-O Stenographic Service at $20 a week. The office was a big, up-to-date one on the ground floor of the Arcade Building on Spring street, a few blocks away from the Towers building where Kim had his law office.

The Arcade building was the largest building in town. It had its own restaurant, its own barber shop and beauty shop, its own newsstand and shoe-shining parlor, its own circulating library. It was a little city in itself.

Florrie Bond employed two girls besides Mary Faith, and she herself was busy all day long answering the telephone and making appointments or arrangements for bringing work into the office. She was a pretty, clever-looking girl with black hair and eyes and a tall figure. She never wore anything but black—lustrous clinging black—and a string of pearls.

"I'm going to let you stay in the office all the time, Mrs. Farrell," she said to Mary Faith when she came to work that first hot June morning. "Sometimes the other girls go out to take dictation or do typing in the other offices of the building. Sometimes they fill in as substitutes when the regular stenographers are ill or on vacation. But Jean tells me that you want to be as quiet as possible."

She gave Mary Faith a desk near the big windows that looked out into the lobby of the building. And there Mary Faith sat eight hours a day, typing lawyers' briefs, manuscripts, letters, anything that came her way.

OLD ROUTINE

Once again her days were filled with the click of typewriter keys, the ringing of the telephone, the slam and rattle of filing cabinet drawers, the sound of the downtown traffic outside the front windows of the office.

Every morning she packed her lunch in the cool, breezy kitchen of the flat—usually two tomato sandwiches and a thermos bottle of the coffee that was left over from breakfast. She ate it, sitting at her desk, with a book from the library lying open on her typewriter before her.

Every night she walked part of the way home, because Dr. Thatcher had told her that she ought to take plenty of exercise. She and Kim's mother would get supper together, and afterward, when the dishes were done they would stroll around Haltnorth Park or go to the moving picture theater, a block from home.

"For a couple of deserted women we get along very well, don't we?" Mary Faith sometimes asked cheerfully when they were walking along side by side through the warm breathing darkness of the summer night. "I wonder what Kim would think if he knew that we were still living in the flat?"

They never heard from him.

"That's because we've had the telephone taken out," Mrs. Farrell decided. "He's probably tried to call our number, and because he can't get it he undoubtedly thinks we've moved out."

"He could find out by telephoning Aunt Ella or Mrs. Puckett," Mary Faith reminded her. "We'll hear from him pretty soon. Certainly he'll begin to wonder where you are and whether you're all right or not."

KIM VISITS

But the June roses withered and died in Haltnorth Park, and July came in bringing with it mid-summer heat that was like the breath of a blast furnace, and still they did not hear from Kim.

One night they came home from the picture show and found him sitting in his roadster in the street outside the apartment.

When he saw them he got out of it and came across the sidewalk to them. In the fan of light from the vestibule he looked very big and handsome in a pale gray suit that Mary Faith had never seen before. At first she thought he had come back to her and her knees turned to water and her heart beat like a trip-hammer.

"Why, Kim!" she said simply.

"I want to talk to you, Mary Faith." He gave her a cold level look from his gray eyes, and turned to his mother. "How are you, mother, and what are you doing here? Until tonight I thought you were safe and sound in Garrettsville with Aunt Ella."

"No, I'm safe and sound right here where I belong," said his mother. "Mary Faith and I thought we'd be more comfortable here, so after you left we stayed on."

"How do you manage it?" He followed them into the flat and waited while they turned on the lights in the little sitting room. Then he sat down on the arm of the Turkish leather rocker just inside the door balancing his gray hat on one knee.

It was Mary Faith who answered him. "I got a job, Kim," she said, "and we cut down expenses here. We had the telephone taken out and we stopped eating meat and doing a lot of other little things that meant spending money. We get along very nicely, don't we, Mrs. Farrell?"

"We certainly do. We may not have all the luxuries of life," admitted Kim's mother, "but at least we're not accepting charity from anybody, and we're not stuck in a boarding house or a miserable country town. . . ."

Kim wasn't listening to her. His eyes were on Mary Faith's face.

"Did you send $60 to McIntrae and Westover about a month ago?" he asked her.

"I did, Kim. I knew that you wanted to send it yourself, in all probability, but that you were too stiff-necked ever to do it, and so I sent it for you. Why do you want to know about it, Kim? Have you heard from Mr. McIntrae?"

He nodded his blond and handsome head. "He sent for me last Friday," he said. "He told me that he admired the spirit that prompted me to return that money, and pulled a lot of that sort of talk on me. I didn't know what he was driving at, but I had brains enough to keep my mouth shut. He told me he thought I'd learned my lesson, and then he told me I could come back to work for him if I wanted to."

"And did you?"

"Of course. I was starving to death down there in the Towers Building. If I hadn't gone back to him I'd have had to get a job somewhere else . . . For a week I've been wondering about that money, and tonight it occurred to me that you might have sent it to him. I knew that you and Jack Maldon were the only two people who knew that I never had turned it in at the office. I telephoned Mrs. Puckett's but she told me that she hadn't seen you in weeks. So I came around here."

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

By ANN HELFGOTT
Official reporter, Sheridan Square Chapter

Hello Members:

Even though I am a bit late, I wish all of you a Happy New New Year. I hope all your wishes will be fulfilled early in 1933.

Now, I would like to introduce to you some of the members. Look who's stepping up to my typewriter! Well, well, if it isn't Betty and Billie Sieman, the boy and girl twins of our club. And what do you think? Last Saturday they celebrated their fourteenth birthday. Congratulations!

Ah! Who's this pretty little miss wending her way towards my desk? Why Betty, I didn't know you. Boys and girls, meet little Betty Moroney. I'll let you in on a secret. Betty just whispered to me that when she is a big girl she hopes to become a great dancer and she says that she'll never forget the Junior Komic Club. Okay, Betty! That's the spirit!

Well I wonder who this youngster is? What's your name? Your Betty's sister, Jean. What are you going to do when you grow up? You want to be a stenographer? And here's a secret boys and girls, Jean's second desire is to go to Hollywood and be a movie star. Swell Jean, we're pulling for you!

Stepping right up, boys and girls, is Miss Betty Leach, who like Jean also wants to go to Hollywood and become a movie star.

Here comes the famous "footballer" of the Sheridan Square Chapter and what do you think he's carrying under his arm? Yes, sir, boys and girls it's a football and Norman Williams' one ambition is to play football for Duquesne University. Okay Norman, we'll tell Elmer Layden to expect you in a few years.

And last, but not least, the last because the picture is just to start, is Warren Talenfield, our comedian. Warren's favorite actor is Joe Penner, who has been for years trying to sell a duck. Warren when he gets just a little bigger is also going in the duck business just like Joe.

Remember, boys and girls, starting tomorrow we're going to have big time vaudeville at our Junior Komic Club meetings each week. Tomorrow the artists who will entertain are: Billinger and Miller, in a character change and dancing duo; Frankie Porter, famous boy soprano, and who will also act as master of ceremonies, and Dolly Colbert, a cute little acrobat. It's going to be a great show, so be here early.

Can Too Much Per Cent Spoil the Broth?

Our experts sure had a tough time deciding what kind of beer is intoxicating.

Let's throw history into reverse and see what the writer thought in 1920. The good old days when twilight shadows were soft and low. And so were the speakies.

In commenting upon the staggering attributes of near-beer he said:

Cautious barkeeps handed out a pair of waterwings with every bottle. They knew no oyster could drink the ocean no matter how many times he yawned.

If that's the stuff they are going to legalize we will have to go up into the mountains and join the goats. Jolly animals who leap for no reason at all.

Some brewsters think that 2 per cent is enough malted pyrotechnics to scorch the palates of even the most experienced barnburners.

Others say three and the most experienced claim four per centum is the curl papers for your whiskers. Why not compromise on 12 and let a man enjoy the lumps on his head?

We believe in playing safe. Multiply everything by three except the price.

Personally, we don't care whether we see the world series in St. Louis or Milwaukee.

Provided that both towns make the big leagues and put strong teams in the field.

If you want our opinion on the muzzle velocity of the new weapon we will say that 2 per cent, 3 per cent and 4 per cent looks like a simple sum in addition.

Calvin Coolidge -:- -:- 1872-1933

IN SORROW and with a profound sense of bereavement, we record the death of Calvin Coolidge.

Still in the prime of mature years, in the midst of pleasant activities and useful occupations, his sudden passing is a shock to the American people, who held him in unique and deep affection and respect.

Calvin Coolidge was essentially an American President. He knew his countrymen and they knew him.

Of New England birth, upbringing and education, he had thoroughly imbibed the New England tradition of frugal living, hard work, clear thinking and sober judgment.

His life was one of faithful devotion to the task in hand. It was marked by a steady growth and broadening of public esteem—first in the small community in which he lived, then in the state of his adoption, and finally in the nation.

HE HAD been admitted to the practice of the law but two years when his neighbors in Northampton, Massachusetts, elected him a councilman.

The succeeding years brought him progressive promotion—city solicitor of Northampton, then clerk of the courts, a member of the Massachusetts Legislature in 1907 and of the State Senate in 1912. Two years later he was elected president of the Senate, and after two years more, in 1916, he became the governor of Massachusetts, an office which he filled with distinction for two terms.

It was while governor of Massachusetts that he was faced by a condition of dangerous disorder among the police of Boston. He met the crisis with such fairness and decision, that the country was made at once aware that in the Massachusetts governor, it had a man of statesman breadth, qualified for the highest posts and the weightiest responsibilities.

His nomination by the Republican Party in 1920 as its candidate for vice president came about without serious rivalry in the nominating convention. His name on the ticket undoubtedly contributed much to the great victory of his party in the presidential election of that year.

UPON the death of President Harding in 1923, Mr. Coolidge succeeded to the duties of the presidency, and in 1924 was himself elected President by an overwhelming majority.

The years of Calvin Coolidge's administration constitute a definite and marked period in our history.

They were years of prosperity and of general contentment. The nation felt that it had a safe helmsman at the wheel.

The President, it has been said, was admired as much for what he did not do, as for what he did. His direction of the government was marked by restraint, moderation and a conservatism which reflected the temper of the people and received the general approbation of the country.

When Mr. Coolidge spoke, he spoke the language of the main group of our citizenship. He was direct and plain-spoken. There were few flights of fancy in his discourses and no attempt at eloquence. But on the other hand, there was no descent from that high, if not too lofty, plane of sturdy common sense and hard fact, upon which the most useful elements of our population do their thinking and form their judgments.

HIS integrity—in thought, speech and action—was unquestioned. He was permeated with honesty. Even his critics respected his high purposes and good intent, and although his views were in some quarters criticized as restricted and unprogressive, there was general agreement that, after all, he had a way of getting good things done, and done right well.

The difficult post-war problems, he approached in a spirit that satisfied the country.

He was mindful at all times of our traditional aversion to entangling involvements that concerned us remotely, if at all. He believed basically in preserving America's freedom of action in the international field. The United States did not go backwards in this respect during the Coolidge years.

As the expiration of his term drew near, he made known his disinclination to be again a candidate for election.

THE country was disappointed in this decision. There is no doubt that Calvin Coolidge would have been re-elected by perhaps a greater majority than was ever cast for a President.

He was doubtless influenced by the fact that he had occupied the presidency for more than one full term and did not intend himself to test the application and intent of the unwritten rule against a third term.

Returning to Northampton, he resumed the life of a practicing lawyer—in a community which he knew well and which loved him.

Occasionally, but not often, responding to the pressure of his fellow citizens, he consented to speak upon questions of the hour. Heard throughout the nation with profound respect, he probably influenced public opinion as powerfully as any voice among us.

Reduce Their Salaries

Highly Paid Officials of Allegheny County Should Be Forced to Take a Cut.

In urging that the fee system of paying public officials be abolished, as "an unwarranted, unnecessary and unfair drain on the taxpayers of the commonwealth," Gov. Gifford Pinchot cited the Register of Wills in Allegheny County as an example of an official receiving a huge income from this source. He said the Register in 1931 received $16,714.52 in fees in addition to his salary.

But if he had cared to give a really flagrant example of the evils of the fee system, he could more effectively have cited the case of Allegheny County's Collector of Delinquent Taxes, whose fees sometimes amount to more than $100,000 a year!

The fee system should be abolished, and high salaries fixed by the Legislature should be reduced by legislative action.

Thirty-seven officials of Allegheny County receive salaries of $10,000 a year and more. Since the cost of living has fallen sharply since their salaries were fixed, and their purchasing power has correspondingly increased, to permit them to continue to receive the same salaries is tantamount to raising their compensation.

In almost every kind of business and profession wages have been drastically reduced in the last three years. Many workers are paid less than one-half of what they received in 1929.

Why should the judges and other high-salaried officials of Allegheny County continue to draw 1929 salaries? The taxpayers are groaning for relief.

It might have been expected that some of our high-salaried county officials would have done as county officials in Beaver County and elsewhere have done, as the public school teachers and some of the city officials of Pittsburgh have done, and voluntarily reduced their salaries by returning part of it to the public treasury. Instead they have pleaded that their salaries are fixed by law, or offered other excuses for refusing to make the slightest sacrifice.

And in the meantime the people who are taxed to pay these high salaries are finding it more and more difficult to meet their obligations and save their homes from being seized and sold.

As a step towards reduction in the county tax rate the higher county salaries should be reduced, and since the officials refuse to make any concession it is up to the Legislature.

The members of the Legislature will see their duty more clearly, perhaps, if the Chamber of Commerce, the Allied Boards of Trade, the Real Estate Board, the Building Owners and Managers Association, and the other organizations and individuals who have been active in the fight for lower city and school taxes will urge them to help reduce county taxes by revising county salaries downward.

Utilities Law Revision

Outlook Is Bright for Relief from Some of the Abuses From Which the People Have Suffered

Edward Martin, Republican state chairman, outlined his party's legislative program in a statement issued on December 16. It called for "amendments to public utility laws so that consumer, employes of companies and the investor are given a square deal."

The Senate Utilities Investigating Committee, believed to be under the control of Martin's organization, has issued a unanimous report in which, after calling attention to some of the public utilities abuses from which the people of Pennsylvania have suffered, notably the exorbitant rates of the Duquesne Light Company, it recommends corrective legislation.

It is proposed, among other things, to eliminate the evils incident to the holding company system, to prevent the overcapitalization of public service companies, to require that increases in rates shall not be made until the Public Service Commission has passed on their reasonableness, to eliminate certain service charges, and revise the charges made by telephone companies for the use of the European style hand instruments.

These are sound recommendations and should meet with the approval of Gov. Gifford Pinchot and his followers and also of the Democrats. With the support of the Republican state organization the passage of utilities law amendments embodying the recommendations should be assured.

But the matter should not rest there. The investigation of the utilities companies and their relations with the Public Service Commissioners should go on.

It has been halted by a court order obtained by Ira Jewell Williams, counsel for James S. Benn, former Public Service Commissioner, one of the witnesses who refused to testify before the committee. Williams has obtained an injunction stopping the investigation on the ground that since the investigating committee was created at a special session of the Legislature called for another purpose it lacks legal authority.

The Legislature should grant the authority anew, appropriate a reasonable sum for expenses, and direct the committee to proceed further.

Drive Them Out!

Silent and grim as death it comes,
The alien labor blight—
No flags, no fifes, no stirring drums,
But armed for deadly fight—
The products of a foreign clime
Conceived in penury and grime.

Your purchase is a shining lance
To drive them from the door,
To give our industries a chance
To rise and wax once more.
Your purchase, BOUGHT AMERICAN,
Will help the jobless workingman.

A BRAVE GIRL

By Winifred Black

"Good afternoon," said a fresh young voice, as clear and sweet as the voice of the gay little mountain stream that ran laughingly past the door. And on the porch of the little cottage in the far-away mountains stood rather a pretty young girl.

She had a mop of curly brown hair, a pair of big dark eyes, and a smile with three dimples that went with it—not deep-indented, sure-they-are-there dimples, you know, but little, mischievous, roguish affairs that twinkled in and out, and were really most agreeable to see.

The girl wore a rough mountain costume of faded overalls tucked into riding boots and a faded blue blouse.

"I'm Pony Twombley," said the fresh young voice. "We're camping up at the mine, by the lake. This is my Uncle Dan. He knows all about mines and mining. He's showing me how to pan for gold. Come on up, Uncle Dan, and meet the ladies."

Uncle Dan came on up. Uncle Dan was a big, good-humored, embarrassed sort of man in rough mining clothes. He had a pair of shrewd blue eyes, that looked as if he knew a thing or two.

He and Pony sat down. They told us we ought to come up to the lake and catch some real trout, big fellows, sweet as honey—speckled, you know—and when you put them in the pan with a bit of bacon, oh, gubbins, what a treat!

"My husband is Tomy Twombley," said Pony. "He's up at the mine now, shaking the pan. We heard you were here, and we thought we'd come down and invite you up to the lake for a day."

We thanked Pony for her very kind invitation, which was seconded by a low, embarrassed rumble from Uncle Dan, and away they went.

Not a soul on the porch of our little cottage had ever seen Pony or Uncle Dan, or heard of Tomy, in all our lives. So we just laughed, and said, "Wasn't she too funny?—Pretty little thing, though," and "I'll warrant old Uncle Dan could spin a yarn about the old days in the diggins that would be worth hearing." And then we started talking about the latest book by that Russian author who always makes you want to commit suicide, and the announcements of the new moving pictures.

That all happened four or five days ago. This afternoon we were sitting on the porch listening to Casey, the bird traffic cop, as he shrilled his traffic signals from the top of the sugar pine at the gate, when—

"Good afternoon," said a clear young voice, with something a little tremulous about it, and there was Pony again!

She looked as if she had been crying; but she didn't cry, she laughed.

"Excuse my clothes," she said. "They're pretty rumpled, but everything else was burned up in the forest fire the other night. Yes; up at the lake. Didn't you hear about it? Everything we had in the world was burned up, too. We've been staying with Uncle Dan since the fire, but he's had to go back to the city, and now all we've got is a roll of blankets and the old car. Tomy is out there. Shall I call him in?"

And in came Tomy—a beaten man if ever there was one, head down, shoulders sagging, face set in a mold of furious misery.

Tomy said he could go back to his job in the city, but that meant

MARRY-GO-ROUND

Standardized Lovers

No matter how many times a woman may have heard the words-and-music of a declaration of love, it always gives her a new thrill to hear it over again, even though the formula never changes.

* * *

fatuated boy of 27 assuring her that she is "only as old as she feels."

nothing but a mere existence, and he wouldn't stand that again.

When we heard Tomy talking about the "mere existence" we all stiffened a little, but when Pony laughed and made a joke of it, we softened again.

Oh, yes; of course we did what we could.

I wonder who on earth they really are, and how long it will be before that brave little Pony steps back to town and gets herself a good job, and takes care of herself, as the Ponys of this world are always, somehow, able to do.

Tomy? I'm afraid I'm not wondering much about Tomy. Somehow that phrase of his about a "mere existence" clouded my interest in Tomy.

In the good old days, either a man's kiss meant a proposal of marriage or a woman's kiss meant an admission of weakness. But, nowadays, it's just vice versa.

Courting in the front parlor, within hearing of the parental ear, may have a handicap—but the lover who has to STEAL his kisses, usually comes back for more.

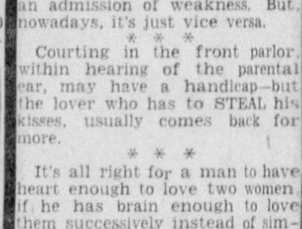
It's all right for a man to have heart enough to love two women, if he has brain enough to love them successively instead of simultaneously. Yet, many a man who would not dream of trying to stand on his head and drink a glass of water at the same time, will attempt this difficult feat.



A woman's life may be soured when she loses her faith in men—but it is not completely wrecked until she loses her faith in plastic surgeons and beauty specialists.

If you want a wife who can placidly endure being "picked on" and bullied, chose one who uses sugar and cream in her tea—not one who is going through the torments of a reducing diet.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Thoughts while strolling: What became of trouser cuffs? They say the Gish girls had to pay $100,000 extra income tax assessments, each, recently. And they are angling for William Allen White to do a daily New York column. That young Mervyn Le Roy looks like a grammar school kid.

Jean Tillier, a Paris, France, boy, who made good in the city. Nobody can plunk a banjo like Eddie Peabody. Or improvise on a piano like Eddie Duchin. Morgan Dennis, the dog etcher. Ben Hampton's son, Dave, is a ringer for Paul Muni. One of my favorite people—Don McIntire.

Sometimes I think the world is groping out of its confusion. . . . creeping more humbly toward things worth while. Wonder if anyone else has an incurable yen to trip Theodore Dreiser? Note to my biographer: I once attended a first night that did not boast of Beth Leary and Jules Glaenzer.

Bob Ripley is putting on weight. b. i. o. . . . Wish I could pronounce secretary the fancy way. I give it too much "ary." Pardon my nip up, but there's an international banker entering a one-armed restaurant. Gene Buck is certainly The Man Everybody Knows. And Col. Joe Hartfield is a runner-up.

George Eichelberger doesn't walk—he sprints. I don't believe Lou Holtz returned my bow. I'll unrecognize him right back next time. Another chapter for my biographer: How I Broke with Lou Holtz. Those pink rabbit-skin whatyoucallems for the ladies in lingerie shop windows.

In a more plastic period, the two artists I desired most to meet were Clare Briggs and E. A. Bushnell. Later, each became a personal friend. Of all callings, cartoonists run to a distinct type. An invariable failing is a love for poker. Their friendships are limited but steel riveted. Novelists, painters, short story writers and columnists—O, my Aunt Agatha's antenna!—have show offs among them. But never among the cartoonists.

An unfailing signia of swank on Fifth avenue was once the graceful white Russian wolf hound. The first one I ever saw was led on a golden leash by—if memory serves—Ina Claire, during the flush of Belasco stardom. And I pitty-pattered pop-eyed in her wake from old Delmonico's to the venerable veranda of the Savoy. I had not seen one for years until today. And when it turned the corner it somehow suggested whatsitsname so long reputedly lingering there.

Helen Gould's mansion, shuttered and boarded, is a bleak blot in the avenue jig-saw. At night a blob of light burns in the basement and somehow after nightfall, I always edge over to the barred windows for a peek. Once I saw a shadow on a stair but it suddenly sprang back like a goat and I almost jumped from under my hat. Such things give deserted houses a reputation for haunts.

* * *

A writer, now gone and whose name eludes me at the moment, invited me to visit his country estate some time. I remember the address was Lost Creek, W. Va., and somehow that name conjured a picture of a most forlorn establishment. Yet I am told it was an entrancing place. But my youthful nearness to the loneliness of West Virginia hills always was remindful of that persistent legend of Barbizon. The white virgin of Moret haunting the forest glades! O, yes, the writer's name was Melville Davisson Post. And how his sturdy oak craftsmanship is missed in the thistledown literature of the day!

My introduction to Mr. Post was through another novelist whose virile pen has been far too inactive the past few years—Meredith Nicholson. And speaking of spook and haunted houses, what ghost story is in any way comparable to Nicholson's volume of thrills, "The House of a Thousand Candles?"
